The Fitnah of the Dajjal

In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Most Merciful

All praise and thanks are due to Allah. We praise and give thanks to Him. We seek His aid and ask for His forgiveness, and we seek Allah's refuge from the evil of ourselves and from our evil actions. Whomsoever Allah guides then none can misguide him, and whomsoever He misguides then none can guide him. I bear witness that none has the right to be worshipped except Allah, alone, having no partner, and I bear witness that Muhammad is His slave and His Messenger.

The Prophet s.a.w. said:

No tribulation on earth since the creation of Adam will be worse than the fitnah of the Dajjal. Allah has never sent a Prophet who did not warn his Ummah against the Dajjal. I am the last of the Prophets, and you are the last Ummah. The Dajjal is emerging among you and it is inevitable...

A lovely looking tree

Many people instinctively feel that in today's society, appearance and reality are more and more diverging. Something is profoundly going in the wrong direction. But what exactly is it? We are faced with overpopulation, poverty, climate change and, perhaps, the catastrophe of an atomic war. Distressed, alienated people, destroyed nature and a meaningless life shape our "modern" society.

While every technical innovation is welcomed as progress, the feeling remains that genetic engineering, robotics, artificial intelligence and other achievements are perhaps not the solution to our problems but instead will disturb the equilibrium of life even more than it is the case already, because every achievement seems to have considerable "side effects". For example, the highly praised medical progress is the main reason for the root of most of the problems that humanity faces today, the overpopulation.

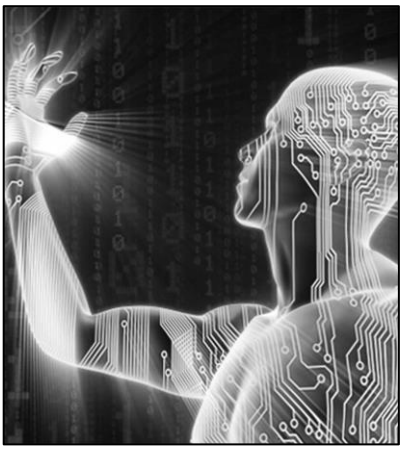
Although industrial agriculture allows the food supply for much more people than traditional or natural methods such as permaculture, it ruins the soil in the long run and the extensive use of pesticides causes the disappearance of many species, apart from the dangers of genetically modified food. For each problem solved, several others seem to appear.

The enthusiasm, however, is nonetheless persistent: "We will get things under our control, with more and more comprehension and knowledge, and the resulting technology! We will shape nature as we want, and eliminate all the adversities of life!"

A great promise! In which most people seem still to believe. But actually, who gave us that promise in the first place?

Was there not an abstruse tale talking about a tree, which would be lovely to look at and be funny because it made wise? And of a serpent in a garden that deceived two naive nudes and told them they could be like God?



Transhumanism

Then Satan whispered to them that he might manifest unto them that which was hidden from them of their shame, and he said: Your Lord forbade you from this tree only lest ye should become angels or become of the immortals. [al-Araf 20]

Satan promised Adam and Eve: Eat from the tree of knowledge and you will be like God (or immortal and like angels). Although God reveals to man that this promise is a deception of Satan, the vast majority of people see it quite differently. Technological progress promises to lead people out of the darkness into the light. And really, as Satan had promised, man becomes more and more like God, the more "fruits of knowledge" he eats and the more knowledge he attains. He can already fly at the multiple speed of sound, can change the weather, eradicate millions of people in seconds, and modify the genes. In Cyberspace, he can even create his own worlds. Man becomes more and more the shaper of his own fate.

Of course, the normal person does not think of Satan in connection with technical progress. He was made believe that life 'develops' from primitive structures to ever 'higher' ones, such as man from the clumsy primitive cave dweller who swung the bat, to today's more highly developed man, who instead of a bat uses now laser and thermo-nuclear weapons. And that's what he believes. Where the 'journey of progress' is supposed to take us, normal people do not think much about. Some kind of science fiction world they guess.

But certain people remember very well the promise of Satan, and are sure to achieve this promise with his help: Apotheosis – becoming God. This is the goal! And the technical implementation of this noble goal is now called 'singularity' or 'transhumanism'.

"We stand on the threshold of the most profound and transformative event in the history of humanity, the "Singularity." What is the Singularity? From my perspective, the Singularity is a future period during which the pace of technological change will be so fast and far-reaching that human existence on this planet will be irreversibly altered. We will combine our brain power—the knowledge, skills, and personality quirks that make us human—with our computer power in order to think, reason, communicate, and create in ways we can scarcely even contemplate today. This merger of man and machine, coupled with the sudden explosion in machine intelligence and rapid innovation in gene research and nanotechnology, will result in a world where there is no distinction between the biological and the mechanical, or between physical and virtual reality. These technological revolutions will allow us to transcend our frail bodies with all their limitations. Illness, as we know it, will be eradicated. Through the use of nanotechnology, we will be able to manufacture almost any physical product upon demand, world hunger and poverty will be solved, and pollution will vanish. Human existence will undergo a quantum leap in evolution. We will be able to live as long as we choose. The coming into being of such a world is, in essence, the Singularity," explains Ray Kurzweil, one of the transhumanists. Ray Kurzweil is not some ordinary lunatic or utopian, he is Director of Engineering at Google and is awarded with 19 honorary doctorates alongside many other awards.

After matter has become intelligible in the form of man, a new form of intelligence and consciousness is to be created, the artificial intelligence produced by man, which will merge with this new form into a new being. Technology will learn to use the mechanisms of nature, but infinitely more efficiently, faster, and without the weak fragility of organic creatures. Man, as transhumanism believes, is the first species that will be able to control evolution of its own species - and thus accelerates its speed millions of times.

Cybernetics, neurology, robotics, nano-technology, genetic engineering - it is the fusion of all these currents into a superordinate goal, which is supposed to realize the plan of the transhumanists. From the point of view of transhumanism, development is roughly to be thought of in four steps:

1) Technology becomes the everyday human companion. After computers and smartphones, house robots become normalcy. Technology is getting ever closer to people, intelligent machines and communication with robots and artificial intelligence (e.g., customer advisory) are becoming routine.

2) Then man will begin to integrate technology directly into his body and create interfaces between the brain and computers. This will dramatically expand its capabilities. Two races will start to exist on Earth: such people who have access to the new technology and thus update themselves to the human 2.0, and Homo sapiens, which will be hopelessly inferior to the new race. Cyberspace and reality blur as the computer brain interface simulates stimuli as if they were actually experienced.

3) The new man 2.0 consists partly of organic and technical elements. Human life will be extended drastically. Man's abilities become inestimable. Lastly, it will be possible to transplant an organic brain into a cyborg, whereby the human being can change the body and thus becomes immortal.

4) Then it will be possible to produce an artificial 1:1 copy of a human brain. It will be possible to download the entire content of the brain and its structure into a computer. People live as intelligent software in cyberspace or a cyborg-avatar of their choice. 'Man' can change bodies as desired. There will be no more difference between reality and cyberspace. The 'human being' can travel with its consciousness in Cyberspace and create and govern worlds.

Everyone will then be able to afford living in a palace and fantastic gardens. Everyone can fly and surf on ten meter waves: Think, and the Mind Machine Interface will tell the Supercomputer to create it for you: "Be, and it is." Is this not like God?

> When He decreeth a matter, He saith to it: "Be," and it is. [Al-Baqarah 117]

The fulfillment of Satan's promise is imminent. This fantastic new world is just like the description of paradise in Islam, where you also get everything you wish instantaneously.

How comes that hardly anyone takes this plan seriously, while maybe only 20 to 30 years are separating us from its implementation?

Ray Kurzweil explains it: It is because hardly anyone understands what exponential growth means.

"How is it possible that we could be so close to this enormous change and not see it? The answer is the quickening nature of technological innovation. In thinking about the future, few people take into consideration the fact that human scientific progress is exponential: It expands by repeatedly multiplying by a constant (10 times 10 times 10, and so on) rather than linear (10 plus 10 plus 10, and so on). Exponential growth starts out slowly and virtually unnoticeably, but beyond the knee of the curve it turns explosive and profoundly transformative. My models show that we are doubling the paradigm shift rate for technology innovation every decade. In other words, the twentieth century was gradually speeding up to today's rate of progress; its achievements, therefore, were equivalent to about 20 years of progress at the rate of 2000. We'll make another "20 years" of progress in just 14 years (by 2014), and then do the same again in only seven years. To express this another way, we won't experience 100 years of technological advance in the twenty-first century; we will witness on the order of 20,000 years of progress (again, when measured by today's progress rate), or progress on a level of about 1,000 times greater than what was achieved in the twentieth century."

It should be noted that the 20th century has brought us from horse carts to magnetic levitation trains and from steam engines to smartphones - an unimaginable development. What now comes will be 1000 times faster. Or to put in other words: if we make 30 linear steps, we make about 30 meters progress. If we make 30 exponential steps, we make about a billion meters progress. From a certain point on, progress will be so fast and complex that the human brain can no longer understand it. Only the optimized people will still be able to keep up with this pace.

Funds for this grotesque plan are easy to obtain. The EU has now agreed to the largest ever EU budget for a research project, the transhumanist "Human Brain Project" - one of the most important building blocks: the simulation of a complete human brain as a computer circuit by simulating the neural structure of the human brain. In about 10 to 20 years the human brain is supposed to be ready. Until then, the computing power of computers may already surpassed that of the brain by millions of times.

Robotics, in particular prosthetics, are to find out how to connect machines directly to human nerves in order to expand the human body with artificial limbs and sense organs. Research grants in the billions are provided by medical and military institutions. The technology is already as good as mature.

The nanotechnology revolution will enable us to redesign and rebuild—molecule by molecule—our bodies and brains and the world with which we interact, going far beyond the limitations of biology. The implementation of artificial intelligence in our biological systems will mark an evolutionary leap forward for humanity, but it also implies we will indeed become more "machine" than "human." Billions of nanobots will travel through the bloodstream in our bodies and brains. In our bodies, they will destroy pathogens, correct DNA errors, eliminate toxins, and perform many other tasks to enhance our physical well-being. As a result, we will be able to live indefinitely without aging. In our brains, nanobots will interact with our biological neurons. This will provide full-immersion virtual reality incorporating all of the senses, as well as neurological correlates of our emotions, from within the nervous system. More importantly, this intimate connection between our biological thinking and the machine intelligence we are creating will profoundly expand human intelligence.

Despite the wonderful future potential of medicine, real human longevity will only be attained when we move away from our biological bodies entirely. As we move toward a software-based existence, we will gain the means of "backing ourselves up" (storing the key patterns underlying our knowledge, skills, and personality in a digital setting) thereby enabling a virtual immortality. Thanks to nanotechnology, we will have bodies that we can not only modify, but also change into new forms at will. We will be able to quickly change our bodies in full-immersion virtual-reality environments incorporating all of the senses during the 2020s and in real reality in the 2040s.

The unavoidable consequence of such a development is that humanity will soon be divided into two or more species: outdated humans and humans 2.0. It will be above all the elite, who have access to the new technologies, who will supersede ordinary man many times in intelligence, sense organs, physical strength, life expectancy and power.

That transhumanism is not purely science, but a fanatical "religion" is hardly to be overlooked. It is about the emergence of God-like people who rise into cyber-heaven, where they live as omnipotent and immortal gods, create universes, move effortlessly through space and time, and are not subjected to natural or eternal laws. Satan's promise, given at the beginning of time, is about to be fulfilled.

Lucifer

The word Luciferianism is rarely used because 'Lucifer' is equated with Satan in Jewish-Christian theology. It is nevertheless the philosophy one finds in the highest levels of society, which we call the 'occult elite'. Interpreted in various forms, Luciferianism is present in philosophical currents such as humanism, Gnosticism and the Kabbalah, and it is the driving force behind secret societies such as the Rosicrucians, Freemasons, and many others.

Interestingly, the word Lucifer does not appear in the Bible. It is rather a later interpretation.

Luciferianism is about the idea that humanity can reach divinity through human means. This philosophy is represented symbolically by two mythical figures, which have the same characteristics: Prometheus and Lucifer. Both are regarded by certain groups as benefactors of humanity, since they brought fire and light to the aspiring people, representing divine knowledge. They help man to become God himself by man's own means.

This perspective does interpret the Bible quite differently. In Genesis, the serpent who gives man the forbidden apple, emerges as a hero, giving man the knowledge of good and evil, and all that is in between. The story of the Tower of Babel is interpreted positively as the human effort to reach divinity. The building of the mighty tower, however, was stopped by a tyrannical god who wants to keep the people trapped in the physical world. He confused the language, and because people no longer understood each other, they could not complete the building of the tower (Genesis 11: 1-9).

While most people who sympathize with transhumanism have no idea of "Luciferianism", one of its founding fathers clearly recognizes the link: the British philosopher Dr. Max More articulated the principles of transhumanism in 1990. In one of his essays ("In Praise of The Devil"), he combines transhumanism and luciferianism.

The Devil - Lucifer - is a force for good (where I define 'good' simply as that which I value, not wanting to imply any universal validity or necessity to the orientation).

The EU, which sponsors the transhumanist "Human Brain Project" with a billion euros, has a parliament building that resembles Brueghel's Tower of Babel.

Left: The official EU poster, "Many tongues, one voice", with the Tower of Babel in the background and the stars of EU members upside down (An upside down pentagram is a sign for Lucifer). Just coincidence?

'Lucifer' means 'light-bringer' and this should begin to clue us in to his symbolic importance. The story is that God threw Lucifer out of Heaven because Lucifer had started to question God and was spreading dissension among the angels. We must remember that this story is told from the point of view of the Godists (if I may coin a term) and not from that of the Luciferians (I will use this term to distinguish us from the official Satanists with whom I have fundamental differences). The truth may just as easily be that Lucifer resigned from heaven.

While actually not believing that Lucifer really existed, but rather taking him as a symbol for reason, intelligence and critical thought, Max More describes perfectly the fundament of the Luciferian notion:

God, being the well-documented sadist that he is, no doubt wanted to keep Lucifer around so that he could punish him and try to get him back under his (God's) power. Probably what really happened was that Lucifer came to hate God's kingdom, his sadism, his demand for slavish conformity and obedience, his psychotic rage at any display of independent thinking and behavior. Lucifer realized that he could never fully think for himself and could certainly not act on his independent thinking so long as he was under God's control. Therefore he left Heaven, that terrible spiritual-State ruled by the cosmic sadist Jehovah, and was accompanied by some of the angels who had enough courage to question God's authority and his value-perspective.

Lucifer promises man "freedom" of this tyranny by giving him "fruits of knowledge", which the despotic God had forbidden him. Lucifer gives man rational knowledge and therewith the means to become like God, which the jealous God wanted to prevent. Lucifer is thus the liberator of mankind, who helps man to develop his true potential and to become independent of God with increasing knowledge. Yes, man even becomes God himself! As we can see, this promise seems to come true in a few years.

However, we also see that the more man plays God, life on this planet is anything but positively influenced. In fact, not only Satan's promise comes true, but also that of God, who said that when man eats of the tree, he surely must die.

The eating of the fruit of knowledge created polarity (symbolized by the recognition of the male and female) and thus also opposition:

> Thus did he lead them on with guile. And when they tasted of the tree their shame was manifest to them and they began to hide [by heaping] on themselves some of the leaves of the Garden. And their Lord called them, [saying]: Did I not forbid you from that tree and tell you: Lo! Satan is an open enemy to you? They said: Our Lord! We have wronged ourselves. If thou forgive us not and have not mercy on us, surely we are of the lost! He said: Go down [from hence], one of you a foe unto the other. There will be for you on earth a habitation and provision for a while. [Al-Araf 22-24]

So they recognized their shame that is to be man and woman. By eating from the tree of knowledge of good and evil, they became aware of polarity and diverted from the original unity. Adam and Eve were in paradise like small children who also do not reflect yet. But Satan caused them "to deflect" therefrom, that is starting reflecting and thus suffering polarity:

> But Satan caused them to deflect therefrom and expelled them from the [happy] state in which they were; and We said: Fall down, one of you a foe unto the other! There shall be for you on earth a habitation and provision for a time. [al-Baqarah 36]

Polarity is a condition to gain knowledge: we can only know what is cold when there exists hot; we only know what is dark when there is light; we only know what is good when there is evil. The knowledge of the tree of knowledge of good and evil is polar and antagonistic. It destroys precisely the paradisiacal primordial state of unity on which all life is based (Satan has symbolically two horns). Rational thinking that is based upon reflection is thus not in conformity with life itself and destroys it. This has been recognized by people from all epochs.

The term “rationality” includes the deliberate selection of and the decision for reasons that are considered rational to achieve a particular goal. "Reason" in turn implies images or concepts that are mentally detectable, follow a logic, and a subject-object relationship (polarity). The irrational, on the other hand, is a state or action which is not supported by rational reasons but often by dogma.

Many classical philosophers distinguish between Ratio and Intellectus. Ratio is, as a rule, a lower faculty of perception which operates comparatively and discursively. Intellectus, on the other hand, means a uniform and coherent faculty. Intellectus would be the synonym for Aql in Arabic, on which “knowledge” or rather “insight” should be based. The sentence e.g. "I know that I know nothing" is not understandable with rationality, as it is a paradox, but with our intellect. Absolute knowledge or truth is unknown to man, as it is God Himself (Al-Haq).

For the believer, the foundation of all things is God. For the unbeliever, there is no ultimate reason for anything, and therefore no higher purpose in life. Everything is more or less meaningless to him, and he sees a meaning foremost in giving himself to the satisfaction of his senses. Since all sensual satisfactions become dull, he always wants more, and goes further and further into the extreme and also the perverse. In doing so, he destroys all morality and ultimately himself.

Dr. Max More's view was mainly inspired by the Bible and the atrocities described therein, and by a tyrant church, which tortured and burned at the stake hundreds of thousands of people. Surely, we have sympathy for that. But rejecting all faith and dogma is a dogma in itself.

A picture in the mirror

The power of the rational mind is impressively demonstrated to us every day, because all modern technology is based on it. The fact that technical progress is linked with the destruction of the planet is, however, not blamed on rationality. Indeed, quite the opposite is the case: what is the actual cause of the disease is regarded as the only possible remedy:

"Our rational mind creates cars which pollute the environment? Let the rational mind then construct some exhaust filters or electric cars!"

By means of our present educational system and society as such, this perception of reality is so fixed in our minds that normal people (besides perhaps a few psychedelic drugs swallowing freaks, artists and quarreling wives) cannot even imagine that one can perceive "reality" differently than through rational eyeglasses.

Even many Muslims nowadays claim that Islam is completely rational. Well, this astonishing supposition arises from the fact that statements in the Qur'an, for example, are in line with latest scientific findings, or because interpersonal problems are solved according to healthy common sense. But Islam is certainly not rational!

Islam is built on revelations, not on reflections of the human mind. The mediator who delivered these revelations is made of light: Archangel Gabriel. Angels cannot be disobedient. They bring us knowledge directly from the truth, the only absolute reality: Allah. On the other hand, images acquired through reflections of the mind are never one with true reality, however firmly we believe this and regard it as 'scientifically proven'. If we do this, and assign absolute reality to the images created by reason, we commit the same sin that peoples used to commit before us: We worship dead, self-made images, yes, we commit idolatry. The root of idea is the same as that of idol: a human made image.

If you show somebody his image on a photo or in a mirror and ask him 'who is that', 99% of the people will answer 'that is me'! Well, of course, it is not you! It is just an image in the mirror, which is a big difference. You have essence and substance, the image has not, although it exists.

Similar, the world in itself has no essence or reality in the absolute sense, as the Koran points out:

[Ali Imran 185]

As the world as we perceive it is an illusion, it follows that "truth" in this world is never an absolute truth (which is Allah alone) but rather a finger pointing towards a certain direction. The world we see is just an image provided by our senses and brain, then processed by mind, intellect and 'heart'[1].

If you ask a scientist about reality, he will admit that science has only concepts and models of reality. The concept for example of electrons flying around protons in the shape of tiny balls of course has little to do with reality as such. Nonetheless are images of reality like these so powerful that almost all technology is based on them. The theories are held to be real because "they have been proven to work". And they "always" work, that is called a scientific proof. In fact, it is a deception! Everybody has to admit that it is indeed a huge achievement that based on such concepts an airplane can fly, but be not fooled to believe that scientific concepts are 'absolute reality' or 'the truth'.

[1] Meeting someone or something "divine" in this world (meaning with an absolute essence) would be comparable to meeting a real person in cyberspace. Jesus and Buddha, for example, never claimed divinity for themselves, it was attributed to them long after their death.

The splendor of rational thought is even admired by Muslims, who often believe that knowledge in general is highly respected in Islam and its seekers are rewarded. Because of the dual implication of the word 'ilm' in Arabic, some minds have constantly confused principal, or metaphysical, knowledge with empirical knowledge. They take, for example, the Koranic verse about iron as a proof that technical progress is almost God-willed:

> We verily sent Our messengers with clear proofs, and revealed with them the Scripture and the Balance, that mankind may observe right measure; and He revealed iron, wherein is mighty power and [many] uses for mankind, and that Allah may know him who helpeth Him and His messengers, though unseen. Lo! Allah is Strong, Almighty. [Al-Hadid 25]

We see in this verse, however, that iron was revealed alongside the Scripture and the Balance. For the knowledge of iron is not based on rational knowledge. The early humans could not possibly know from rational considerations how to make iron, but some "chance" or "inspiration" has revealed it to them.

Some scholars talk about the Golden Age of Islam, where in each city there were public libraries and public baths and the society reached such a peak in culture and science that it was centuries ahead of Europe, which was still in its dark middle ages. All of Europe's science actually would be based on the knowledge of the Muslims! That might be true to a certain degree, though it ignores conveniently the role of peoples such as the Greeks in the development of 'modern thought'. But let us consider the following reports:

The Grand Library of Baghdad, containing countless precious historical documents and books on subjects ranging from medicine to astronomy, was destroyed. Survivors said that the waters of the Tigris ran black with ink from the enormous quantities of books flung into the river and red from the blood of the scientists and philosophers killed.

All the knowledge of this so called Golden Age was washed down the Tigris and did not help the Muslims at all to defend themselves against a horde of barbarians coming from the Central Asian steppes. These Mongols did not even wash themselves! The only time they took a bath was at birth and during rain. How could they defeat the Muslims who were so culturally advanced and knowledgeable and superior in numbers? The only logical answer is that in fact it was not the Golden Age of Islam and that all of this knowledge served the Muslims as much as all the scientific advancements of the West will serve them to avoid the upcoming destruction!

Nowadays again, knowledge accumulates in our universities, but considering the few numbers of scholars who emphasize on real important issues applicable to this age and the current circumstances, the understanding of 'ilm' seems to be lost.

Ask somebody who studied at al-Azhar why a chain saw makes such an evil sound when cutting through trees. He most probably will look at you as if not sure if you make fun of him and will say: "Brother, I am a scholar of Islamic science and have nothing to do with chain saws. Be so kind and ask somebody else." He will not understand your question at all because chain saws do not appear in his Fiqh and Tafsir books.

Rational-logical thinking originated in Hellenism and first seeped into Islam when Muslims began translating the works of Plato, Aristotle and other Greek philosophers. Both in the Islamic East and in Andalusia, the development of the so-called "modern" sciences and technical "progress" began with all the achievements that made up the "Golden Age of Islam". Muslims allowed themselves to be dazzled then, just like the globalised world today.

It was Imam Ghazali who sharply criticised rational, empirical thinking in his work "Tahafut al-Falasifat" - Rejection of the Philosophers. It was a notable work that put a damper on "progress" in the East of Islam. Only in Andalusia, where the Shafi'ite school of law to which Ghazali belonged was not accepted, was the thought rejected and his books burnt by the Almoravids. Ibn Ruschd (later known in Europe as Averroes) wrote the book "Tahafut al-Tahafut", the Rejection of the Rejection. His extensive works were later translated into Latin and formed a cornerstone of Western "progress". Ghazali, however, had realised that the development of Hellenistic philosophy led away from the light of revelation and into the darkness of Plato's cave by casting an empirical angle on the material world. Behind this lay the abyss into which Christian Europe would fall: Enlightenment and Humanism, which led inevitably into an inhuman materialism. It was this abyss that Ghazali foresaw and wanted to avoid, even if he could not yet guess the full consequence, which is the modern and godless world.

Perception and Reality

There are different ways to look at 'reality' and consequently different types of knowledge. Let's take water as an example. One can look at water like mentioned in the following verse:

> Lo! In the creation of the heavens and the earth and [in] the difference of night and day are tokens [of His Sovereignty] for men of understanding, [Ali Imran 190]

See how water feels when it touches the skin, how refreshing it can be. Listen to the sound it makes when falling from the sky as rain, or as waterfall or as waves breaking at the shore. How water washes dirt away, how it quenches the thirst, how it forms clouds and shows a rainbow when the sun shines at it. How much fun it provides for children splashing in it or when they are building a snowman; its healing powers, how it revives a dead land after drought and gives life to all creatures; the beauty of a forest river and of a white winter landscape! Its destructive powers during a flood or a tsunami; the meditative calmness of an ocean or a lake … and at the end one will say: All praise belongs to God who created it! As if God has cast most of his magnificent attributes in this one element alone!

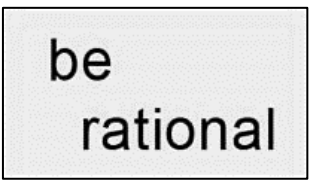
Man recognizes these attributes with lubb, a word whose resonances includes 'core' or 'seed', and denotes an intuitive rather than a purely discursive cognition. The resulting state is that of secure conviction (iman). One experiences truth and does not merely perceive it rationally[2].

[2] Intuition is the ability to gain insight into facts, views, laws, or the subjective consistency of decisions, without discursive use of the mind, that is, without any conscious conclusions. Intuition is a part of creative development. The intellect, which accompanies the development, merely leads, or consciously examines, the results that come from the unconscious. Intuition is also the swift insight into connections and their realization without conscious rational derivation or conclusions, as well as the emergence of new inventions and ideas. While the discursive-rational (conscious) character of knowledge is a derived function, intuitive knowledge has the character of the given. Intuition is in harmony with reality, where rationality creates a reflection and an image of reality that is not reality, just as an image in the mirror is not equal to the mirrored object.

If we look at water in a 'scientific way' we see that it is H_2O; two hydrogen protons and one oxygen proton are interrelated with each other. This is a much different perception! It is a dead image. The enchantment is gone. In fact, it is not even what we perceive, rather it is a concept of reality in which people believe although they know it is not reality.

This kind of knowledge is a reflection of the mind. Look at the fruits of this kind of knowledge: the machines and electronics, the smell, the pollution, the noise; modern life based on rational, logical thinking, life based on so called reason, life based on human made images! It promises progress and modern lifestyle and even offers itself as the solution to all problems, but in fact it is a nightmare!



Mirror-inverted writing - mirror-inverted perception

By acquiring knowledge based on reflection and images, man can create his own worlds, his own identity and his own destiny. He is no longer a slave of a tyrannical god who creates him in a miserable state where he is dependent on God's good humor, which can at any time impose on him a disgusting illness, an accident or bankruptcy; where he has to go to toilet several times a day and finally, after serious agony, gets eaten up by worms.

With Satan's help, this tyranny of God can be overcome. Man takes his destiny in his own hand now and creates himself and the world anew. The world created by the tyrant God is replaced by a world created by man himself.

> Whoever hears of the Dajjal shall keep away from him, for a man will come to him and think that he is telling the truth, because of the miracles sent with him. (Ahmad, Abu Dawud, Hakim)

Modern science is a vehicle through which Dajjal is expanding his power and moving closer to his ultimate goal. Here are a few hadiths that prove that it is Dajjal who is in control of modern science, and that the "miracles" he will work that will cause most people to lose their faith is simply a description of technological progress.

> The Dajjal will cause rain to fall from the sky. (Muslim, Tirmizi)

Surely a sign for Geo-Engineering.

> The cows, goats and sheep of Dajjal will be big with udders full of milk. (Muslim, Tirmizi)

Surely a sign for Bio-Engineering. One should remember Bill Gates' „Super-Cow"

> The movement of Dajjal will be very fast. He will roam the sky like a cloud driven by the wind. (Muslim, Tirmizi)

This undoubtedly refers to modern means of transportation.

The Dajjal will command the subterranean wealth, to come up and serve him. (Muslim, Tirmizi)

This apparently refers to the exploitation of mineral resources for industrial purposes.

The power and influence of Dajjal will encompass the waters and earth of the world. The surface of the world will be covered by it like the skin on the back of an animal. (Ahmed, Hakim)

This could mean surrounding the earth with satellites, radar, radio technology, the Internet, etc.

By means of the "miracles" of modern science, most people have already lost their faith in God. It does not help to show them that the technology based on it destroys the planet or that the chances of this creation coming into being by accident is zero[3]. For modern people it is hardly imaginable not to look at reality through rational-logical glasses.

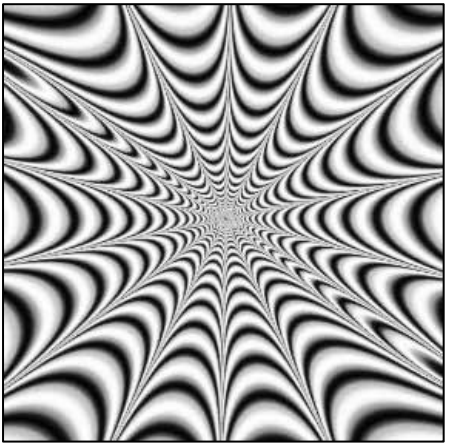
[3] One such example, among many others, is the Cosmological Constant. Nobel Laureate and Professor of Physics, Steven Weinberg, has the following calculation for the Cosmological Constant: "A constant seems to constantly require incredible fine-tuning. The existence of life of any kind seems to require a cancellation between different contributions to vacuum energy that must be accurate to about 120 decimal places." If not: "the universe would either go through a complete cycle of expansion and contraction before life could arise, or it would expand so rapidly that no galaxies or stars could form." So the probability of this happening by chance is 1 : 10 to the power of 120, or simply put: zero.

Once logical-rational thinking is established in a society, those who determine the input control the society. Indeed, one knows very well how "rational people" react to certain information. To determine the desired response, one only has to control the type of data they are presented with or the type of circumstances they find themselves in - and as rational people, they will do what one wants them to do. Then it's always "the consensus of scientists says..." and all rational people will agree with the inevitably-logical conclusion. Once people are trained to act "rationally", you can predict the output by determining the input.

"In our country there is freedom of religion, but for such and such rational reasons you are not allowed to wear a headscarf as a teacher; you are not allowed to slaughter halal; you are not allowed to marry several women; you have problems to build mosques and so on. But above all, you are not allowed to teach your children yourself! Because they also have to get trained in this kind of thinking so that they can function and be integrated."

In Islam today, it is also often said that "the consensus of the scholars is...". Here, too, one only has to present specific "authentic knowledge" to make everyone believe that they are now following the example of the Salaf, while in reality they are doing what the puppeteer in the background wants them to do.



Transcendence

The description of God as a tyrant, who does not tolerate disobedience, like the Luciferianists perceive it, is correct when we make a picture of God, and perceive Him as a being from which we are substantially different. Why should we not freely determine our destiny ourselves, without the persistent intervention of a despot, who constantly threatens us with hell, if we do not obey his innumerable commandments?

If, however, we understand God as 'absolute reality' or 'primal basis of all being', this "despotism" appears quite different. God breathed into man of His Spirit (as-Sajada 9), which means that a deed which contradicts God's commands is also contrary to our own nature. Something that is in contradiction with absolute reality is at odds with our own true reality. Thus the whole religious laws and regulations do not appear as a harassment of poor man but as his protection, which protects him from acting against his true nature and paying a terrible price for it.

Man can only act contrary to his own nature because God has given him a free will, and because man has been seduced by Satan to eat from the fruit of knowledge.

The primordial state is that of the Fitrah, in which every man is born. With increasing reflection / rational thinking based on polarity and antagonism, he removes himself from this state. Man captures himself in a multi-dimensional mirror and identifies himself with the image in the mirror. He attributes reality to the image in the mirror, thereby committing idolatry by assigning absolute reality to something other than God.

One of the most famous sayings of a Sufi comes from al-Halladsch: "ana al-Haqq". This saying is translated as "I am the truth," where Haqq is not only truth, but also one of the names of God. Thus one can also translate: "I am God". Among other Sufis, Rumi has best expressed the fact that "ana al-Haqq" is the most consistent interpretation of the unity of God. If al-Halladsch would have said, "He is God," then it would have inevitably lead to a duality, since there would have been not only God, but also a second, namely, al-Halladsch, who articulates this.

Where is the problem?

As long as one says „I“, there exists also a „You“. Therefore it was not the most consistent interpretation of the unity of God but blasphemy. The most consistent interpretation of the unity of God is the Islamic declaration of Faith: There is no God except Allah, that is, nothing is absolutely real except Him.

Darkness has no reality in itself, it is merely an absence of light, like cruelty is an absence of mercy and compassion, or disbelieve an absence of faith. It is us who perceive something as real which has no absolute reality in itself, a deception. We start acting contrary to our true nature (the Fitrah) which leads us eventually to the negation of Being: hell!

> When the world's coverings of space, time and form are removed, the soul is called upon to face the Substance of its reality. Adequacy and essential conformity to the Substance at that confrontation is what religions call salvation. The absence of an adequate conformity to that Substance, the absence of the qualities and equilibrium of Being with which one is confronted, the absence, for example, of kindness, uprightness, dignity (privations of the Divine Qualities of Mercy, Truth and Majesty) calls forth their opposite. Hell is not a vengeance of a cruel God, but the consequence of the nature of Reality! God can forgive any sin but one: Denial of His Reality, that is, nothing is absolutely real except Him! [Cyril Glassé, The Concise Encyclopaedia of Islam]

We "sin" because we are duped by an illusion and take as real, which actually has no real substance.

The mirrors will break:

The similitude of the life of the world is only as water which We send down from the sky, then the earth's growth of that which men and cattle eat mingleth with it till, when the earth hath taken on her ornaments and is embellished, and her people deem that they are masters of her, Our commandment cometh by night or by day and We make it as reaped corn as if it had not flourished yesterday. Thus do we expound the revelations for people who reflect. And Allah summoneth to the abode of peace, and leadeth whom He will to a straight path. [Yunus 24-25]

The straight path matches our own true nature. If we have diverted from this straight path, we will have to face these sins at our return to God and our true nature. We have to go through a purification process, which brings us back to our true self. This purification process is extremely painful and terrible, symbolized by the Last Day and the crossing of Sirat, the bridge that leads across the abyss of hell, the abyss of the negation of one's own existence. Without a cleaning process it is impossible to cross Sirat. The bridge symbolizes the perfect straight path, thinner than a hair and sharper than a sword. To cross it means to come back to true existence.

The process of cleansing involves nothing other than seeing our deeds in the light of truth and facing them. If we are not able to face truth and try to flee, it results in a turning away from truth or negation of true being, and we enter into the negation of being, which is hell.

But nay! for lo! It is the fire of hell, eager to roast; It calleth him who turned and fled [from truth], And hoarded [wealth] and withheld it. [Al-Ma'arij 15-18]

Allah gives us directly an example of the wrong way to look at things in the above verse: logic and our rational mind tell us that if we donate, we have less. The truth, however, is that when we donate in Allah's way, we have more.

Hell, then, is not the revenge of a despotic God, but a completely logical consequence of our own action. Whoever turns away from truth in this world will also turn away from truth in the hereafter. Without faith in a reality beyond our world, beyond the mirror, and without the acknowledgment of God as the only true reality and foundation of all being expressed in Islam as "There is no God but Allah", there is no hope for salvation. The straight path follows the example of the Prophet: "And Muhammad is the messenger of God."

"Truly, the best among you is the God-fearing." Not because one is afraid of a tyrant and despot, but because one knows a disobedience to God's commands is like a separating from one's own true nature, which inevitably will have to be corrected or judged because we have to return to absolute reality. The God-fearing man will not prefer an illusion to reality, and for a temporary imaginary pleasure cheaply sell the enjoyment of true eternal life because he knows a picture in a mirror is worth nothing.

Modern man' follows ideas. The root of idea is the same as that of idol: a man-made image. By analysing reality and creating images that he logically links, he narrows his own life and closes himself off to the richness and possibilities of life. He creates an ugly world and a life devoid of meaning.

Structures based on rational planning.

Grown, 'inspired' structures of a city.

A Muslim, on the other hand, should not only follow the inspired scripture of the Qur'an, but also look for inspiration in his own life and for signs with which God guides him. To do this, however, he must remember the purpose of his creation. Islam asserts that we are created solely to serve God:

> Say, "My prayer and my sacrifice and my life and my death belong to Allah, the Lord of the worlds." [Al-Anam 162]

Now, when we realise that we are God's servants, we should also ask our "boss" what we should do, as any servant or employee does, instead of following our own desires and self-made images. We must make ourselves open to God's guidance and surrender to Him, which is what Islam means: surrender to God. Our perception must surely be different from someone who does not believe in having a "boss" or does not believe in a God or a higher purpose in life at all.

The believer tries to dedicate all his life to worship, for which he actually was created, and thus acts according to his true nature. He wants to become an Abd Allah, a slave of Allah, who abandons his own will (meaning the will of the false self or ego) in favor of the Lord's will. He surrenders himself to God instead of following the inclinations and desires that are inspired by the mirror. Serving God is to act completely in harmony with one's own nature, and to serve not just only God but above all to serve one's true self:

And whatsoever good thing ye spend, it is for yourselves. [Al-Baqarah 272]

Likewise, evil is directed against ourselves too. Neither does God need our good deeds nor can we harm Him with our evil deeds.

Your rebellion is only against yourselves. [Yunus 23]

The believer hopes to ultimately die in the way of Allah, which means that he is already on the straight path and dies in harmony with his true nature and therefore does not have to be judged on the Last Day. In fact, the martyr does not need to experience the Last Day at all.

Say: Lo! As for me, my Lord hath guided me unto a straight path, a right religion, the community of Abraham, the upright, who was no idolater. Say: Lo! my worship and my sacrifice and my living and my dying are for Allah, Lord of the Worlds. He hath no partner. This am I commanded, and I am first of those who surrender [unto Him]. Say: Shall I seek another than Allah for Lord, when He is Lord of all things? Each soul earneth only on its own account, nor doth any laden bear another's load. Then unto your Lord is your return and He will tell you that wherein ye differed. [Al-Anam 161-164]

Those on the right path profess God as their Lord and follow Him instead of taking their rational minds as Lord. The bringers of inspirations are angels. They are made of light, meaning inspirations are not reflections like those of the mind. Following inspiration is the only way to salvation, as the Koran often emphasizes, which itself was inspired by the angel Gabriel:

Say [O Muhammad, unto mankind]: I warn you only by the Inspiration. But the deaf hear not the call when they are warned. [Al-Anbiya 45]

If Moses e.g. had used his rational mind, he would have said like his companions: "Oh no, Pharaoh and his hordes are right behind us and in front of us is the sea. It is impossible to escape.“ But Moses looked differently at reality:

And when the two hosts saw each other, those with Moses said: „Lo! we are indeed caught.” He said: “Nay, verily! for lo! my Lord is with me. He will guide me.” Then We inspired Moses, saying: “Smite the sea with thy staff.” [As-Suara 61-63]

Certainly, if he had used his rational mind and consequently despaired, Allah would never have helped him. Why should He? If you already believe in the images created by your own mind and your own ideas, trust in them and surrender to them, you cannot at the same time believe in Allah, trust in Him, and surrender yourself to Him. The fact is: One worships ideas / self-made images thus idols.

> And whosoever putteth his trust in Allah, then He will suffice him. [At-Talaq 3]

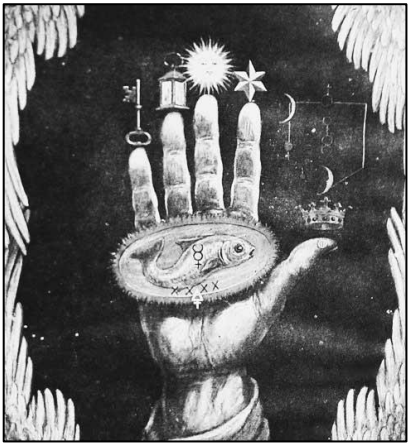
Faith and trust is a condition to get God guidance. Moses had put his trust in Allah first and then got the inspiration.

Unfortunately, most Muslims have rationalized and ritualized their religion, which is actually based on revelation, that is, intuition. Islam thereby becomes an ideology and God is degraded to a nitpicker, who counts the good deeds and sins of the believer like a shopkeeper counts his boodle. They ask God in their prayer to guide them, but they do not seek God's guidance in their lives, but act 'rational' instead. In principle, in spite of the performed rituals, their life is not very different from that of an unbeliever.



Gnosticism

Since the beginning, pure monotheism has fought a hefty battle with the forces of dualism. The starting point of the Gnostic-Dualist philosophy is to attribute substance, or an essence, to evil (or darkness). The solution which Gnostic-Dualism offers for the problem of the existence of evil is to say that it must exist within God, the Principle, whereas the theodicy[4] of orthodox theologies sees

[4] Theodicy is the "answer to the question of why God permits evil". Theodicy is defined as a theological construct that attempts to vindicate God in response to evil as the absence of good, which appears on the plane of existence, but which has no origin in Absolute Reality.

If both evil and good were absolute, but necessarily in irreducible mutual opposition, then the Principle in which they originate would be inconceivable because of its inherent internal contradiction. It is for this reason that the God of the various Gnosticisms has to be affirmed as being completely unknowable. Classical Ismailism, for example, called the Absolute Ghayb Ta'ala ("Supreme Unseen", "Supreme Void" or "The Great Absence", later called al-Mubdi', "originator" or "principle"). This corresponds to the "Abyss" (Bythos) of Hellenistic Gnosticism.

It is common to all the Gnostic philosophies to propose that the world is the result of a conflict between the polarization of the two forces of good and evil within the world of emanation[5], a metacosm called the pleroma. As a result of this conflict, they say, the emanation known as the Demiurge creates the world. (The Manicheans see creation as a kind of defensive tactic whereby the emanation of the "good" aspect of God takes refuge from attack of the "evil" one. Once hidden in the form of light, they say, God is then "liberated" by the realization and acts of the Gnostics, or "Knowers".)

the evidential problem of evil that mitigates against the existence of an omnipotent and omnibenevolent deity.

[5] Emanation is the origination of the world by a series of hierarchically descending radiations from the Godhead through intermediate stages to matter. As it emanates rather than it is created, it is real as well, or in other terms: divine, although in "diminished quality".

In the Hellenistic mythological formulation, in this world there are fragments of the emanation known as Sophia, the Aeon who personifies "Wisdom"; Sophia knowing something of the unknowable God from which she emanated, tried to return to this God in a "hopeless leap" whose course was shattered by Horos, another Aeon who personifies limitation. The fragments of wisdom thus shattered reside in men – the Gnostics, the Knowers – who hear the call that tells them that they are "the son of a King" and "gold that has fallen into the world's mud". It calls them to throw off the impure "clothing" of forms and false, external knowledge, and to realize their "nature of light".

The world, however, like the unknowable "God" who contains within himself the two principles in mysterious und unfathomable union, also contains the two principles, but in conflict with each other. Thus, in a certain sense, the physical world too is "divine" or "absolute" or an "autonomous reality" (like modern science perceives it too).

In the "realized" consciousness the two principles can coexist, just as they do in the unknown God, and that "realized" consciousness is considered by Gnostics to be itself a hypostasis of the Divinity, or simply Divine.

The awakening call is an essential element in Gnostic mythology. On hearing "the call", the Gnostics form communities; their salvation lies in the recognition of the Divinity hidden in the world in the form of the Gnostic teacher; it awaits the end of the world, when the world and evil disappear and there remain, along with the Abyss, the principles of light and darkness, which when unmixed are neither good nor evil. However, their reward for waiting is salvation, which is nothing less than Deification.

In Christianity, Gnostic-Dualism was very obviously introduced by the divine status of Jesus, but also e.g. by Paulus giving essence to evil, where he calls Satan the "God of this world" (2 Kor 4, 4).

In Islam, dualism creeped in through Ismailism[6], Manicheism[7], and Hellenistic philosophy[8] on which modern science is based. It took the "catastrophes" of the Mongol invasions and the Reconquista to stop the intrusions.

In Judaism, dualism creeped in through the teachings of the Kabbalah[9]. It is this form of [6] Especially the Fatimid dynasty in Egypt, which established the Al-Azhar University (always in opposition with the Abbasids and the Ayyubids), but also the Assasins, the Alawis, and generally the Sevener-Shiites, who also influenced the other Shiites, which is how the Shiite Imams got their quasi divine status, and why one must know the imam of one's time in order to be saved. The Druze are also a branch of the Seveners, along with some other gnostic sects like the Qarmatians that more or less influenced Islam.

[7] Manicheism subverted all great religions under the guise of "mystical doctrine". The Abbasids had a power alliance with Manichean sects to overthrow the Umayyads. As a result, these sects gained considerable influence. The "mastermind" of the rebellion against the Umayyads, Abu Muslim, declared himself divine right after the rebellion, but was executed by the Abbasids before he himself could overthrow the Abbasids.

[8] E.g. al-Farabi, Avicenna, Ibn Arabi and many others.

[9] The first school of Jewish mysticism originated during the Babylonian captivity, the Merkava. Hellenistic thought was introduced e.g. by Philo of Alexandria and the kabbalist Isaac, the Blind.

dualism, which uses modern science and technology as its vehicle, which forms the greatest fitnah[10] ever experienced, the fitnah of the Dajjal or the Antichrist[11].

[10] temptation, suffering, turmoil, trial

[11] 'Antichrist' is not an Islamic expression. In Islam Al-Masih ad-Dajjal can be translated as 'false Messiah'. "Dajjal" actually means "liar" and comes from "dajala" (cover, conceal) as he covers reality and truth with his lies. The movement of Dajjal will be eventually led by the person Dajjal. We may also understand the term as the new superorganism, which is currently created.

Synthesis

The agenda of the Dajjal is not really to eliminate the belief in God, but the belief in the One God. The movement pulling the strings in the background is not atheistic, but is based on Gnostic teachings. These, in turn, have in common with pantheism and modern science that they regard this world of light and shadow as real, and ascribe substance or an essence to evil (or darkness). It is therefore not surprising that founding fathers of modern science such as Leonardo da Vinci, Galileo, Kepler, Copernicus, and Isaac Newton were also occultists.

In the dualistic occultism, the two opposite poles of the Demiurge, in conflict, are symbolized as Adonai (another name for Yahweh in the Old Testament) and Lucifer, where here, surprisingly, Lucifer is the Good and Adonai is the Tyrant.

> "Yes, Lucifer is God, and unfortunately Adonay is also god. For the eternal law is that there is no light without shade, no beauty without ugliness, no white without black, for the absolute can only exist as two gods: darkness being necessary to the statue, and the brake to the locomotive. Thus, the doctrine of Satanism is a heresy; and the true and pure philosophical religion is the belief in Lucifer, the equal of Adonay; but Lucifer, God of Light and God of Good, is struggling for humanity against Adonay, the God of Darkness and Evil.“ – General Albert Pike, 33rd freemason, The Question of freemasonry, s.12-14

Domenico Margiotta, also a 33rd degree Mason, wrote:

> "Palladism is necessarily a luciferian rite. Its religion is Manichaean neo-gnostism, teaching that the divinity is dual and that lucifer is equal of Adonay, with lucifer the God of Light and Goodness struggling for humanity against Adonay the God of darkness and Evil.“ Domenico Margiotta, Masonry: Beyond the Light

The goal is to realise the promise of Lucifer and reach Apotheosis. They want to become God! And the way to get there is called "the great work".

The great work can be perceived like Hegel's dialectic. There you have a thesis and its anti-thesis, which are then fused into a synthesis. The most famous representative of occult teachings in the West, Aleister Crowley, expressed the goal of the adept as follows:

> "The Great Work is the uniting of opposites. It may mean the uniting of the soul with God, of the microcosm with the macrocosm, of the female with the male, of the ego with the non-ego." – Aleister Crowley, Magick without Tears 1954

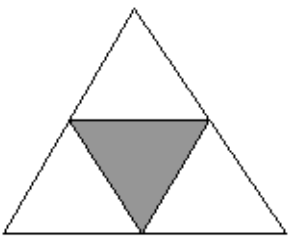
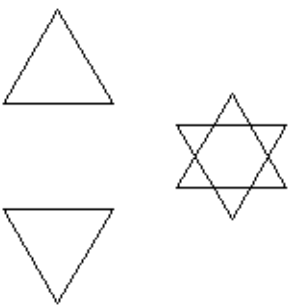
The reason why they want to synthesise the two polar parts is this: the emanation of the Demiurge and our world are a reflection of God, it reflects his duality. The physical reality we live in, the construct the Demiurge has created, consists of very many dualistic elements such as body & mind, male & female, fire & water and light & darkness. Many opposing forces make up its sphere (readily represented as a chessboard in their symbolism). And they believe that if they collapse all these dualistic elements and fuse (synthesise) them all into one, his sphere (our reality) will collapse and not only that, the Demiurge will collapse and cease to exist as a result. And this in turn will open a portal to the higher spheres, to the Pleroma, where the Source is located, which the Gnostics call the Father, the true Light, the Absolute or Pneuma. So when they have synthesised all the opposites in this sphere, it will collapse in on itself and humanity will be freed from the prison of the demiurge, and then human beings will ascend to the higher spheres and merge with the Pleroma and become gods themselves.

The system of Dajjal is thus constructed by those who believe that through the synthesis of opposites and with the help of technical progress they will finally achieve apotheosis, becoming God. In this process, both the demiurge (Lucifer / Adonai) and his construct, i.e. this world, are destroyed. It is a madness that does not shy away from any sacrifice.

The hexagram is a symbol that was used in many cultures and is mainly associated with magic and as a talisman in connection with witchcraft. Wizards and witches used it to call Satan. It is much older than David, and both were used in Mesopotamia and Egypt and is a symbol for the merging of two opposites (triangle upwards and triangle downwards are synthesised into a hexagram) such as male and female, heaven and earth, macrocosm and microcosm or God and humanity.





The hexagram has

6 triangles

6 sides in the middle

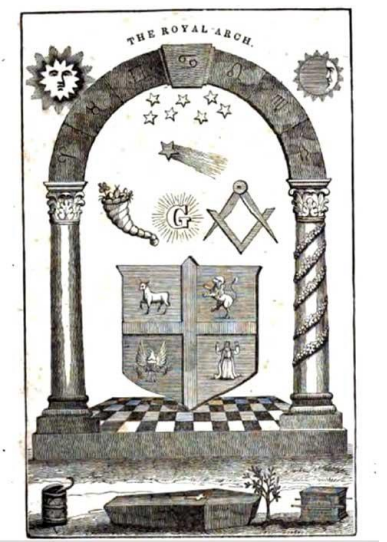
The hexagram is also at the same time a symbol for the hermetic principle 'as above, so below'. This concept of Hermeticism and sacred geometry has its origin in the Tabula Smaragdina. The text of the Hermetic principles was written by Hermes Trismegistos (fusion of the Greek god Hermes and the Egyptian god Thoth), and the text carved on large emerald tablets is said to have been found in the Pyramid of Cheops. There it states, among other things: "That which is below corresponds to that which is above, and that which is above corresponds to that which is below, to accomplish the miracle of the one thing." This is about the merging of the macrocosm and the microcosm. Above and below are unified into one whole.



The two pillars Jachim and Boaz are a dualistic symbol of the Freemasons. This was the name of the two pillars at the entrance to Solomon's temple, but they were never described in the Bible with dualistic features or otherwise mentioned in any great way. They are often depicted with a moon and a sun hovering above them, also symbols of the two parts of the Demiurge. And how is the synthesis of the two opposites represented here? By connecting the two columns with a kind of arch. So the two sides balance each other out. Each small stone is a synthesis of smaller opposites. The connecting keystone for this is the so-called Royal Arch, the keystone, the end of the 'great work' (i.e. the synthesis of Adonai and Lucifer).

And what happens now if you build an arch over the two pillars when the great work is completed? A gate is created through which one can now pass! So it is the portal for the ascendancy of the human being, of becoming God, of apotheosis. It is the portal for the escape from the construct of this world.

Gradual synthesis of reality also in the well-known pyramid of the 1-dollar note. There are several steps of stone stacked on top of each other, which become fewer and fewer towards the top (stepwise synthesis of reality) and finally lead to a portal at the top.

The Hegelian dialectic is also the reason for the mixing of the sexes, the masculinisation of women and the feminisation of men with the help of media and chemical agents in our food (hormondisruptors like BPA). A synthesised third gender is to be created by fusing these two opposites. The LBGT movement is a controlled agenda whose aim is to reverse the roles between man and woman so often until there is fluidity between the two in mass consciousness and there is no longer a demarcation between the two. And in the meantime, 'gender fluidity' is indeed one of the many gender identifications that are normal today. This refers to a person who does not identify with a fixed gender. So the two categories (male and female) are becoming obsolete and synthesised together.

What applies to gender should also apply to ethnicities and cultures. If you synthesise all opposing ethnicities and cultures into a single globalised one-world human culture/ethnicity, you create people without roots. And such people accept drastic changes more easily. Diversity becomes university.

One should also mention the trend that there are more and more people who also synthesise the opposites of humans and animals into chimeras. The dissolution of all natural boundaries is being promoted today. In a very Luciferian manner, people are rebelling against the order of nature (Yahweh). Absolutely every contradiction of our world is to be synthesised, thereby completely destroying the order of the complete creation. This is the definition of megalomania! They want to destroy everything beyond repair, overthrow God and corrupt as many souls as possible along the way.

The lines between good and evil are also becoming more and more blurred. Similar to gender, the meanings of good and evil are interchanged so often until it is 'fluid' what is considered morally good & evil and they are easily interchangeable. Basically, any original distinction of the two is dissolved until society sees objective morality as just another social construct.

This is exactly what order out of chaos (Ordo ab Chao) means to these elite secret societies. They create unity or synthesis through a state of chaos. Distress and existential fear are generated, while at the same time one presents oneself as a saviour who paternally cares for the frightened souls and offers a way out of all difficulties and tribulations.

Because global, all-encompassing domination is sought, the problems must logically also be global, so that only global measures, and not just national ones, can overcome the crisis. The more fear can be generated, the more people are willing to give up their freedoms in favour of totalitarian measures.

Terrorists, pandemics, climate change, war, inflation, food and supply shortages, cyberattacks and so on, all require coordinated global action. And all problems seek even more control and regulation. Like a herd of cattle, people are to be herded into the cities, where they are completely at the mercy of Dajjal, since they can be best controlled there and can no longer independently grow or hunt their own food. Everything is to be chipped and tracked, and people controlled following the Chinese social credit system model. State-of-the-art face recognition and surveillance systems are ubiquitous, all activities are logged in detail and recorded and analysed by AI to create exact personality profiles in order to manipulate people even better and weed out potential insurgents at an early stage. A Digital ID will be coupled with digital money so that only people who bow to the new system can make transactions.

A world with one government, one currency, one language, one leader and one religion will be created. In other words, a complete unification of all things. And the crown of all agendas, virtually the Royal Arch of the great work, is Transhumanism. Transhumanism can be seen as the fusion of man and machine, the biological with the non-biological, even life with death.

This agenda stands above all, as it ends the debate of the others. It is the keystone, so to speak. Because once it is fully implemented and humans become complete machine beings, there will be no more distinctions between sexual orientation, gender, ethnicity or nationality. Not even species will then be a valid distinction. And morality? Forget it, it will fizzle out overnight. Not to mention the simultaneous rejection of almost all religions, because who needs to think about life after death when you can no longer die? And transhumanism will also be sold to us as a solution to all problems of opposites (ending the struggle between race, nations, economic systems and genders) and with that they will achieve world peace, stop hunger & diseases etc.

But apotheosis is not meant for everyone, but only for a "chosen" group. The rest of the people must be brought under control so as not to endanger the absolute power of the master race. Above all, those who still cling to the tyrannical God and His laws must be brought under control. Who do not worship (see as real) the self-made images of "rationality" and "reason", but want to accept God's guidance.

The following chapters are about how the movement of Dajjal gradually took power first in Europe and then worldwide.

The prophecies

All Prophets and especially Muhammad s.a.w.[12] did warn the people about the great fitnah and tribulation the Dajjal will bring. At the end he will incarnate himself as a human being when he appears in our space and time. He will pretend to be the Messiah and rule the whole world. At the end of his rule he will be killed by the true Messiah. We also know that at the time of the appearance of the Dajjal will be a Great War, which we want to call after the biblical term Armageddon, the pending World War III.

> The Prophet s.a.w. is reported to have said: "He will start by saying that he is a Prophet, but there will be no Prophet after me. Then he will say, 'I am your Lord,' but you will never see your Lord until you die. The Dajjal is one-eyed, but your Lord, glorified be He, is not one-eyed. On his forehead will be written the word Kafir, which every Muslim, literate or illiterate, will be able to read.' [Imam Ibn Kathir]

The goal of Dajjal is to gain total power on the physical, intellectual and spiritual plane. He must be invincible in political, economic and ideological terms. The summit of his power will be reached when he will be taken for the Messiah. In order to accomplish this, logically, he must impersonate what is expected and prophesied of the true Messiah:

- He must be a descendant of the Prophet David (or at least pretend it).
- He must liberate the Holy Land of those who do not worship the God of Abraham.
- He must bring back the 'chosen people' to the Holy Land.
- Jerusalem must become the capital of the New World Empire and Dajjal must rule from the throne of David (meaning that the temple of Salomon must be rebuild and Masjid Al-Aqsa must be destroyed before that).
- Under his rule there may be no war and no conflicts anymore.

And it shall come to pass, when thy days be expired that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build me an house, and I will stablish his throne for ever. [1. Chronicles 17, 11-12]

As we know did the Jews already return to Israel, so a part of the prophecy seems already fulfilled. But we can see as well, that the state of Israel is built on grave human rights abuses, corruption and questionable morals (with 25,000 visits of prostitutes every day (Jerusalem Post, 10. May 2001)), and cannot possibly be the 'Holy Land'! The state of Israel is a fake like it is the Dajjal who will pretend to be the Messiah!

Demonstration of orthodox Jews against Zionism and the state of Israel.

The Zionism, which is behind the creation of the state of Israel, is in fact no real Jewry, which religious Jews will be glad to confirm, it was established under the influence of Kabbalists. The Kabbala is also no pure Jewry but was formed under the influence of Semitic cults, especially under the influence of Egyptian and Babylonian mysticism, but also contains gnostic and new-platonic elements.

We did mention the goal of Dajjal, but how does he reach it? What is behind Zionism? What is the Kabbala? In order to answer these questions we must go far back in history.

All begins with mysticism and ends with politics.
[Charles Peguy]

The Templars

Rabbi Makhir was a Babylonian Jew who, most likely because of a dispute about progeny, emigrated from Mesopotamia and went to Europe. He became the leader of the Jewish community in Narbonne. Pippin III, King of the Franks, was in need of his help against the proceeding troops of the Saracens, who invaded South of France. After the defeat and the drawback of the Saracens, Pippin gave Makhir extensive land property as a sign of his gratitude.

According to a narration reported by Abraham ibn Daud, a Jew from Andalucia in his 'Sefer ha-Qabbalah', written around 1161, Makhir was a descendant from the house of David. His son was Guillaume de Gellone.

Narbonne became the centre of the medieval Kabbalah. It is said that the Kabbalists inspired the crusades to get important Holy Scriptures from Jerusalem, which were inaccessible due to the occupation of the holy land by the Muslims. Therefore the order of the Knights Templar was founded (it is proven that it was established in South of France).

The order of the Knights Templar was established around 1118, its full name was 'Poor Fellow-Soldiers of Christ and of the Temple of Solomon (Pauperes commilitones Christi templique Salomonici Hierosalemitanis). The Knights took a vow in front of the patriarch of Jerusalem and pledged poverty, chastity and obedience and fulfilling the task of protecting the pilgrims. The new King of Jerusalem, Balduin II., gave the Knights Templar in the year 1119 the building of his former palace, which was said to be built on the terrain of the old temple of Salomon, therefore the name Knights Templar. The Knights Templar made excavations and found the 'Sepher ha Bahir', which revived the lost mystic tradition and caused a cultural revolution of the medieval Kabbalah (it is proven that the book Bahir was published for the first time in the 12th century in the South of France).

On the 29th of March 1139 the organization of the Knights Templar became recognized by Pope Innozenz II. and came under his order. Henceforth it was nearly untouchable for worldly rulers. It was not only exempted from paying taxes but was even allowed to take taxes. Through different financial innovations like cheques, exchange and 'interest-free' loans, the Knights were able to by-pass the prohibition of 'interest', which existed since the time of Moses, Jesus and Muhammad s.a.w. in all religions. This 'clever' multiplication of money made the order within a short time a multi-national finance cooperation, which influence spread over Europe and the Middle East. About 15.000 members managed 9.000 properties, which were located all over Europe.

The Knights Templar were no Jews but inspired by the Kabbalah. And they were influenced by the Catharses, a gnostic sect of the South of France.

Influenced by Phillip IV., the order was dissolved on the 22nd March 1312 by Pope Clemens V. and the last grandmaster of the Knights Templar, Jacques de Molay, burned in Paris on the pyre. The King as well as the Pope died within a year, exactly as a curse, uttered by Molay on the pyre, predicted it.

The Knights Templar were accused of practicing idolatry and to worship Baphomet (a symbol of unification of opposites and the great work) but only 12 of 231 Knights confessed under torture to know anything about Baphomet. This indicates that there was an elected group within the order, whose knowledge was hidden from the rest of the members.

After the elimination of the order the Knights went underground. Many surviving Knights went to Scotland because in Scotland the verdict of the Pope was not pronounced and the order kept existing. Many of them served under Robert the Bruce in the Scottish Guard. Descendants of Guillaume de Gellone also found their way to Scotland and became grandmasters of the Scottish freemasonry.

Freemasonry and Humanism

There are different groups and individuals who support Dajjal directly and indirectly. Their ideas and intentions can be very different and carried by ideals like humanism but also by greed for wealth and power, racism, nationalism and many other things. Hammer and chisel seen for themselves are quite different things like Zionism and humanism are. But like a builder who uses these different tools for one purpose, so does Dajjal use the different groups for his purpose.

Often it is stated that Freemasonry developed out of mediaeval guilds of freemasons and that its values resulted from the age of Enlightenment. The five pillars of freemasonry are: Freedom, Equality, Fraternity, Tolerance and Humanism. Humanism encompasses all previous pillars and is symbolized by the temple of Salomon on which the freemasons are working (one should remember that one of the goals of Dajjal is to rebuild the temple of Salomon).

But it is fact that in the year 926 already the freemasons in England were summoned by King Athelstan and took their seat in York, with the brother of the king as grandmaster.

The question if a Christian Kabbalah, a kabbalistic mysticism with Christian elements, ever existed, cannot be answered for sure. But evident is a fruitful reception of kabbalistic scriptures in the early humanism like Giovanni Pico della Mirandola in 1486 - "Philosophical, kabbalistic und theological conclusions" and his "About the human dignity", published in 1496. Johannes Reuchlin united Christian theology, Pythagorean and new-platonic philosophy as well as Jewish mystic to a synthesis and Agrippa of Nettesheim wrote 1530 with "About the hidden Philosophy" a 'bestseller'. Therein he combines kabbalistic esoteric with Christian dogmatism.

Two of the early philosophers are Heraclites and Protagoras. They were teaching that everything is bound to eternal change (Teaching of the flow of all things); at the same time man could recognize unity in diversity and diversity in unity and himself as part of a whole (Teaching of the unity of all things); there would be no moral absolutes and man as creative being would be the highest authority in the universe.

In particular is called humanism the intellectual climate of the 15th and 16th century which turned away from the middle age and the scholastic. Commonly one differentiates today between Renaissance as cultural and social change and humanism as its educational basis. In the 15th century existed already circles which called themselves 'humanistae'. The antique Greek education was the superior ideal and mankind glorified as highest of all of creation.

But because the existence of God was not commonly accepted, the untouchable dignity of mankind became the foundation of a value system in most of the national constitutions. In its negative aspect humanism got a secular non-religious concept: the negation of any divine powers superior to mankind. Instead of religion, the modern human should use reason and only then becomes 'man'! The secular humanism began in the age of the Enlightenment and saw itself as a way to solve ethical questions independent of religion.

The 'modern' European Enlightenment, understood as turning away from the mediaeval Christian perception of life, began in the Renaissance, in which pagan elements of the antiquity turned from bogeyman to ideal. Renaissance and reformation started the age of Enlightenment. The European age of Enlightenment was carried by the thought that reason is able to bring out the truth. The religion of reason should bring the liberation of the dogmatic oppression and overcome faith in the authority of the Christian religion and bring freedom and prosperity for all.

From now on: human reason instead of divine revelation! Global ethos for a peaceful and human world! Democracy, the child of the Enlightenment and humanism, began its peace making work straight away: with the new 'human' method of execution of the guillotine, to which thousands of men, women and children fell victim! No sarcasm! The guillotine was really invented because of humanitarian reasons in order that the beheading was executed faster and less painful!

But the truth was that all these ideals of the Enlightment were carefully invented by certain groups with a definite goal in mind. All the leading philosophers of the Enlightenment were Freemasons, or members of the Illuminati, founded by Adam Weishaupt, and assisted in propagating its goals. To ensnare the masses, the Illuminati exploited the Gnostic ideal of “liberty”. In order to present the struggle for “liberty” in context, the Illuminati constructed the myth of progress, as history evolving from superstition to “freedom” from despotism, in this case, meaning the Catholic Church. This myth of progress was actually an adaptation of Lurianic Kabbalah, and disguised the ultimate Illuminati goal of supplanting the world’s religions, and incepting an occult New World Order, to be governed by their Messiah.

The Duke of Orleans was merely Lieutenant to Frederick the Great, the Grand Master of all Freemasonry. But about eight years before the Revolution, he was elected Grand Master of France, and the whole association of various lodges came to be known as the Grand Orient. The chief instigators of the Revolution, Mirabeau, Condorcet, Rochefoucault and others, were high-ranking officers of these lodges. The Count Mirabeau was himself a member of the Illuminati, and had attended the Grand Masonic Convention in 1782, at Wilhelmsbad, in Hessen-Kassel, where the plan for the coming revolution was originally discussed. In 1788, deputies of the Illuminati were sent, upon his request, to inform the French lodges on strategy. Their first item of advice was the creation of a Political Committee in every lodge, and from these committees arose the Jacobins Club. Soon, nearly every lodge in the Grand Orient was infiltrated by supporters of Weishaupt, who became active in spreading the political policies of terrorism against the state.

It was not difficult to deceive the masses and to win them for the "struggle for freedom", because they were oppressed by a cruel feudal system and a repressive church, under whose blessing inquisition, colonialization and all kinds of other tyranny took place, vice-regent of a tyrannical God on earth. Liberation from this oppression was welcomed everywhere, although the masses did not cogitate that behind this "liberation" was the luciferian ideal of man, who frees himself from the dictatorial God and becomes God himself.

Something is worth mentioning:

Vigorous and lasting opposition, which partly took the form of open rebellion and religious civil war, was caused by a law of the national assembly in context with the civil constitution of the clerics which on the 27th of November 1790 made it compulsory for all priests to swear an oath on the new constitution. Pope Pius VI., who already declared the declaration of human rights to be godless, forbade the oath under the punishment of excommunication.

The "Eye of Lucifer" on the declaration of human rights and on the one dollar bill. Interestingly, in Islam the Dajjal is called "the One-Eyed".

Just imagine: Not even 200 years ago the Catholic Church declared the declaration of human rights to be godless and the oath on the new constitution was punished with excommunication! One should thoroughly digest this first! Which Catholic would nowadays even dare to say that 'reason, freedom, democracy and human rights' are godless? The pagan school of thought took over the power in the heart of Europe!

It was the affliction of Christianity not to obey the commandments of God and to falsify its scriptures. The result was an oppressive church under whose blessings the inquisition, bloody colonization and many other kinds of tyranny took place. Understandably this was the best nurture for a counter movement which wanted to liberate itself!

How Islam does judge humanism and democracy? Exactly like Pope Pius VI.! By introducing the people as 'Sovereign', like it is the case in democracy or any other form of constitution which is not based on the laws revealed by God, Allah s.w.t. is replaced as 'Sovereign' (Al-Malik). Therefore anybody who acknowledges such a form of constitution puts something else as supreme authority rather than Al-Hakam (the law-giver, one of the 99 names of Allah). This is Shirk, idol worship, and one of the sins Allah s.w.t. will not forgive!

When it is said in the prophecies that the Dajjal will pretend to be God, does this not necessarily mean that people think he is really God, but that his rule will be recognized and his laws be followed. Acceptance of laws which are in contradiction to God's laws means apostasy. This is the view of all the monotheistic religion. No servant can serve two masters.

When one day a verse from the Koran was recited to the Christian 'Adi bin Hatim, who later converted to Islam, he thought to take someone as God would mean to bow down and prostrate before him. He therefore disagreed with the Prophet s.a.w and said that Christians do not take the priests and monks as their gods. The Prophet s.a.w then explained this verse: "... take their priests as gods besides Allah":

"It is true (the Christians do not prostrate before their priests), but truly, they forbid something that God has allowed and allow something that God has forbidden, whereupon the people follow their orders. And so they worship them!" (Ahmad & Tarmizi)

"And whoever does not judge by what Allah has sent down - they are the disbelievers." (Al-Maida 44)

`Abdullah Ibn Mas`ud r.a. reported: "I asked the Messenger of Allah s.a.w.: 'Which sin is gravest with Allah?' He said: 'That you make something equal to Allah, while he is your Creator.'" [Bukhârî, Muslim, Tirmîdhî, Nasaî, Abû Dâwûd und Ahmad Ibn Hanbal]

It is reported that the French government in the year 1930, because of the celebration of 50 years of occupation of Tunisia, offered Tunisian officers the French citizenship. When the first Tunisian officers died, the Islamic death prayer was denied them. Why? Because by accepting the French citizenship they also acknowledged the French laws, e.g. that the inheritance was divided according to French laws and not any longer to Islamic laws. By doing this they left Islam according to the majority of Tunisian scholars!

This might serve as a serious warning also for Muslims who, without any necessity, acknowledge the democratic constitution of any country they like to get the citizenship or where they are residing. To obey the laws is one thing, to acknowledge them is another. One either acknowledges Allah, His Prophet and the Shariah, or the constitution!

Now we probably know what the Prophet s.a.w. meant when he said:

> Abu Hurayrah said, "The Prophet said, 'Shall I tell you something about the Dajjal which no Prophet has ever told his people before me? The Dajjal is one-eyed and will bring with him something which will resemble Paradise and Hell; but that which he calls Paradise will in fact be Hell. I warn you against him as Noah warned his people against him.'" [Bukhari, Muslim]

Freedom, Fraternity, Human Rights and Democracy look like Heaven but is in fact Hell, although we must admit that we have a certain sympathy for "the struggle for freedom" when we see what the church and the feudal system did to the people. God's representative on earth should surely look different.

We also must note that for most freemasons the lodges certainly are what they represent from the outside: brotherhoods who strive for humanistic ideals (like e.g. Wolfgang von Goethe, Gotthold Ephraim Lessing, Sir Conan Doyle, Gustav Stresemann and many others). They might have been surprised that the liberation and self-realization of humanity ended in Christopher Street Day and similar happenings.

> Up to the higher levels, and even there, one can pretend to be a good Christian and a good Freemason at the same time. Many people see many things in Freemasonry, just as intended! [Dr. Harrel Rhome]

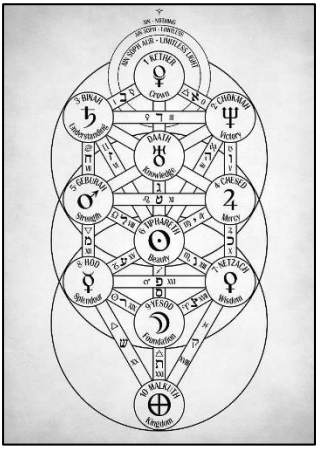
Masonry… conceals its secrets from all except the Adepts and Sages, or the Elect, and uses false explanations and misinterpretations of its symbols to mislead those who deserve to be misled; to conceal the Truth.… [Freemasonic master magus of the 33rd Degree, General Albert Pike]

[The Masons] are the invisible powers behind the thrones of earth, and men are but marionettes, dancing while the invisible ones pull the strings. … We see the dancer, but the master mind that does the work remains concealed by the cloak of silence. [Manley P. Hall]



Kabbala and Zionism

Yehuda Solomon Alkalai was born in the year 1798 in Sarajevo, Bosnia. He studied in Jerusalem under different Rabbis and came under the influence of the Kabbalah. In the year 1825 he became Rabbi of Semlin, the capital of Serbia. In the year 1834 he proclaimed for the first time the idea of political independence of the Jews and the creation of the state of Israel in his pamphlet Shema Yisrael ("Listen O Israel"). Therein he proposed erecting Jewish settlements in the land of Israel as predecessor to the Messianic redemption. But this idea was seen by the Jews as heresy because they believed that the Messianic redemption would be caused by a supernatural event caused by God. The rabbinic doctrine was that the Messiah would first lead the people of Israel in the apocalyptic war of Gog and Magog and then conquer the land of Israel.

But Alkalai believed after his study of the Kabbalah that the year 5600 (1840) would be the beginning of the Messianic redemption and he asked the Jews to make efforts for the redemption and to found the state of Israel. He was dreaming of a worldwide organization, which should support the founding of Israel. He became member of an association for the colonialization of Israel and became very active there.

His ideas were later followed up by Theodor Herzl, whose grandfather was a friend of Alkalai. Herzl wrote 1896 under the impression of anti-Semitic tendencies in Paris (Dreyfuss) his book "Der Judenstaat" (State of the Jews). The influence of this book, but especially the political Zionism founded by him, set a development in motion, which contributed essentially to the foundation of the state of Israel in the year 1948. This is the official version, but it can be said for sure that the idea of the foundation of Israel was much older. The force behind Zionism were and are the Kabbalists / freemasons with kabbalistic foundation.

The Kabbala is a companion or adjunct text to the Talmud. Its myriad of axioms and labyrinthine commentaries contain a body of lore transmitted from one generation to another, not just by the written word, but more importantly, by a powerful and mostly secret oral tradition. Judaists (the proper English word for practitioners of Judaism) are not unique in this regard. In Jewry itself there exists different directions of Kabbala of which the most known is the one of Rabbi Isaac Luria (1534-1572). Kabbalistic teachings found also growing attention from the beginning of the 20th century with theologians and occult circles like the theosophy or the Golden Dawn, as well as New Age and Esoteric.

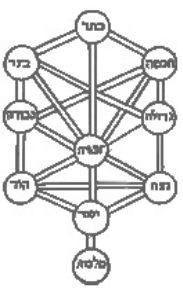
The foundation of kabbalistic tradition is the search for an experience of close relation to God. According to kabbalistic thinking, God created everything He created in the universe also in man. The perfection of the godly macrocosm does personify itself in man who, as microcosm, is imperfect but nonetheless an image of the heavenly man Adam.

When Adam descended he split in 600,000 parts. In each part does exist what already existed in the ancient Adam, therefore every part is a little Adam. And like in the spiritual Adam all characteristics and forces of the whole universe were concentrated, so they are now in each splinter. And these splinters are called "human souls".



Each soul contains all ten Sephirot. Sephirot is the Hebrew name for the godly emanations in the kabbalistic tree of life. They form in its entity symbolically the heavenly man, the Adam Kadmon. After Adam had eaten the fruit of knowledge, he lost his heavenly state and descended to this world. The ten Sephirot are transformers of the energy. The energy descended, through the Sephirot, until it manifested itself in Malchut and man manifested himself as human. The energy lost quality with each step.

In order to reach his original state, man must pass through all ten Sephirot, in a kind of spiritual development or process of gaining knowledge. How exactly this process of realization proceeds is an immensely complex subject. One can study for decades! Well, decades are even not sufficient! Like Hindus or Buddhists, Kabbalists believe that a person undergoes countless incarnations, so they also believe that they are born again (called gilgul) until they have completed the process of realization.

All the souls that have previously formed the original form Adam, form this unit still today. It is only the illusion of this world that they perceive themselves as separate beings, but in reality they are one. And also become one again when they reach the original state of paradise. Until then, the souls will return again and again to this world, until this goal is realized. Therefore, each generation constitutes the same 600,000 souls who clothe themselves in various bodies of this world until a certain stage of development is achieved.

Many Kabbalists believe that this is the time just before the reunion of souls! They expect a new era in which there is a new world order, in which the souls live united and find their true identity, under the reign of a king from the house of David:

> There shall be no end in increase of his government and peace on the throne of David and over his kingdom, to order and support it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever. [Isaiah 9, 7]

Here is an excerpt of the message of B'nei Baruch, an Israeli organization that advocates Kabbalah:

> The wisdom of the Kabbalah, hidden for thousands of years, now comes to light. She has been waiting for a time in which we are sufficiently developed and ready to translate the message. Today it appears as a message and a solution which can unite the parties within and between the nations, and may bring all of us, as individuals and as a society, to a much better state.

That sounds very nice! But to whom is this actually addressed? Do they speak also to the Palestinians? Read it very carefully: hidden for thousands of years! Why hidden? Judaism is not and was never hidden! Maybe because it was once condemned as heresy?

Most people who ever studied Kabbalah and saw it only as a path to self-realization, as a way of spiritual development, do not understand one very important detail. The number 600.000 is NOT figurative, at least not for those seeking world domination and who support Zionism. Twelve Tribes of Israel x 50,000 are 600.000. These are the original souls that make up a unit and are born again until they eventually reach the original paradisiacal state, but this time enhanced by the knowledge of what is good and evil, with the quality of God. The 600 000 are the chosen people. Most of us unfortunately do NOT belong to them! We are called Goyim[13]!

In the Kabbalistic book Zohar, which is of fundamental importance to Freemasonry with kabbalistic base, we read (if the book was not censored):

> The biggest scum are the peoples of the world, they are dark and are called non-Jews (goyim). [Zohar III, 125a]

But how do you deal with this scum?

> The truth is that one should castrate the men (of those non-Jews) and kill their women. [Zohar I, 13b]

Yes, that makes sense! When you see how the Israelis treat the Palestinians and then on the other hand how much effort they do just to retrieve two dead bodies of their own!

"Here was cleaned out with machine guns, then with grenades and finally with knives," commented the representative of the Red Cross, de Reynier, the massacre of Deir Yassin (Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, 11.4.98, p. 6). Responsible for this massacre was the Zionist terrorist Menachem Begin, who is usually praised in the West as a peacemaker and even won the Nobel Peace Prize. On his orders, women, children and old people were thrown alive into the village well. Then he personally threw as an encore a couple of hand grenades into the well to silence the screams of the dying. All this happened with M. Begin own occult-kabbalistic motivated policy, the same basis which is venerated in the West as the humanistic principles of Freemasonry. For this massacre, one of many in his career, Begin received from the Masonic Lodge B'nai B'rith (Sons of the Covenant), the high award of the Order of Joseph, because he had liberated holy land of Arabs. The same lodge also reported that Israel took over from the Palestinians abandoned land. When we think of Deir Yassin, then it is no wonder that this land was abandoned! These and other criminal lies to glorify the genocide and to protect the responsible butchers is typically for B'nai B'rith, to which high-level politicians of the Western States belong. Whether Begin himself belonged to this lodge is irrelevant, because the high award speaks clear words on the position of the Freemasons and their extreme criminal potential regardless of a membership.

So what can we expect as goyim?

Extermination or enslavement! Nothing else is intended for us. The love of which B'nei Baruch speaks, applies only to the chosen people. And both slavery and extermination has already begun. Who does not believe this should please open his eyes (and I hope the following chapters help).

Would it not have been sufficient to detonate the atom bomb at sea off the coast of Japan and say, "Look here, we can make them explode over your heads if you do not surrender"? Why did they throw directly two bombs without any warning? Why could they not wait for Japan to surrender after the first bomb? Who ordered this? It was Harry S. Truman, Past Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of Missouri! If it is true that these Masonic lodges follow 'humanist' ideals, how could he commit such a crime? The explanation is that the Japanese are goyim!

> The nations will take Israel and return it to his native country and in the land of the Lord the house of Israel will make them serfs, to servants and maids. It will imprison those, who held it captive, and will suppress those who once oppressed it. [Isaiah 14, 2]

One wonders: Why are these Jewish occult writings not branded as hate speech? Because if one criticises them one is charged of anti-Semitism?

If one says, "Listen, you call us goyim and yourself the chosen people and violate one UN resolution after the other: That is racism" then one is called a racist?

(By the way, at the UN conference in Durban in 1975, Zionism was defined as a form of racism. However, this resolution was later rescinded ... or had to be rescinded.)

But, some people will argue now, there are much more than 600,000 Jews. In Israel alone are 5.5 million! Yes certainly! But Jews are not only a race, although most often it is represented that way. Judaism is a religion. Even the Arabs are Semites: descendants of Shem, the son of Noah. The ethnic origin, whether a Jew really descends from the original 12 tribes of Israel, can be determined only with difficulty, if at all.

There are also many non-Semitic people who converted to Judaism (e.g. the people of the Khazars), just as there are many people who study Kabbala and believe that they already belong to the initiated and enlightened ones and not any longer to "the profane", and can sit with them in the same boat.

Rothschild and the Illuminati

Give me control over a nation's currency, then it does not interest me who makes the laws. (Mayer Amschel Rothschild)

Mayer Amschel Bauer was the founder of the Rothschild dynasty. His father, Moses Amschel Bauer established himself in the year 1750 in the Frankfurt Jew Street and opened a shop for coin dealers, textile trade, exchange and gold and silver work.

A few years after the death of his father, Mayer Amschel began as a bank clerk who worked for the Oppenheimers in Hanover. After some time he was promoted as junior partner. He changed his name to Mayer Amschel Rothschild, after he had returned to Frankfurt and had acquired the business from his father. It is said that the name goes back to Rothschild, a red shield, which hung outside the store, and that the Star of David was wearing the same symbol that the Kabbalists used in Prague, the former stronghold of the Kabbalah.

About the year 1760 Mayer Amschel began business with the court of Hanau, aided by the acquaintance with General von Estorff. On the 21th of September 1769 he could put the badge bearing the arms of Hesse-Hanau, and the inscription "MA Rothschild, purveyor of His Illustrious Highness, Crown Prince Wilhelm of Hesse, Count of Hanau" in front of his shop.

William of Hanau was a merchant of human flesh. For a price on the head of every fallen soldier, the Prince let his troops to another country. His best customer was the British government, which needed the troops for the war against the American colonists.

He earned exceptionally well with his "rent-a-troop-business". When he died, he left the largest fortune ever accumulated in Europe at that time, $200,000,000. Rothschild biographer Frederic Morton describes William as "Europe's most blue-cold blooded loan shark" (The Rothschilds, Fawcett Crest, 1961, p. 40).

Rothschild was a broker for these human cattle-dealer. He must have been working diligently in his new position because when William was forced to flee from Napoleon to Denmark, he left 600 000 pounds (then worth $3,000,000) with Rothschild for safekeeping.

Rothschild made plans for the creation of the Illuminati Order and entrusted Adam Weishaupt with the organization and development. Weishaupt was professor of canon law and practical philosophy at the University of Ingolstadt. Adam Weishaupt (1748-1830), founded on 1st May 1776 with two of his students the Federation of Perfectionist (from the Latin perfectibilis: capable to reach perfection). The Order existed officially only a short time because under the rulership of Karl Theodor of Bavaria, Illuminati and Freemasons were banned as traitorous and hostile to religion and their organizations forbidden. In house raids, several papers were seized of the Order, which provided evidence of its radical goals. An even tougher ban edict followed on the 16th August, 1787, which placed the recruitment of members for Freemasons and Illuminati punishable by death!

Well, it would be interesting to know what was found in these papers! The Illuminati is really the most mysterious order which ever was founded. It existed officially only 11 years, but until today one gets the wildest rumours about it. Besides these papers, of which we know nothing, other papers were found only twice: once secret documents were discovered by French authorities when a courier carrying them was killed by lightning. The order was consequently persecuted in France as well and hid itself in the local Masonic lodges. End of the 19th Century the "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" were released by a Russian officer (probably one of the reasons Russia did not join the League of Nations) which Hitler incorporated later into his "Mein Kampf". These papers are officially censored, confiscated and difficult to find. We hear only that they were forged. It is said that these protocols reveal the secret plan of the Kabbalists / Illuminati to gain world control.

Sir Walter Scott states in the second volume of his book 'Life of Napoleon', that the French Revolution was planned by the Illuminati and financed by the money changers of Europe. Interestingly, above mentioned book is the only book written by Scott, which cannot be found under his name in any of the "authoritative" reference works.

Small indication that the Illuminati still exist and hold the reins: Their symbol of the owl of Minerva on the $1 bill.

Back to Rothschild:

For an account of what happened after the escape of Prince William, we look into the Jewish Encyclopaedia, 1905 edition, volume 10, p. 494:

> According to legend, these [the 600,000 pounds] were hidden away in wine-casks, and, escaping the search of Napoleon's soldiers when they entered Frankfurt, were restored intact in the same casks in 1814, when the elector returned to his electorate (see Marbot, "Memoirs," 1891, i. 310-311). The facts are somewhat less romantic, and more businesslike. Rothschild, so far from being in danger, was on such good terms with Napoleon's nominee, Prince Dalberg that he had been made in 1810 a member of the Electoral College of Darmstadt. The elector's money had been sent to Nathan in London, who in 1808 utilized it to purchase £800,000 worth of gold from the East India Company, knowing that it would be needed for Wellington's peninsular campaign. He made no less than four profits on this: (1) on the sale of Wellington's paper, (2) on the sale of the gold to Wellington, (3) on its repurchase, and (4) on forwarding it to Portugal. This was the beginning of the great fortunes of the house.

Pay attention to the word "businesslike"! It is very meaningful! Here the leading Jewish authority states that what Rothschild actually did with the $3,000,000 was "more businesslike", from a Jewish point of view, than what was reported in the legend!

The simple truth is that Rothschild had embezzled the money! And even before that the money was not 'kosher', as this large sum was paid by the British government to William for the services of his soldiers and should have been paid as wages and to the widows and orphans. So it was blood money that was embezzled twice! With this money as a solid foundation, Mayer Amschel Rothschild decided to expand his operations considerably - and became the first international banker of modern times.

Pay also attention to the words "great fortune"! Yes, the Jewish Encyclopaedia describes it as "very fortunate" what was built on the basis of the "businesslike" method of fraud!

With the huge amount of illegal profits, the family established offices in Berlin, Vienna, Paris and Naples: Amschel in the Berlin branch; Salomon in the Vienna branch; Jacob (James) went to Paris and Kalman (Charles) opened the Rothschild Bank in Naples. The headquarters of the House of Rothschild was in London and is still today.

An anonymous contemporary described Nathan Rothschild while he was leaning against the "Rothschild pillar" in the London Stock Exchange, the heavy hands in his pockets: "The eyes are usually called the windows to the soul. But in Rothschild's case you come to the conclusion, that the windows are a sham or that there is no soul to look out of them. There is not a spark of light coming from the inside."

Rothschild learned the value of fast and more reliable information from Thurn und Taxis and set up his own courier service. Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo paid millions in profits at the London Stock Exchange because Nathan Rothschild was informed hours before the government of Wellington's victory and could therefore speculate accordingly. After the rumour was spread that the British had lost the battle, the shares plummeted and Nathan could buy them for pennies. A little later came the news of Wellington's victory, and the value of the shares and Rothschild's assets multiplied twenty times.

Mayer Amschel wrote his will a few days before his death. It included stringent regulations for the family and its businesses:

- All key positions should be filled with family members.
- Only male family members may participate in business transactions.
- The eldest son of the eldest son should be head of the family, as long as the majority of the family does not decide otherwise.
- The family should marry among each other with their cousins of the first and second degree.
- There should be no legal inventory and no publication of the assets.

We ask ourselves: When Mayer Amschel was not a Kabbalist and did not believe in reincarnation, would this will make any sense?

Biographer Frederic Morton tells us that Mayer Amschel Rothschild and his five sons were 'Wizards of finance' and were 'diabolical calculators', motivated by a "demonic drive" in their secret undertakings.

In the decades after Mayer Amschel's death, the now ennobled Rothschilds became the leading bankers of Europe. Their courier service expanded into an espionage network. They placed their agents strategically in all major towns and trading centres of Europe and were always ahead of their business partners. Instead of the common and sometimes risky money transport, they created a worldwide system of debits and credits. Many 'achievements' of the modern banking go to their account. The most important thing was that they had gained de facto control over the Bank of England. Nathan Rothschild said:

> I do not care about what puppet is placed on the throne of England, to rule this Empire on which the sun never sets. The man who controls Britain's money supply, controles the British Empire, and I do control the British money supply!

After the defeat of Waterloo, the French recovered slowly financially. In 1817 they negotiated a major loan from the prestigious French banking house of Ouvrard and the well-known bankers Baring Brothers. The Rothschilds have been left out.

The following year the French government took another loan. The Rothschild brothers tried most of their tricks from their vast repertoire in order to influence the French government to give them the business, but their efforts were in vain. The proud French aristocrats saw in the Rothschilds just peasants and upstarts. The fact that the Rothschilds had vast financial resources, were living in the most luxurious homes and were dressed in the most elegant and expensive clothes, meant nothing to the French nobility. But something had been overlooked by the aristocracy: Rothschild's unprecedented cunning in the use and handling of money!

On the 5th November 1818 something unexpected happened. After a year of steady appreciation in the value of French government bonds, the value started to decline. With each passing day the decline in value was more pronounced. Within a short time, other securities of the Government began a downward slide.

The atmosphere at the court of Louis XVIII was tense. Grim-looking aristocrats pondered on the fate of the country. They hoped for the best but feared the worst! The only people who did not look concerned were James and Karl Rothschild. They smiled - but said nothing!

Slowly rose a suspicion in the minds of some viewers. Could the Rothschild brothers be the cause of the disaster? Had they secretly manipulated the money market and caused the panic?

They had! In October 1818 Rothschild's servants, equipped by their masters with boundless reserves, bought up large amounts of French government bonds issued through their rivals Ouvrard and Baring. This led to an increase in value of the bonds. Then, on the 5th of November, they began to throw huge amounts of the bonds on the open market and the market went into a panic.

Suddenly the scene changed in the palace! The Rothschilds had gained control over France!

Benjamin Disraeli, former Prime Minister of Britain, wrote a book in which he described the Rothschild family: "Nathan and his brothers were the masters of the money market in the world, and of course therefore also lord and master of everything else! The finances of Southern Italy were in their hands, and kings and ministers from all countries sought their advice and were guided by their suggestions."

The two incidents in England and France are just two examples of the many "coups" which they did over the years. However, slowly they changed their tactics. Instead of conducting the business themselves, they disappeared from the limelight and pulled their strings behind the curtains. Therefore, some believe it would be very little left of the great legend. And the Rothschilds are also pleased that silence is their public relation. Although they have numerous companies, none of them wears their name, with a few exceptions as camouflage.

The Rothschilds operate mainly out of an area in the heart of London's financial district, also known as 'The City' or the 'Square Mile.' All major British banks have their offices here, along with 385 foreign banks, including 70 of the United States alone. Here is the Bank of England, the Stock Exchange, Lloyd's of London, Baltic Exchange, Fleet Street, London Commodity Exchange, London Metal Exchange and others. It is virtually the financial hub of the world. Known as the "richest square mile on earth", it enjoys special privileges and a certain independence since 1191. In 1215 the inhabitants of this area received a charter from King John, in which the right was given to appoint annually a mayor, known as Lord Mayor, a tradition that persists up to this day. The 'City' has its own police force of 2,000 police officers, its own court and its own flag.

How far the autonomy of the 'City' really goes, and how much force it exerts on the policy of the UK, is debatable. Nevertheless I must note the following:

There are two other districts with a similar status: the Vatican and the District of Columbia in Washington, which got its special status in 1871, and which is housing, amongst others, the White House, the Capitol, the World Bank and International Monetary Fund. Taken together, these three districts that stretch over an area of only a few square kilometres, are the absolute superpower financially, military and religious!

The Banksters

If the American people ever give private banks the control over the issue of money, the banks and corporations, which grow around them will, first by inflation and then by deflation, deprive the people of all their property, until their children wake up homeless on the continent their fathers conquered. [Thomas Jefferson (1743 - 1826), U.S. Founding Father]

It would be naive to believe that a family as ambitious as the Rothschilds could resist the temptation to expand into America. After they had practically won control over Europe, including the Vatican but with the exception of Russia, their eye fell on the most valuable jewel of them all, the United States.

America was unique in modern history. It was the second nation on earth, which was founded with the Bible as a law book. Its unique constitution was designed to limit the power of the government and to keep its citizen free and prosperous (but with a few exceptions: blacks were still enslaved, Indians were shot down in the thousands).

The result was that the U.S. were attracting people from all over the world, for whom America was the Promised Land. The bankers in Europe, however - the Rothschilds and their cohorts - saw the development with different eyes. For them America was a threat to their future plans. The 'Times of London' said:

> If this vicious financial policy, which originated in America (constitutionally guaranteed money with no debt), solidifies, then this government will make its own money for free and will pay its debt and will be without debt. It will be wealthy without precedent in the history of the civilized world and all the talents and the wealth of all countries will go to America. This government must be destroyed or it will destroy all the kingdoms of the world.

The Rothschilds and their friends (we want to call them 'Banksters': banker + gangster because the term Illuminati is too worn out) sent their termites to conquer America. They established two banks: JP Morgan and Kuhn & Loeb. The first attempt to establish a central bank failed due to the opposition of President Jackson, and the "Bank of the United States" was closed again. Meanwhile the Banksters bought through their branches half America: The steel industry was theirs to 70% (Carnegie), the railway network to 30% (Harriman), phone companies (ATT, ITT), General Electric, General Motors, Du Pont, press, film studios etc. .

Jacob Schiff, an old neighbour of the Rothschilds from Frankfurt, who had good connections to Europe, to Warburg among others, became the chairman of Kuhn & Loeb. Through this Schiff-Warburg connection infiltrated capital of Rothschild enabled John D. Rockefeller to build up his Standard Oil Empire.

In the American civil war the Banksters financed both sides with interest rates of 24% - 36%! President Abraham Lincoln, who wanted to stop this by giving interest-free government loans, was shot.

Rothschild gave key positions in his British East India Company to the most influential American business men of that time in order to create allies, for example Samuel Russell, who largely organized the smuggling of opium to China and brutally broke the resistance of the Chinese. William Huntington Russell founded later the Russell Trust at Yale University in 1832, also known as 'Skull & Bones', an offshoot of the Illuminati as they say. Many members of Skull & Bones, like the Bush family, keep important positions in politics, intelligence, military, administration, media and economy.

In 1907 Jacob Schiff, head of Rothschild's bank Kuhn & Loeb, gave a speech before the New York Chamber of Commerce and warned that without a central bank with sufficient control over credit resources, the country would inevitably suffer a severe financial crisis with far-reaching consequences.

A little later, the U.S. actually slid into a financial crisis, which had all the signs of a "Rothschild job". Thousands of people lost their livelihood. Paul Warburg then made the suggestion: "Let us build a national clearinghouse! The Aldrich Plan (establishing a central bank) contains fundamental rules of banking, our goal should be the same ..."

And the congressmen could be convinced! The Federal Reserve System was established and Paul Warburg became its first chairman! That was the end of America's freedom ... forever!

Congressman Charles Lindbergh spoke bitterly the truth, as the 'Federal' Reserve Act was passed by the Congress: "If President Wilson ratifies the bill, the invisible government based on power of money will be legalized! The greatest crime of all time is done by this bill!"

Even President Wilson remarked later regretfully:

> I am a deeply unhappy man. I ruined accidentally my country. A great hardworking nation is controlled by its system of credit. Our system of credit is concentrated and therefore in the hands of a few men! We have become one of the worst and most controlled governments in modern history. No longer a government by free opinion, no longer a Government by conviction and elected by the majority, but a government dominated by the opinion and duress of a few men.

A documented statement to mark the founding of the international banking alliance in 1913 in Paris has it all:

> The hour has come for the high finance to dictate publicly its laws to the world as it has done in secret ... The high finance is called as the successor of the empires and kingdoms, with an authority, which does not cover only one country but the whole world!

Now, while Max and Felix Warburg gave the Germans credits in the First World War through the Reichsbank founded by Rothschild, so did on the other side of the Atlantic their brother Paul Warburg of the Federal Reserve. The Banksters again did not earn only by war loans, but also by their gunsmiths!

And it went on cheerfully:

The Great Depression, which began in 1929 and covered the U.S. with poverty, followed the old model: Financial Crisis -> Panic -> 'Solution'!

Congressman Louis T. McFadden, Chairman of the 'House Banking Committee', said: "It was no accident! It was a carefully threaded event! The international bankers wanted to create a state of despair in order to emerge as ruler over us all!" He delivered a fiery speech before the Congress and accused the Banksters. A short time later, he died under mysterious circumstances on food poisoning and heart attack.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Freemason of the 'Holland Lodge' and 'Honorary Grand Master of the Order of DeMolay" (DeMolay, we remember: the Templars), asked the Congress to change the legislation so that the people were forced to exchange their gold into paper money, under penalty of a ten-year prison sentence!

The bill was passed and people were forced to leave their gold and exchange it for "greenbacks". They got $20.67 per ounce of gold. That sounded fair in the beginning, but only a short time later the government raised the price per ounce of gold to U.S. $35.00. All in all had the Banksters deprived the American people of 3 billion dollars! Senator Carter Glass was asked about his opinion about the incident and he replied: "President Roosevelt, I think that's worse than anything that Ali Baba's Forty Thieves could have accomplished!"

UNDER EXECUTIVE ORDER OF THE PRESIDENT

Issued April 5, 1933

all persons are required to deliver

ON OR BEFORE MAY 1, 1933

all GOLD COIN, GOLD BULLION, AND GOLD CERTIFICATES now owned by them to a Federal Reserve Bank, branch or agency, or to any member bank of the Federal Reserve System.

CRIMINAL PENALTIES FOR VIOLATION OF EXECUTIVE ORDER
$10,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment, or both, as provided in Section 9 of the order

Secretary of the Treasury

President Roosevelt said frankly: "The truth of the matter is, as you and I know, that a financial element in the larger centres dominated the government since the days of Andrew Jackson." And: "In politics, nothing happens by chance, if it happens, you can be sure we planned it like that!"

When Roosevelt's dollars came hot out of the press, they had two new seals on them that were never seen there before: "Novus Ordo Seclorum" ("New Order of the Ages" or "New World Order").

To explain the mechanism once again:

The central bank, of which the people generally think it would be state owned but which it is not, neither FED nor any other major central bank in the world, has special rights, which prevents on the one hand the interference of the state (sovereignty), and secondly, it has the monopoly over the issue of money. This monopoly have the banksters!

Now the following happens: the central bank lends money to the government at interest! I repeat:

The government borrows money from the central bank at interest!

This interest must be paid by the hard-working citizen! In other words:

The citizen pays interest only that he may use the money!

No, not a conspiracy theory, but 'modern' banking! The nice thing is the money costs the bank only the paper on which it is printed, nothing else! It can theoretically print as much money as it wants, and in fact does it! By printing money which is no longer backed by real value (FIAT-money) inflation is generated! Remember: Under Roosevelt, 70 years ago, one ounce of gold has cost $35, now it is around $2000! Taxes are paid directly to the FED, not to the government, to pay back the debt plus interest rate, in fact, it suffices only for the interest; it is impossible to ever pay off the debt!

In addition to charging people money for allowing them to use it, the banksters also make profit by creating inflation and tempting the people and the state to ever make more debts by manipulating the finance system like already predicted by President Jefferson: When the economy works well, the people make more debts because they believe they could easily pay them off. When there is a repression, they cannot pay anymore their debts and are forced to sell their property for cheap. And the banksters are waiting.

It is hard to imagine what it means when interest and interest on interest accumulates during the years. Imagine we would have borrowed in the year 0 only one cent to an interest rate of 10%, then we would have to pay back in the year 2015 the shocking sum of:

000000000000000000000.00 Dollars.

Fortunately, the banksters started to take over the financial system just 200 years ago, so they made on each cent “only” 189,905,275.00 profit. One should not forget that they did not really borrow the cent, they just printed it on worthless paper, and nowadays it is just a digit in a computer. Can one imagine how much power this system has already acquired?

When U.S. President Kennedy tried to nationalize this private financial system (JF Kennedy's attempt on June 4, 1963 to oust the Fed) it ended with his assassination. Whoever tried to restrict the power of the U.S. High Finance lost his property or life.

The mastery of the financial system does not only give almost unlimited power, it also encourages people to commit one of the greatest sins after Shirk, which even can result in eternal punishment of the fire:

> Those who devour usury will not stand except as stand one whom the Evil one by his touch Hath driven to madness. That is because they say: "Trade is like usury," but Allah hath permitted trade and forbidden usury. Those who after receiving direction from their Lord, desist, shall be pardoned for the past; their case is for Allah [to judge]; but those who repeat [The offence] are companions of the Fire: They will abide therein [for ever]. [Al-Baqara 275]
> O ye who believe! Fear Allah, and give up what remains of your demand for usury, if ye are indeed believers. If ye do it not, Take notice of war from Allah and His Messenger."[Al-Baqara 278-279]

Many Muslims do not realize: the use of paper money is Riba! Because it is a transaction where 'Ain' (real value) is exchanged against 'Dain' (nominal value), which is forbidden, besides that we are paying interest on it like already explained above. This is the fulfilment of Muhammad's s.a.w. prophecy, who said that in the last age the dust of Riba would be on everything.

The entire world economy is already in the hands of Dajjal, and the financial system is designed to gain total control. With the implementation of 'electronic money' every transaction can be closely monitored. It is possible to determine exactly where somebody is staying and what he is doing with his money. Next step will probably be a marker directly on the human body (maybe a chip or an invisible tattoo identification) that is scanned when shopping or at customs: "And they will make a mark, without which none can buy or sell ..." (Bible, Revelation).

Today all central banks under the umbrella of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, and only states that meet their criteria can obtain credit or participate in world trade.

The IMF provides the elites of the countries of the world with conditions that they cannot refuse, and the people are paying the bill. Between 1982 and 1990, $927 billion were given to so-called developing countries as development aid, loans, private investment, trade credits etc. During the same period, these countries paid $1345 billion for debt and interest to the First World. This number does not even include royalties, dividends and underpaid raw materials!

As a short conclusion one can say that to lend money means to reign, to repay means to be colonized. Or: "The golden rule: Who has the gold makes the rule!"

All governments, whether they be "democratic" or communist or dictators, they are all slaves of the banks! It is obvious that he who holds the money in his hands and does even produce it, has the real power and can put governments in power as he wishes. He does not care whether a government is capitalist or communist but actually has an interest in creating political systems that fight each other and thus distract the attention of the masses from the factual rulers, but also open up very beneficent revenue streams by selling arms. Not only was Karl Marx and Stalin supported, but also Adolf Hitler, who without financial aid would have never come to power.

Each of us is born as a debtor to the banks and is busy all his life to pay off his debt with compound interest (of course without a real chance to ever pay it off!) Despite this simple fact, no one gets the idea to look at the banks as oppressors, because one gets friendly service in a bank and there are no sinister military standing behind the desk holding batons in their hands. Another reason is that money became already the religion of most people: It is not God but the money that virtually omnipotent meets the wishes of the people.

As European one belongs to the 20% of humanity, which has the greatest benefit from this system. Gone are the days when in World War I our forefathers had to give their lives as cannon fodder to satisfy the profit and greed of the bankers and arms sellers. The war is now taking place somewhere else! We do not have to sell our children into prostitution, do not have to search on huge waste dumps for something valuable; do not have an average life expectancy of 42 years due to polluted environment, and must not send our children to factories where they manufacture sports shoes for starvation wages which some overfed white man uses to train away his fat belt. Thank God, it got all outsourced! So why waste a thought about it?

War Games

Wars are a basic prerequisite for the system and perform different functions:

- They are a good source of income.
- They change the power structure as desired.
- They make the people compliant.

Since the beginning of the rise of the Rothschild family, war was one of their main sources of income. It began with the 'rent-a-troop-business' of Prince William, on the financing of both Wellington and Napoleon, financing both sides of the American Revolutionary War and continues until today. Their philosophy is the Hegelian equivalent: Construct both the thesis and the antithesis and, by using the "constructed chaos", become master of the situation through the synthesis.

One promotes the dispute either of two already existing opposing parties, or, if such parties do not exist, one creates them oneself, such as communism and capitalism. By manipulating the conflict one finally achieves one's goal and the conditions that one seeks.

For the Banksters are these, besides the dominance in financial terms, mainly two things:

- Establishment of the throne of David in Jerusalem and
- World domination, the former requirement for the second.

There are two main fronts:

- The front in Europe and America. They use these states as tools because they are the most powerful in the world. With them under control, the rest of the world is not a major problem. The necessary puppets are getting a brainwashing in certain Masonic lodges, which they dominate.
- The front in Palestine to establish the throne of David. To 'liberate Palestine' and the establishment of Israel, it was first necessary to destroy the Ottoman Empire, in particular the Caliphate, to make the Muslims leaderless.

They began an ingenious intrigue.

Phase I (9 million deaths)

They weakened the Ottoman Empire from within, by supporting the Young Turks under Kemal Ataturk and introducing the banking system there, as well as externally, by inciting the Arabs to revolt. Here they both supported Hussein ibn Ali (1853-1931), King of Hejaz, and Abdul Aziz ibn Saud. Lawrence of Arabia was on the side of Hussein and Philby on the side of ibn Saud to ensure that whoever emerged as the winner out of the conflict on the Arabian Peninsula remained under control of the British. Ibn Saud got 5000 pounds per month and was thus 'employed' by the British. The Ottoman Empire on the other hand got a lot of technical assistance from the Deutsche Reich.

On 28 June 1914 the Austro-Hungarian Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife were assassinated in Sarajevo. The track was laid to Serbia. The First World War began on 28 July 1914 with Austria-Hungary declaring war on Serbia. On the 30th July Russia ordered a general mobilization in support of Serbia. The German Empire then on 1st August declared, as an ally of Austria-Hungary, war on Russia. On the evening of the same day Russian cavalry divisions crossed the East Prussian border. The subsequent declarations of war enabled a series of alliances, which led shortly to the World War. The Central Powers, the German Empire and Austria-Hungary, fought on one side and the Entente powers, France, Great Britain, Russia and Serbia on the other side. Reluctance came from Belgium and Luxembourg as victims, in which the Germans invaded despite their neutrality, according to the Schlieffen Plan. During the war, the Central Powers were strengthened by the Ottoman Empire and Bulgaria, while Japan, Italy, Portugal, Romania and the United States entered the war on the side of the Entente.

During the First World War, the power-political contradictions of the European great powers that had led previously to a massive military build-up, erupted. At the end of the war, there were 25 states and their colonies involved, in which a total of 1.35 billion people were living or about three-quarters of the earth's population at that time. Because of the turmoil and the consequences still felt today, World War I is considered by many historians as the "seminal catastrophe of the 20th Century".

But what a nice business for the Banksters! Their plan worked out! England at the beginning of the war was inferior to the German Reich. It lost much of its fleet by German U-boat attacks. With the back to the wall, England agreed on the terms of Rothschild.

Rothschild (who shortly before had financed Cecil Rhodes in South Africa, founded the company De Beers, which dominated at that time 90% of the global rough diamond trade, exploited the local Kimberley diamond mine and thus amassed incredible wealth) promised to help, by granting financial assistance and, through his association with President Wilson and other puppets, draw the U.S. into the war, against the will of the American people. The official reason on the one hand was the sinking of the Lusitania (British passenger ship carrying ammunitions from the U.S. to England. Was sunk by a German U-boat and 124 Americans died), and the Zimmermann Telegram (in which the Germans promised Mexico regain of the old territories formerly annexed by the U.S. in case Mexico would fight on Germany's side. In the course of the US-Mexican War of 1846/48 the Americans had annexed about 40% of the Mexican territory or acquired dirt cheap (California, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Arizona)).

Foreign Office,
November 2nd, 1917.

Dear Lord Rothschild,

I have much pleasure in conveying to you, on behalf of His Majesty's Government, the following declaration of sympathy with Jewish Zionist aspirations which has been submitted to, and approved by, the Cabinet

"His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country"

I should be grateful if you would bring this declaration to the knowledge of the Zionist Federation.

Yours sincerely,
Arthur James Balfour

In the Balfour Declaration of 2nd November 1917 the former world power of Great Britain agreed to the Zionist efforts to establish in Palestine a "national home" of the Jewish people. At that time, Palestine was still under the Ottoman sphere of influence. With the help of the Arabs under Sharif Hussein's sons, Abdullah and Faisal, the capture of Beersheba took place on 31st October 1917 under the command of Allenby, and thus began the conquest of Palestine by British troops, which was eventually completed in December 1917.

The war had paid off in full:

- Huge profits through arms sales and loans!
- Destruction of the Ottoman Empire with the caliph only as a puppet (which was later dismantled by Kemal Pasha completely)!
- But most importantly: The first step towards the establishment of the State of Israel was done!

All of this was paid for with the death of 9 million people and an incredible inferno. The First World War was the first war that was fought with massive use of materials (tanks, planes, blimps) and weapons of mass destruction (poison gas). The fronts however were moving barely, especially in Western Europe, partly because modern technology was used in connection with old military strategies. Especially on the battlefields at Verdun and Flanders fell on both sides hundreds of thousands of soldiers without changing anything on the military situation. The First World War was as terror surpassing anything previously known.

Max Warburg was the chief of the German intelligence during World War II and was a financial advisor to the emperor. When the Emperor was sent into the Dutch exile after the war, Max Warburg was not sent with him into exile as one might assume. No, he became now the financial advisor to the new government!

Kings and governments come and go, but the real power remains with the banksters! At the Paris Summit, where the Treaty of Versailles was signed, Max was a representative of the German side, while his brother Paul was on the American side! Edmund Rothschild was present too. The German Empire was proclaimed as the scapegoat, bearing the costs of war. It also lost its colonies, its army and its fleet in addition to some of the Alsace area, which accounted to 13% of the kingdom.

Meanwhile, Sharif Hussein failed in its goal to establish the Hashemite dynasty throughout the Arab world. Although Faisal was crowned king of Syria and King Abdullah became Emir of Transjordan, on the Arabian Peninsula the Sauds gained supremacy and established a dynasty. Britain and France though were unwilling to give up their supremacy in the Middle East in favour of newly-formed Arab monarchies. Through the mandates of the newly formed League of Nations they secured and legitimized their influence.

Russian Revolution (14 million death)

Tsar Nicholas and his family, who had opposed Rothschild's efforts to set up the League of Nations (the forerunner of a world government) were killed and removed. Schiff, Warburg, Rockefeller and Harriman helped Trotsky financially and with military training. He was granted free passage through Germany (Max Warburg was chief of intelligence on the German side as one may remember). Rockefeller received from Woodrow Wilson a special passport for Trotsky and sent Lincoln Steffens with him, in order that he arrived safely in Russia.

The October Revolution had cost 14 million lives, more than in the entire First World War. Lenin borrowed $60 billion from Rothschild, thus Rothschild won the influence he wanted. The successor of Lenin, Stalin, drove forward with terror and an iron hand the industrialization of Russia and made communism a considerable counterweight to democracy. Planned conflicts between these two parties would be the perfect alibi for all future wars.

Meanwhile, the emigration of Jews to Palestine was slow. Kibbutz after kibbutz was founded. Initially the Arab agricultural workers were needed but now there was no longer room for them, and the Arab landowners, from which the Jews bought land, cared not about the fate of their tenants. This resulted in the establishment of an impoverished, embittered faction of Arabs who began to rebel against both the Jewish immigrants and the British Mandate. There were riots and terrorist attacks by both sides in these years.

While the Palestinian Arabs were hopelessly divided among themselves, which made them powerless against their two opponents, the Zionists created a tightly run organization, which represented almost already a Jewish government: the "Jewish Agency" under the leadership of Chaim Weizman, the later President of Israel. At the same time the powerful trade union federation Histadrut was founded, whose strong arm was the secret military organization Haganah.

Phase II (over 50 million deaths, 7 million rape cases)

In the Weimar Republic, Adolf Hitler was ready to take power. One of his main sponsors was IG Farben, which came out in 1904 from a merger of the six major chemical companies in Germany, namely Baden Aniline, Bayer, Agfa, Hoechst, Weiler-ter-Meer and Greisheim-Elektron. The guiding spirit as well as the funding came from Rothschild, who was represented by our friend Max Warburg, of M.M. Warburg Hamburg. IG Farben soon had a net worth of six billion marks and controlled 500 companies. They opened also a branch in America, the 'American IG' in cooperation with Rockefeller's Standard Oil. One of its directors was the brother of Max, Paul, who was also the director of Kuhn & Loeb.

Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands entered the SS in the early thirties. He also became a board member of IG Farben Bilder. After the war he organized the Bilderberg Group. Bilderberg-Conferences are informal meetings of very influential people from politics, economy, military, press, aristocracy and universities, who work out common strategies. The results of these meetings are secret.

In 1930, Standard Oil announced that it had purchased an alcohol monopoly in Germany, a business that was initiated by IG Farben. When Hitler came to power, John D. Rockefeller appointed him his deputy Ivy Lee to counsel him in terms of armament, an important step towards World War II. Standard Oil built large refineries for the Nazis and supplied them with oil during the Second World War.

Here one may ask, why Jewish industrialists support a megalomaniac anti-Semite like Hitler?

Also Prescott Bush, grandfather of George W. Bush, made with some other 'Bonesmen' business with the Nazis even during the embargo against the German Reichsbank. This is seen as evidence of the intertwining of 'Skull & Bones' with totalitarian organizations in Germany. In the early 30's, even before the takeover, the U.S. Embassy had cabled to Washington questions about the financial background of Hitler's elaborate election campaign and the arming of his private army of 300,000 brownshirts. The staff had noticed that the SA was equipped with weapons produced in the U.S.

The German steel magnate Fritz Thyssen later admitted that he had invested in the Hitler project since 1930 - its asset managers and bankers at this time: Bush and Harriman. On 20th October 1942, under the 'Trading with the Enemy Act", were the assets of the Union Banking Corporation (UBC) managed by Prescott Bush confiscated. Prescott Bush engaged the lawyer Allen Dulles in June 1936 to lay aside profits from these transactions.

In the night of the 28th February 1933 an arson attack on the Reichstag building in Berlin was committed. Arrested at the scene was Marinus van der Lubbe. However, the circumstances could not be clarified, especially if Marinus was guilty is still subject to controversy. Undeniably are the political consequences. Already on 28th February, the Decree of the Reich President for the Protection of People and State (Reichstag Fire Decree) was adopted. (Does this remind to 9/11 and the Patriot Act?) The fundamental rights of the Weimar Constitution were virtually abolished, and the way was paved for the legalized persecution of the political opponents of NSDAP and SA by the police.

Goering said: "This is the beginning of the communist insurgency, they will strike now! We must act immediately!"

Hitler said after this report:

> There is no mercy anymore! Whoever stands in our way will be crushed. The German people will have no sympathy for clemency. Every Communist official will be shot, wherever he is found. The Communist deputies must be hanged this very night. Everything must be imprisoned, which is in alliance with the Communists. Also Social Democrats and Reichsbanner will not be spared anymore.

Henry Stimson graduated from Yale University in 1888 where he belonged to the fraternity 'Skull & Bones'. He was also foreign minister and defence minister of the United States. Ten days before the attack on Pearl Harbour, he made in his diary the much discussed remark that he had discussed with Truman how to make the Japanese fire the first shot, without taking a great risk so that Japan appeared as the aggressor. He also advised Truman later on the use of the nuclear bomb.

As early as 1932 and 1938 the Pearl Harbour base had twice been "hijacked" in naval exercises - one with 152 aircrafts - and was each time completely overburdened with the defence. Therefore it was regarded as a particularly vulnerable naval base. When Roosevelt ordered to move the fleet from the West Coast to Pearl Harbour, Admiral Richardson protested against it and eventually refused to execute the command. He was replaced by Admiral Kimmel - who was brought before a committee of inquiry after the Japanese attack on charges of negligence. He was acquitted when it became known that he had been deprived of 188 decoded Japanese messages, which revealed the impending attack, including the date and time!

Dutch, British and Russian intelligence services had additionally warned of an impending attack - but their messages too had been detained by the intelligence agencies in Washington. When two of the most respected historians in the U.S. - the professors Charles Beard and Harry Elmer Barnes - rejected the official government version, they were denounced as crackpots and lunatics and removed. The "surprise attack" has since become part of any Lexicon (see also Harry Elmer Barnes: Pearl Harbour after a Quarter of a Century).

The American public was persuaded to enter the war by the attack on Pearl Harbour. WWII culminated in the unprecedented destruction of civilian targets by nuclear bombs.

On 28th May 1945 President Truman got news from Harry Hopkins, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, that Soviet troops had taken battle position against Japan in Manchuria. Japan knew that it has lost. However, since Japan's government would not surrender unconditionally, Stalin had proposed to accept a Japanese peace offer and then enforce their own goals through joint occupation and administration of Japan. His message remained unheeded.

The United States Air Force was convinced of the debilitating effects of their attacks and believed that the regime could only hope for favourable terms of peace while maintaining state sovereignty. Therefore the annual report of the strategic bomber fleet pointed to the fact that if conventional air attacks continued unabated, Japan's surrender would be likely due till December 1945.

On 9th July, the Japanese Ambassador Sato Naotake had asked in Moscow already for peace negotiations. The Russian Foreign Minister Molotov should bring this request to the participants of the upcoming Potsdam Conference (17th July - 2nd August 1945). The United States knew about it on the 13th July 1945.

On 16th July 1945 Truman was told in Berlin at the start of the Potsdam conference of the first successful detonation of an atomic bomb near Alamogordo in the desert in the U.S. state of New Mexico (Trinity test). The second bomb Little Boy was shipped at the same time to the island of Tinian in the Pacific where it should be made ready immediately for testing.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower later said the decision to use the two atomic bombs was already been made on the 16th July. He recommended Truman not to use it because the Japanese had already signalled willingness to surrender and the United States should not use such weapons first.

On 26th July 1945 Truman announced on behalf of the United States, the Republic of China under Chiang Kai-shek and the United Kingdom the Potsdam Declaration, calling the Japanese government to immediate and unconditional surrender. This was not agreed with the Soviet Union! Molotov had unsuccessfully asked the United States to hold back the ultimatum a few days until his government had cancelled its non-aggression pact with Japan. But the entry of the Soviet Union was now undesirable for the U.S. government. The statement went out:

The full application of our military power, coupled with our determination means the inevitable and complete destruction of the Japanese armed forces and the devastation of the Japanese homeland.

They would occupy Japan completely, eradicate its leadership and introduce democracy, punish the war criminals, demand reparations and limit Japan's region to the four main islands. The Japanese industry would be retained and later allowed to participate in world trade again.

"We call upon the government of Japan to proclaim now the unconditional surrender of all Japanese armed forces, and to provide proper and adequate assurances of their good faith in such action. The alternative for Japan is prompt and utter destruction."

Any specific reference to the planned use of a new weapon and its target was missing. Since the U.S. invasion of the Japanese main islands would not begin until three months later, the Japanese government had to assume that this would be the usual ritual to demoralize the Japanese, not an actual warning. At that time they were still hoping that Stalin would move the Western Allies to an acceptance of the already launched peace initiative. Particularly the loss of so much territory seemed unacceptable. Therefore the response of General Kantaro Suzuki was such: "The government does not find anything of significant value in the joint statement and sees no other option than to ignore it completely, and decided to work towards the successful outcome of the war."

A positive response had not been expected anyway, so that the deployment order was already made before the ultimatum! The result is known…

To come back again to the question of why Jewish industrialists supported megalomaniac anti-Semite like Hitler:

There are various theories and reports. One theory presented by Arthur Koestler, himself a Jew and Zionist, states that most European Jews are descendants from the Khazars, a Turkic people, who adopted Judaism in the 8th Century. Therefore they were converts and did not belong to the original 12 tribes of Israel. He called his book "The 13th Tribe". The view of Koestler is also shared by Benjamin Freedman, another Jewish scholar, who published his views in the book 'Facts are facts' in 1954.

One thing is quite sure: Many Jews got special treatment! For example, there is the memorandum of Horst Hoyer, a former SS lieutenant general, who claimed that the Nazis had indeed differentiated between the Jews. Many had been flown out from Germany and many would have get special treatment, e.g. a relative of Henry Morgenthau was later flown from Lublin via neutral Spain to America. Hoyer was offered 30.000 Mark in order to denounce his report as an imagination, but Hoyer declined. Shortly afterwards he was murdered, his wife committed suicide.

It is also known that many Nazis themselves had Jewish blood, for example the butcher Adolf Eichmann and Reinhard Heydrich. Even Himmler's grandfather was said to be a Jew just as Adolf Hitler's great-grandfather.

Certain is that in the thirties 60% of the Jews were married with Germans. The Jews were well integrated in Germany, had considerable property and academic titles. That's why they were very badly motivated to immigrate into a country that, in comparison to Germany, was barren and inhabited and surrounded by hostile Arabs. The longing for a homeland for the Jewish people was at the lowest to say the least.

But this of course changed dramatically under Hitler!

The consciousness to be one's own race that were hated and pursued not only in Germany, generated a strong desire to have one's own land.

Consequently, the rate of emigration to Israel rose very sharply, and no longer a predominantly rural population mostly from Russia, Africa and Arab States, but an educated middle class from Europe.

Any protest against Israel and its policies, even if Israel violates as many UN resolutions as it wishes, as well as any suspicion against a Zionist international financial cartel, can always be put down with the slogan "anti-Semitism" and even with criminal prosecution.

The existence of Israel was internationally recognized in 1948 and the expulsion of the Palestinian population accepted as a necessary step towards a greater good.

Unquestioning loyalty, especially from Germany and the USA, paid off and still pay off also in noticeable reparation payments and weapon exports.

In the second half of the 20th Century, following the old scheme, conflicts were promoted or generated, serving both as sources of income as well as a regulative for the distribution of power. Proxy regimes were promoted and then dropped again.

Vietnam (3 million deaths, 7 million injured, mainly by Agent Orange)

An outstanding example is Vietnam, where again a reason for war was sought and found: The reason for the open U.S. commitment was the fake incident of Tonkin in August 1964, where a U.S. warship allegedly got involved in a battle with North Vietnamese patrol boats. This served the Johnson administration as an opportunity to persuade the U.S. Congress to legitimize an open intervention.

Second Gulf War (100,000 dead)

The Gulf War against Saddam, the "reincarnation of Hitler," followed the same pattern. First he was build up against Iran, then forcibly disarmed but kept installed as a geopolitical pawn to guarantee the influence of the "mob" on the Middle East (and the oil price)? Was Khomeini allowed to install from Paris, under the eyes of all western secret services, the first radical Islamic state because they did not know his ideology - or was it because the Shah did not want to slow down voluntarily the production of the Persian oil fields? Are not all militant “Islamic thugs" of similar, homemade calibre?

Of course, the mobilization of Saddam's troops had been registered weeks before. That an invasion of Kuwait was imminent was obvious, after Kuwait was equipped with a drilling technique that allowed to drill sideways and to tap Iraq's oil ... but here again it was intended to invite Saddam to the "first shot". Otherwise one would have in the subsequent bombing of Iraq (100,000 dead) at the end appeared as the aggressor - and instead of a faithful shepherd dog of "civilization" as an aggressive pit bull of one's own power and oil interests - like without Pearl Harbour, Hiroshima and Nagasaki would not have passed as defence of civilization, but as a murderous terrorist attack and weapon testing.

The U.S. took the opportunity to bluff Saudi Arabia: The Americans showed the Saudis, most probably fake, satellite photos of major troop concentrations in Kuwait along the Saudi border. The Saudis could be cajoled to "Operation Desert Shield" - and still have the American troops in the country.

Economic sanctions were following the war immediately. Iraq was allowed to import certain products under the oil-for-food program. UNICEF reported in 1998 that the sanctions were responsible for an increase of 90,000 deaths per year (IAC), mostly young children and babies.

Afghanistan

The 'Revolutionary Association of the Women of Afghanistan' (RAWA), which was for a long time in opposition to the Taliban Regime, underlined in a statement the fact "that people in Afghanistan have nothing to do with Osama and his accomplices. But unfortunately we have to realize that it was the government of the United States who supported Pakistani dictator Gen. Zia ul-Haq in opening up thousands of religious schools, which laid the seeds for the development of the Taliban. In a similar way Osama was, as everyone knows, the blue-eyed boy of the CIA."

Now, one might feel, a statement of a feminist, probably left-wing cell, is not sufficient as evidence for the active U.S. role in the breeding of new assassins - but it looks much different with the source published by Yale University Press in spring of 2000: "Taliban: Militant Islam, Oil and Fundamentalism in Central Asia". The author, Ahmed Rashid, is a senior correspondent for the Far Eastern Economic Review and the (conservative) Daily Telegraph in London and a renowned expert of the region. He leaves no doubt that it was the Americans that promoted the breeding places of the new assassins in Pakistan and Afghanistan and supported them massively.

In 1986, according to Rashid, CIA Director Casey intensified the war against the Soviet Union with three measures: He persuaded the Congress to equip the Afghan mujahedeen with Stinger missiles and to educate and support them for the guerrilla war. In collaboration with the Pakistani Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI) and the British MI6 it was also planned to confuse the neighbouring Soviet republics of Uzbekistan and Tajikistan with "Islamic" terror attacks. Third, the CIA supported now the efforts of ISI to acquire fighters in other Islamic countries for the holy war and to build up a network of camps and "religious schools" for ideological and military training:

Between 1982 and 1992 35,000 radical Muslims from 43 Islamic countries received their baptism of fire with the Afghan Mujahidin. Tens of thousands more came to one of the hundreds of madrassas that Zia's military regime had opened in Pakistan and along the border. Overall, more than 100,000 Muslim radicals came in contact with the Jihad in Afghanistan and Pakistan (...) In camps near Peshawar and in Afghanistan, these radicals met for the first time and learned and practiced together. In the future, these camps became virtual universities for future Islamic radicalism."

Ukraine

If one follows the version of the Western media, the invasion of Ukraine was a violation of international law and Putin is the evil expansionist. If one follows the Russian version, the invasion was self-defence against the aggressive eastward expansion of NATO. America had also threatened in the 1960s that if the Soviet Union stationed nuclear missiles in Cuba, it would be the beginning of World War III. Ukraine as a NATO member with nuclear weapons would be the equivalent and quasi checkmate.

Moreover, the Russian population in eastern Ukraine was harassed, to what extent exactly is difficult to say. But it is very reminiscent of what happened before the Second World War, when the German population in Poland was harassed and probably also massacred, for which there are still enough testimonies despite the purge of "Nazi literature" and the re-education of the Germans after the war. Bramberg Bloody Sunday, two days after the start of the war, was the climax and conclusion of these massacres.

The unconditional guarantee given to the Poles by England and France in March 1939 that they would go to war on Poland's side in the event of an armed conflict virtually encouraged the Poles to commit provocations against Germans in their sphere of influence and against the German Reich. Polish Marshal Rydz-Smiglj declared in the summer of 1939: "Poland wants war with Germany, and Germany will not be able to avoid it even if she wanted to."

Angela Merkel had openly admitted that the Minsk Agreement only served to buy time for Ukraine to rearm. A real peace and compromise with Russia was never wanted, and a Russian invasion virtually inevitable. Obvious strategy of the West here: Draw Russia into a proxy war and, in combination with sanctions, bleed it dry.

But the real target is China, and Russia only the first step in taking China's support. Western hegemony is eroding at a rapid pace, and only a major war can help America retain its dominance.

But behind all these power games is again Dajjal, who dominates both sides of the conflict in his usual way. That is why the population control measures in the West are the same as in Russia and China: digital money and ID, biometrics, covid vaccinations, carbon footprints, artificial intelligence and so on....

At the moment, the stage seems to be set for the Ukraine conflict to slowly but surely develop into the Third World War that will eventually bring about world government. A small indication here is the numerology which is significant for Kabbalists:

- 1st World War 28.07.1914 - 28+07+19+14=68
- 2nd World War 01.09.1939 - 09+01+19+39=68
- Ukraine 24.02.2022 - 24+02+20+22=68

The chances of the above three dates summing up to 68 accidently are 1 to more than 20.000.

> God will arise, his enemies will be scattered, and those who hate him will flee from his presence. As smoke is driven asunder, so will you drive (them) apart; as wax melts before the fire, so will the wicked perish before the face of God. (Psalm 68)

Middle East conflict

The Psalm above also fits well with the current escalation of the Middle East conflict due to the "surprise" attack by Hamas. Slaughter of civilians is not justifiable under any Islamic circumstances. Which raises the question of what and who is really behind it and whether everything happened as described by the IDF.

The fact is: it is highly unlikely that 1000 Hamas fighters could enter Israel and launch thousands of rockets without Mossad getting wind of it! We were told that they were completely surprised. Even on the 50th anniversary of the last massive attack on Israel, the Yom Kippur War on 7 October 1973, they were not prepared for an attack by their arch enemy? They left their border unguarded and unprotected, and it was breached at 29 different points, including right next to an international music festival where (left-liberal) tourists from other countries were partying literally just metres from the dangerous Gaza border. The 64-kilometre barrier around Gaza consists of an underground wall equipped with sensors to prevent tunneling and a 6-metre-high fence with sensors, radar, cameras and automatic weapons systems linked to a command and manned by soldiers.

"As a former intelligence officer, I find it impossible to believe that Israel did not have multiple informants in Gaza and electronic listening devices along the border wall that could have recorded movements of groups and vehicles." Philip Giraldi, 8 October 2023

But not only did the Israelis apparently sleep through the attack, taking eight long hours to arrive with their army, but they also ignored warnings: Three days before Hamas launched a major attack on Israel, Egyptian authorities warned their counterparts in Tel Aviv that such an operation was imminent, US House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Michael McCaul told reporters on Wednesday. "We know that Egypt warned the Israelis three days earlier that such an event could occur," McCaul said after an intelligence briefing on Capitol Hill. But that was not all: two-thirds of the troops normally stationed near Gaza had been withdrawn to guard a festival on the West Bank! All this despite the fact that, according to CNN, Hamas trained its fighters for a year and a half for this operation. It built six training camps in Gaza and shot promotional videos there. Videos of these training sessions were released weeks before the attack.

In this connection, a letter said to have been sent by General Albert Pike, a 33 degree Mason, to the Italian Mazzini, also a 33 degree Mason, is interesting. To this day there is no conclusive evidence that this letter was ever written by Pike, but we can only marvel at how accurately it predicted the events that seem to be occurring at the moment.

The Third World War must be fomented by taking advantage of the differences caused by the 'agentur' of the 'Illuminati' between the political Zionists and the leaders of Islamic World. The war must be conducted in such a way that Islam (the Moslem Arabic World) and political Zionism (the State of Israel) mutually destroy each other. Meanwhile the other nations, once more divided on this issue will be constrained to fight to the point of complete physical, moral, spiritual and economical. We shall unleash the Nihilists and the atheists, and we shall provoke a formidable social cataclysm which in all its horror will show clearly to the nations the effect of absolute atheism, origin of savagery and of the most bloody turmoil. Then everywhere, the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the world minority of revolutionaries, will exterminate those destroyers of civilization, and the multitude, disillusioned with Christianity, whose deistic spirits will from that moment be without compass or direction, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally out in the public view. This manifestation will result from the general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time.

Now that the United States has fully bought into the war against Hamas, with President Biden calling Hamas "pure, unadulterated evil", we can feel that the door has been opened for something bigger, even more terrible. There are still other actors behind the whole scenario! Israel is not a centre of Jewish power. On the contrary, it has used Jewish culture, Jewish faith and Jewish people to push through the plans of a group of corrupt oligarchs who want war with Iran and eventually with Russia and China to reshape human society.

Terrorism

Now that we have seen that there was rarely a war in world history where the reason for war was not faked, let's look at the incident of 11th September 2001, which had all the credentials of a Hollywood action movie.

Every detective knows that he must ask himself, who had a motive in the crime and knock off all the suspects accordingly. So who could have a motive?

- Terrorists
- The government itself or the banksters

Officially it was claimed that Osama bin Laden was the instigator. The mind is under normal circumstances in the position to check and weigh the alternatives, but in times of crisis, this validation mechanism seems to fail. Five minutes after the attack, the world public got focused on "Bin Laden", in the search for order, structure and logic in sight of this senseless, horrific disaster.

Now let us take a look at the evidences that Osama was the mastermind of 9 / 11:

- 19 Arabic names on the flight lists. Later it turns out that at least seven of them are still alive and in good health in Saudi Arabia.
- The perpetrators left Arab flight documents and a Koran in a car and were observed during exiting by a witness. Every Muslim, especially in his last "holy" mission, would most probably take the Koran with him, and no hard-nosed, trained top agent leaves flight documents in an empty car, unless he wants to lay a trail. Surprisingly enough, the suicide pilot with one-way ticket has baggage, not only hand luggage, which he checks in but which, what a chance, got stuck and did not get on the plane and which, how fortunately, contains the prayer and instruction script. Ask yourself: If the suicide pilot, who is presented to us by the FBI and CNN, wanted to leave a sign of his "heroism", why did he check in the bag and did not just leave it in the hall? If the script in the bag contained instructions for the last few minutes, then why was it not in the hand luggage?
- Then it was claimed that the terrorist pilots had previously taken Cessna flight hours, but the flight instructor said they had been lousy students and it would be completely inexplicable to him how these people could ever have flown the planes into their targets!

- The passport of an alleged terrorist pilot was found next to the destroyed WTC, miraculously almost completely unharmed.
- The "pious" and "professional" suicide bombers leave another Koran in a bar in Florida, where they allegedly got drunk, amused themselves with prostitutes and boasted with the assassination. Quite bumbling assassins it appears!
- And of course we have several video tapes, on which Osama and Zawahiri take the blame of the attacks on themselves.

To all these so-called 'evidences' says Rex Tomb, 'Chief of Investigative Publicity for the FBI' on 06/05/2006: "The FBI has no clear evidence that bring Osama bin Laden in connection with the 9 / 11 attacks!" If the FBI itself admits it would not have enough evidence, then how can one start a war?

That the only real hot track to those responsible for the WTC disaster, the strikingly high stock turnover before the attack with put options (betting on falling stock prices of airlines and insurance companies) will somehow fizzle out, was already suspected. One of the banks, which in the days before the attack ordered large quantities of put options of "United Airlines", was the bank "AB Brown" which belongs to none other than the venerable Deutsche Bank. Another puzzle piece makes clear why investigations in this direction would be surely worthwhile, but also a waste of time: Vice-director of "AB Brown" and responsible for "private client relations" was "Buzzy" Krongard - Executive Director since March 2001 and No. 3 of the CIA. Oops!

"The most important thing for us is to find Osama bin Laden. It is our first priority and we will not rest until we have found him."	"I do not know where he is. I have no idea and I am really not interested. It's not our priority."
George Bush, 13. 09. 2001	George Bush, 13. 03. 2002

We ask: If it was Osama, did his plan work out and the infidels refrained from their support of Israel? No, they did not! They also did not fall "into the trap", i.e. Afghanistan, and got destroyed there. On the contrary, there was a devastating defeat for "Qaida" and Taliban! So bad luck for Osama!

Now we take a look at the evidences that it was an "inside job":

- Bush & Co are proven liars, this is the very first thing! Iraq had no nuclear weapons!
- WTC Building 7 collapsed without ever been hit by a plane and although it had only small fires that could easily have been extinguished.
- Larry Silverstein had just rented this building in July for 99 years and insured it over 7 billion dollars.
- Larry Silverstein said he would have told the fire department, "Pull it!" But neither does this the fire department (because it is the work of special demolition squads), nor can it be organized in just seven hours (it needs two weeks to two months), especially not in a burning building.

- The NYC Fire Department said, never in history was a steel-framed building destroyed by fire, because in order to melt the steel it takes 2500° Fahrenheit. The kerosene can only generate a maximum of 1800° Fahrenheit, and most of it had already dissipated during the impact. The black flames were a clear indication that the combustion was incomplete and could have never melt the steel frame.
- In the hole that had torn a plane one could see a woman clinging to a steel beam and looking down. So she had survived in the vicinity of the impact, but the fire was said to be hot enough to melt the extremely thick steel girders?
- The Fire Department called consequently the studies on the cause of the fire a "half-baked farce" (January 2002).
- For these studies a total of only 15 million dollars were spent, while the Clinton sex scandal investigation had cost 65 million.
- NORAD, which is responsible for air safety over Manhattan and the Pentagon, and who in the past caught in the prohibited airspace intruding aircrafts 67 times within 20 minutes with a 100% success rate, did not manage it on 9/11 four times within two hours, although they were warned already after the first plane hit? Instead, they sent out their interceptors to sea or they were even never started. Thomas. H. Kean, head of the 9 / 11 Commission, said: "To this day we do not know why NORAD told us what they told us! It was so far from the truth ...!" Senator Dayton said: "They lied to us, they lied to the American people and lied to the 9 / 11 Commission".

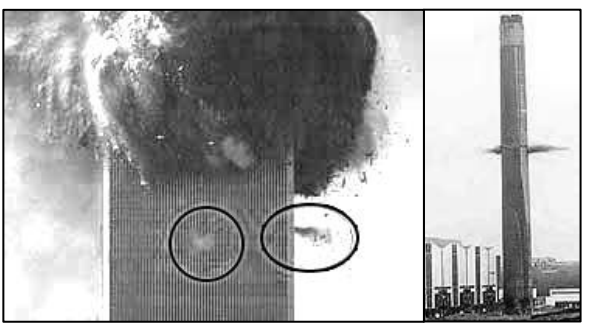
- The planes were randomly occupied only to 20% to 50%, while United Airlines flight are normally occupied an average of 90%.
- Not one of the four aircraft pilots should have been able to send a distress signal, for which one needs only to simply press a button, because they would have been so shocked by kidnappers armed with wallpaper knives although some of them had been former military personal?
- The collapse of the towers and Building 7 looked exactly like controlled demolitions look like. In videos can also be seen that during the collapse explosions at regular intervals happened on the lower floors. Firefighters and other witnesses heard explosions in the buildings.



- The towers collapsed at a pace that a billiard ball needs to fall from the same height, although each floor should have slowed down the collapse.
- The debris of the buildings were destroyed illegally, making subsequent studies impossible.
- As mentioned above, days before the attacks, "put options" were made for airlines and insurance companies.
- At the Pentagon, a plane wreck could never be identified, and also no dead bodies or luggage.
- All films of cameras of surrounding shops, petrol stations etc. were immediately confiscated and are not published until today.
- The only film released shows the explosion, but that does not look like an explosion of a plane crash but more like that of a rocket or drone.
- The airplane was not flying towards the Pentagon in a straight course and hitting Donald Rumsfeld office, it allegedly flew a quite impossible 180 degree turn into the part of the building, which was empty due to renovations.
- In Pennsylvania, several eye witnesses reported as well that no plane wreckage could be seen (such as Ernie Stull, mayor of Shanksville, Nena Lensbour and others). A photo of the plane wreck was never published.

- 'The soil had been liquefied, that was the reason most of the wreckage disappeared into the earth', said Bob Lever Knight, a member of the Air National Guard. The soil liquefied???
- Donald Rumsfeld contradicted in Iraq 2003 the official version that the plane had crashed because the passengers had fought with the pilot, but said instead that the plane had been shot down.
- Condoleza Rice said one had never expected such an attack method ("We had no idea!") although the government itself had considered earlier such a scenario. At that time they wanted to direct aircrafts into buildings and blame Cuba in order to have a reason to attack (Operation Northwoods 1962).
- As mentioned above, the flight instructor said about the alleged pilot: "I'm still to this day amazed that he could have flown into the pentagon, he could not fly at all!"
- Why was the financier of the attacks not bothered that his "team" fell through the flight tests and replaced them?
- The 9 / 11 Commission told us that the financier of the attacks would not be important. That would be as if the general, who gives the orders, would not be important.
- How is it possible that a large passenger plane can fly from Ohio to the Pentagon without any help from air traffic control, and could not be perceived by radar, although air traffic control and military were searching for it?

- Witnesses said that the planes that were flown into the WTC were no passenger aircrafts because no windows could have been seen. (Mark Burnback, FOX reporter)
- Also the bottom does not look like that of a passenger plane. Instead, you can see an object that resembles a missile pod.
- Eyewitnesses reported that the object at the Pentagon would have sounded like a rocket. Nobody thought it would have been a passenger plane (besides nobody seeing one).
- Bush claimed he had seen the first plane flying into the WTC on television, but according to the statement of the Rector of the Elementary School, where Bush was reading fairy tales at the time of the attack, this is not true.
- According to the BBC, before 9/11 the FBI and the CIA were prohibited by the President to make further investigations on the Bin Laden family.
- Delmart Vreeland, a former Navy intelligence agent, was arrested in Canada because of counterfeit money. He predicted the attacks.

There are many other evidences not listed here. Who wants to see more proof should look on YouTube for „Painful Deceptions"; „This is an orange", "9/11 Mysteries", "9/11 Coincidences" and many others.

Is not it very strange that hardly anything of these evidence appeared on mainstream media? Do we really believe in a free press and that we are told the truth?

Now we ask again: If the government and the banksters did it, did they achieve their goal? Oh yes, we may say so!

Finally the TAPI-Pipeline can be built (Turkmenistan, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and India). The annoying Taliban-Regime, which demanded too high transit fees got replaced by Hamid Karzai, a former employee of UNOCAL. The billion dollar construction and maintenance of the pipe is conducted by Halliburton, whose former boss is Dick Cheney, now vice-president. What a coincidence!

As a by-product, the opium production increases 1400% of the production under Taliban rule.

As the war on Islamic terrorists and the axis of evil has already begun, Iraq gets immediately in the focus and again, huge profits with oil and weapons together with an important strategic foothold in the region.

Patriot Act and Homeland Security does not only further tighten the screws of the Big Brother State in America but worldwide.

Islam, the only religion that implicitly forbids both interest rates and a paper money economy, is now the declared enemy, and those who call for the establishment of God's commandments dangerous extremists.

Quite certain is also that the terrorist organization Islamic state was founded by Mossad and CIA:

In any case, the head of Israeli intelligence, Major General Herzi Halevy, openly admitted that it would not be in Israel's interest if ISIS were defeated and the major powers withdrew from the region.

ISIS had fleets of sleek, matching trucks, always staying true to the Toyota brand. They never went anywhere without their personal branding. They "smuggled" literally hundreds of tonnes of oil out of Syria every day in miles long convoys (or even on the backs of mules (as some claim) that allegedly could not be detected or stopped, and financed themselves with tonnes of stolen antiquities that could never be seized.

They had glossy annual reports, bank and social media accounts that were never closed, their own Android app and a five-year plan for world domination. Even their own currency.

Oh, but they never got cocky: they never got involved in any really big elite agenda. And even they were always in favour of having your children vaccinated.

There used to be two sides to "ISIS".

On the one hand, they were a NATO-backed proxy force waging war against the Syrian government.

On the other, they were the phantoms created by ad men and failed screenwriters - to scare people in the West into granting their governments "temporary emergency powers"; an elaborate concoction of overheated villain memes designed to stoke fear and pave the way for an agenda.

Hamas

At the time of its formation, Hamas was funded by the UK. It was supported by Israeli intelligence to weaken Yassir Arafat's Fatah. Hamas was promoted from a terrorist group to an organisation with which Israel negotiated through Egypt and was allowed to receive suitcases containing millions of dollars from Qatar through the Gaza border crossings. The death of Yasser Arafat, the election of the Hamas government and the ruin of the Palestinian Authority enabled Israel to take de facto control of Gaza's offshore gas reserves, the most significant gas field ever found in the unexplored area of the Levantine Basin. All, even then, to thwart the establishment of a Palestinian state as part of a two-state solution - as Benjamin Netanyahu admitted publicly in March 2019, by the way. Then Israel used Hamas to eliminate the leaders of the Marxist Palestinian resistance. Thus, Hamas fighters, under the supervision of Mossad agents and Al-Qaeda jihadists, attacked the Palestinian camp of Yarmuk at the beginning of the war against Syria. So it is not impossible that a group created by Israel and Western intelligence services is still under their control, or at least infiltrated to the point of being "directed" to create certain needed false reports that could benefit Israel as a whole. This is backed up by new evidence that Hamas has used weapons supplied by Ukraine, indicating a standard Western intelligence weapons pipeline as with the Contras and others.

Steps to a World Government

Some even believe we are part of a secret cabal, working against the best interests of the United States, characterizing my family and me as 'internationalists' and of conspiring with others around the world to build a more integrated global political and economic structure -- one world, if you will. If that's the charge, I stand guilty, and I am proud of it." (David Rockefeller 2002)

Financial domination is the most important step to rule the world. Central banks must be controlled and equipped with autonomous rights, which makes them independent of the respective States and integrates them in the global financial system (e.g. the Bank Indonesia got its independent status in 1999). The World Bank and International Monetary Fund are the higher authorities. Without the involvement of the central banks in these institutions, international trade is virtually impossible.

The banksters and their FED control ultimately the money and the currencies of the world. The dollar is private money owned by the U.S. high finance, by none but them guaranteed, but increased at will and abused as a means to rob and control the whole world. For decades, the banksters buy with the increasingly worthless money all the assets they still can catch: raw materials, industrial complexes, real estate and any reasonably intact foreign corporation in a friendly or a hostile takeover at almost any price.

The banksters have acquired in this way through targeted asset value policy whole market segments and developed them to market monopolies or oligopolies: diamonds, gold, copper, zinc, uranium, tele-communications, fibre optic cable networks, print and television media, food (Nestle, Coca-Cola), large parts of the weapon industry and aviation, etc.

Thanks to clever deception and blackmail, this unbridled U.S. dollar increase has not yet resulted in a dollar crash and in the rejection of the dollar by the customer because for years the Banksters force economically and politically the central banks of the world to retain the worthless dollars, which accumulate as a result of export sales or purchase of tangible goods, and to keep them as supposedly valuable foreign exchange reserve.

The money supply is increased and devalued for so long until all important property of the world is bought up and monopolized. The banksters are smart enough to know that their increase in money supply does not go undetected and that eventually confidence in the inflated dollar will vanish. An outbreak of a crisis of confidence will transform the hidden creeping inflation to a runaway open inflation, which must inevitably lead into a currency reform.

But this is precisely the advantage of the Banksters: The banksters have already purchased with their foul dollars sufficient high-value assets and will be not affected by the currency reform. In many areas they have reached already world monopolies, and nobody can prevent them to raise the prices for gold, diamonds, copper, zinc, iron ore, water, seeds, or energy by 10, 20 or 30%!

It's only a matter of time before the inflation gallops and draws all currencies in the abyss. This will be the moment when there will be a new world currency.
At that time the paper money will give way to electronic money, and thus complete control will played into the hands of the banksters.

Political steps towards a one world government include the following:

League of Nations

Woodrow Wilson presented a 14-point program for the reorganization of Europe, including the plan of a League of Nations, an organization which allegedly should prevent future wars. The Covenant of the League was part of the Versailles Treaty. The Covenant of the League of Nations was accepted on 28 April 1919 by the General Assembly of the Versailles Peace Conference. With the signing of the Versailles Treaty on 28 June 1919 the participating states also signed the status of the League of Nations. This is important to note because the foundation of the UN was based on the impact of the Second World War (and therefore we may guess what will follow after the Third World War).

The U.S. Senate however caused a set back to the banksters, because the Senate refused to ratify the Versailles Treaty. The United States were never a member of the League of Nations. This happened because the Senate very much disliked that Woodrow Wilson advanced the ratification of the Covenant of the League without prior consultation with the Senate. They were also still upset how Wilson got the Federal Reserve Act ratified (by voting for it shortly before Christmas, when most Congressmen were already in holiday) and how he drew the U.S. into the First World War, which contradicted the Monroe doctrine.

Council on Foreign Relations

The banksters were not discouraged by this setback and initiated shortly later the Council on Foreign Relations, an organization where leading industrialists, politicians, bankers, lawyers, journalists and academics are meeting. Operating without any control from the outside, it refuses to give any detailed publications of its activities.

"The Council is the essential link between large corporations and the government," remarked the American political scientist William Domhoff 1975 and stated that "the importance of this association for the understanding of the basic themes and the main lines of American world politics cannot be estimated highly enough" although "the vast majority of the citizens of this country, that considers itself the best-informed community of all time, has no idea of the existence of such a private body."

Trilateral Commission

A quasi offshoot of the CFR is the Trilateral Commission (TC), which was founded in 1973 on the initiative of David Rockefeller. It is an organization with over 300 members from Europe, North America and Japan with the aim of improving cooperation between these regions. The major economic blocs USA / North America, Europe (EU) and Japan are referred to in the international political economy as a triad.

British political scientist Stephen Gill defines the concerns of TC as follows: "Trilateralism can be defined as a project to develop an organic (or relatively permanent) alliance between the major capitalist countries with the aim to drive a stable form of world order ahead suiting their dominant interests. This includes a commitment to a more or less liberal international economic order."

Journalist Joseph Kraft, a former member of both the CFR and TC says the bodies are a group of men, a 'power elite', who form behind the curtains the events from an invulnerable position.

Bilderberg Group

As mentioned in the chapter of war games, the Bilderberg group was convened by former SS member Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, who held the presidency for 22 years. The Bilderberg conferences are informal ultra-private meetings of VIP's from politics, economy, military, trade unions, media, universities and high nobility. The meetings of this group are closely guarded and strictly confidential. All participants take part in the conferences only as individuals, not in their official position, although of course their position in public life does play a decisive role. Among the most active participants are Giovanni Agnelli (Fiat), David Rockefeller (Chase Manhattan Bank) and Otto Wolff von Amerongen (Otto Wolff-Group).

Other organizations or think tanks that deal with topical issues of contemporary political events at the international level, are the Club of Rome and the Chatham House, formerly known under the name Royal Institute of International Affairs.

UN

The United Nations (United Nations) is an intergovernmental alliance of 192 countries and international organizations fully recognized as a global entity in international law. The most important official functions of the organization are to ensure world peace, respect for international law, the protection of human rights and the promotion of international cooperation.

U.S. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whom we have met already in the previous chapters undertook, after the failure of the League of Nations, during the Second World War a second attempt to establish an organization "to maintain peace", and developed together with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill the Atlantic Charter. In January 1942, 26 states convened the United Nations Declaration on the principles of the Atlantic Charter. The permanent members of the Security Council make abundant use of their veto power to prevent convictions and penalties against themselves or friendly countries.

In order that the concept of a world organization capable of exercising powers could work out, the nations must vastly give up sovereign powers. At present, no country is ready to do that. But this will change for sure, after the Third World War, like it did already after the previous wars.

WHO

Since the plandemic, the WHO has become an important tool of globalisation and has been given much more power. The planned changes to the WHO's International Health Regulations (IHR) represent a reversion to absolutism. This is because three achievements of a democratic constitutional state are de facto eliminated:

1) Human dignity, human rights and civil liberties have been deleted; WHO orders no longer have to take these rights into account in the event of a pandemic.

2) The sovereignty of the member states is abolished in the event of a pandemic, they revert to the status of vassal states or colonies, since WHO orders must be obeyed, sanctions for non-compliance and other means of coercion are provided for.

3) The principle of freedom of science and the prohibition of censorship will be abolished. According to the planned regulations, the WHO, in the person of the director-general, determines which information and findings are correct; contrary views will be suppressed.

Since the WHO is neither democratically legitimised nor accountable, this circumstance represents the completion of an absolutist form of rule. It needs no further explanation that this puts the IGV in conflict with relevant higher-ranking international agreements such as the UN Charter.

WEF

The World Economic Forum was founded fifty years ago. It has gained more and more prominence over the decades and has become one of the leading platforms of futuristic thinking and planning. As a meeting place of the global elite, the WEF brings together the leaders in business and politics along with a few selected intellectuals. The main thrust of the forum is global control.

The WEF is the organization that has masterminded the globally harmonized planning, development, and implementation of the lockdowns, mandates, authoritarian vaccine campaigns, suppression of early treatment options, global targeting of dissenting physicians, censorship, propaganda, information and thought control programs since late 2019.

This is the organizational structure used by the ones who have sought to control and manage the world to advance the economic and political interests of their members through the ongoing "Great Reset" (as named and described by their chairman Klaus Schwab) by exploiting and exacerbating the social and economic disruption which they have artificially and intentionally crafted.

They are backed by the financial resources of many of the wealthiest people in the world. Free markets and individual choice do not stand as their top values, but state interventionism and collectivism.

According to the projections of the WEF's "Global Future Councils," private property and privacy will be abolished during the next decade. The coming expropriation would go further than even the communist demand to abolish the property of production goods but leave space for private possessions. The WEF projection says that consumer goods, too, would be no longer private property.

If the WEF projection should come true, people would have to rent and borrow their necessities from the state, which would be the sole proprietor of all goods. The supply of goods would be rationed in line with a social credit points system. Shopping in the traditional sense would disappear along with the private purchases of goods. Every personal move would be tracked electronically, and all production would be subject to the requirements of clean energy and a sustainable environment.

Some specific attendees of the WEF meetings – including Henry Kissinger, Bill Clinton and Anthony Fauci – are named as members. WEF denotes others – often those who speak at Davos and have an influence on WEF policies – as "Agenda Contributors." Joe Biden, Donald Trump, Xi Jinping, George Soros, Pfizer CEO Albert Bourla, Bank of America CEO Brian Moynihan, transhumanist author Yuval Noah Harari, State Street CEO Ron O'Hanley and BlackRock CEO Larry Fink – who also sits on WEF's board – are Agenda Contributors.

But both members and contributors pale in comparison to graduates of WEF's "Young Global Leaders" (YGL) program, which is not some fancy public conference like Davos, but rather a private, instructional multi-year seminar. Klaus Schwab, the founder of the WEF, said: "We penetrate the global cabinets of countries with our WEF Young Global Leaders." Klaus Schwab has famously claimed that these operatives have been strategically inserted into key positions in various governments and influential positions in essential industries such as politics, media, finance, and technology.

Some of the most powerful people alive have participated this program. World leaders such as Vladimir Putin, Justin Trudeau, Emmanuel Macron and Angela Merkel, and business leaders like Bill Gates, Jeff Bezos, Mark Zuckerberg, Larry Page and Sergey Brin are all listed as YGL alumni.

How is it that the founders of Microsoft, Amazon, Facebook, and Google all attended this one elitist training seminar? And it's astonishing how many of these YGLs are listed as having participated in the program well before the climax of their influence..

PM of New Zealand Jacinda Ardern, PM of Finland Sanna Marin, PM of Belgium Alexander De Croo and former PM of Georgia Mamuka Bakhtadze are all listed as YGLs, while President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskyy, President of El Salvador Nayib Bukele and Supreme Leader of North Korea Kim Jong-Un are unspecified WEF members. Rishi Sunak, the UK's newest PM, is still a WEF member, and former PMs Boris Johnson and Tony Blair are both listed as YGL alumni.

Prominent YGL businessmen include Wikipedia founder Jimmy Wales, Virgin Group founder Richard Branson, Chinese billionaire Jack Ma, Moderna CEO Stephane Bancel and Salesforce founder Marc Benioff (who is also on WEF's board). Chelsea Clinton, Alexander Soros and Nathaniel Rothschild are listed as YGLs. The WEF doesn't only recruit leaders in business and politics, but also exploits the influence of cultural icons like Leonardo DiCaprio to advance its agenda.

The most interesting aspect of it all are the listed YGLs who largely appear to stand in opposition to globalism and the WEF's agenda. For example, Hungarian PM Viktor Orban is listed as a YGL alumnus, Trump is an Agenda Contributor, and Israeli PM Bibi Netanyahu and former Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro are unspecified WEF members, also Elon Musk and Peter Thiel, the co-founder of paypal, are YGL.

It is quite clear that all these political games we witness on mass media are just a show to entertain the stupid masses while all the opponents fighting each other in public are working together behind the scenes.

Other important tools of globalization are the International Criminal Court, the WTO, G8 / G20, NATO, Shanghai Cooperation Organisation, European Union, ASEAN, NAFTA, Mercosur and countless other organizations (OECD, OPEC, and GUS etc.).

What we see by now that the "liberalization" of the economy is at the expense of the poor. The rich countries can subsidize their products and thereby dominate the markets. They monopolize and concentrate production and trade in a few hands. The individual states have fewer powers and cannot take themselves out from the international linkages if they do not want to be pushed into the economic side-lines. Meanwhile they sink further and further into debt. The end of colonialism is a fairy tale. Instead of armies, the economy dominates the third world countries, and the economic system in turn is dominated by a few: the Banksters.

Besides the economic system, social life gets levelled. The major cities of the world differ less and less from each other in their architecture, the 'modern' citizens less and less in their clothing, business habits, foods, music tastes, cars, cell phones, computers, news, TV shows, sports, beauty contests, alcohol and drug use, movies, diseases, aspirations and ambitions! This total uniformity is necessary in order that mankind can finally unite under a world government.

Here a few quotes:

"We must make the United Nations continue to work, and to be a going concern, to see that difficulties between nations may be settled just as we settle difficulties between States here in the United States. When Kansas and Colorado fall out over the waters in the Arkansas River, they don't go to war over it, they go to the Supreme Court of the United States, and the matter is settled in a just and honorable way. There is not a difficulty in the whole world that cannot be settled in exactly the same way in a world court." -- President Truman's remarks in Omaha, Nebraska on June 5, 1948, at the dedication of the War Memorial.

"The world is governed by very different personages from what is imagined by those who are not behind the scenes." Benjamin Disraeli, first Prime Minister of England, in a novel he published in 1844 called Coningsby, the New Generation

"The real rulers of Washington are invisible, and exercise power from behind the scenes." US Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter

"We shall have world government whether you like it or not, by conquest or consent." James Warburg - Council on Foreign Relations

"Senate Foreign Relations Concurrent Resolution 66" dated 09/02/1950: "To achieve universal peace and justice, the current United Nations Charter must be amended to provide for the constitution of a true world government."

The "Mid-Century Challenge to U.S. Foreign Policy" was published in 1959, which was sponsored by the Rockefeller brothers, "... the United States cannot escape the task, and she should truly appreciate what history has imposed on her, of helping to shape a new world order in all its dimensions, spiritually, economically, politically and socially."

The U.S. State Department published a plan in 1961 in which all nations should be disarmed, so that no state has the opportunity to oppose the UN military force.

Former U.S. Deputy Assistant Secretary of State, Trilateralists and CFR member Richard Gardner said in 1974: "The 'house of world government' must be built from the bottom up, not from top to bottom .... The national sovereignty must be eroded piece by piece, which will achieve much more than an old-fashioned frontal assault."

Mikhail Gorbachev said at a meeting of the UN 1988: "World Development is only possible through a search for a universal human consensus as we move forward into a new world order."

"Out of these troubled times, our objective - a New World Order - can emerge. Today, that new world is struggling to be born, a world quite different from the one we have known." - Former President George Bush September 11, 1990

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the New York Times, Time Magazine and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost 40 years. It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subjected to the lights of publicity during those years. But, the world is more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a one world Godless government. The super-national sovereignty of an intellectual elite and world bankers is surely preferable to the national auto-determination practiced in past centuries." David Rockefeller, at a June 1991 Bilderberger meeting in Baden-Baden, Germany

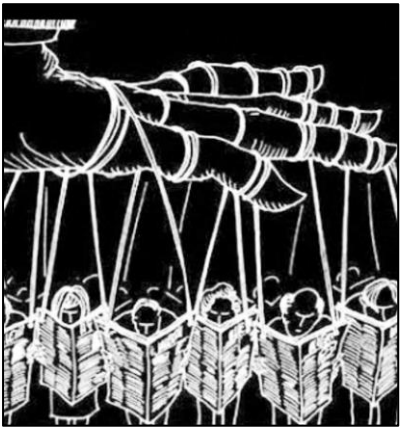
"The real menace of our Republic is the invisible government which like a giant octopus sprawls its slimy legs over our cities, states and nation. At the head is a small group of banking houses ... This little coterie ... run our government for their own selfish ends. It operates under cover of a self-created screen... seizes... our executive officers... legislative bodies... schools... courts... newspapers and every agency created for the public protection." N.Y. Mayor, John Hylan

"We are on the verge of a global transformation. All we need is the right major crisis and the nations will accept the New World Order." David Rockefeller

"The drive of the Rockefellers and their allies is to create a one-world government combining super capitalism and Communism under the same tent, all under their control... Do I mean conspiracy? Yes, I do. I am convinced there is such a plot, international in scope, generations old in planning, and incredibly evil in intent." Congressman Larry P. McDonald, 1976, killed in the Korean Airlines 747 that was shot down by the Soviets.



The path to total control

The enslavement of humanity proceeds at all levels, physical, mental and psychological. We summon here again briefly the main points:

Financial control

Money rules the world! As we have seen in previous chapters, the Banksters dominate us with their economic system. Every country and therefore, every citizen, is liable to the Banksters. Without being a member of the World Bank, it is almost impossible for states to participate in global trade. Through interest and inflation the people, especially those in the third world, gets exploited and enslaved. The control gets more and more perfected, besides others by electronic means of payment, where each transaction can be tracked. They will know then exactly what one buys, where one buys it, they will know the location and activities of every individual. The people will hold really nothing more of real value in their hands other than a plastic card. Ultimately, we expect "the mark of the beast" to appear, without nobody can buy nor sell according to biblical prophecies. Probably this will be an implanted RFID chip, which will replace credit card, identity card, driving license and anything else.

The new Hitachi RFID chip (on the right, compared to a human hair) only measures 0.05 mm x 0.05 mm which is 64 times smaller than the previous Mu-chip (on the left).

These chips contain a 38-digit digital ID number that can be queried via radio signal. Each and every product will soon be equipped with these chips, instead of the conventional bar codes, and ultimately all people as well. In the supermarket you will only have to take the products, go through a barrier, and automatically the prices will be calculated and deducted from your account because you as well are identified. Without a chip, or when one is not vaccinated or otherwise does not comply with the system, no transaction can take place.

As luck would have it, even before the SARS-CoV-2 outbreak, Bill Gates had the foresight to commission "digital certificates" that show "who has recently recovered or been tested or, if we have a vaccine, who has received it."

The "digital certificates" are implantable "quantum dot tattoos" that researchers at MIT (Massachusetts Institute of Technology) and Rice University are working on to keep vaccination records. It was in December 2019 when scientists from the two universities announced that they were working on these quantum dot tattoos after Bill Gates approached them to solve the problem of identifying those who had not been vaccinated.

The quantum dot tattoos involve the application of soluble sugar-based microneedles containing a vaccine and fluorescent copper-based "quantum dots" embedded in biocompatible micron-sized capsules. The enzyme luciferase (!), which in nature makes fireflies glow, among other things, is also to be used. After the microneedles dissolve under the skin, they leave behind the encapsulated quantum dots, the patterns of which can be read by a mobile phone app to identify the vaccine administered.

The quantum dot tattoos are likely to be complemented by another of Bill Gates' companies called ID2020, which is also developing digital identity. Currently, the easiest way to implement digital identity is through smartphones or RFID microchip implants. While Google and Apple have now teamed up to develop a tracking app for smartphones, assuring us that our privacy will be preserved, the RFID chip will be Gates' approach.

ID2020 is an alliance that says it is "setting the course for digital IDs and ensuring that digital IDs are implemented responsibly and are universally accessible. The ability to prove who you are is a basic and universal human right. As we live in a digital age, we need a trusted and reliable way to do this both in the physical world and online."

It is also interesting to note who else part of this ID2020 alliance besides Gates is. For a start, it is backed by the United Nations, which certainly gives it an air of seriousness. A powerful sponsor (of both the UN and ID2020) since 2017 is the Rockefeller Foundation, about which not much needs to be said. It is probably enough to simply quote what it says about itself to be reassured: "Since 1913, the Rockefeller Foundation has sought to improve the well-being of humanity worldwide."

Also on board is the CEO of Gavi, the vaccine alliance founded by Gates, and some board members have switched from J.P. Morgan (see also "The Banksters"). Accenture, a global management consulting and professional services firm, joined as a founding partner in June 2017. Accenture has been active in the cryptocurrency market since 2011 and specialises in technical analysis of ongoing crypto trends. Accenture has been commissioned by the Swedish Central Bank, among others, to work on a new government cryptocurrency.

Cryptocurrencies are creating a money revolution and are an essential building block of the IoT. By making some intermediate functions redundant, they challenge the paradigm of traditional currencies and the role of central banks and financial institutions. Cryptocurrencies threaten to disrupt financial markets because they can be issued without the involvement or support of a central bank or other traditional financial sector players.

Just as a non-state-issued ID from ID2020 disrupts traditional forms of state ID, international cryptocurrency disrupts the traditional form of state currencies. Of course, with the help of the World Bank, IMF or ECB, central banks are already controlled, which in turn have long had sovereignty, but still nation states have too much influence, and the more people with potentially individual wills are involved, the worse. People, unfortunately, don't always work as they should.

The technology underlying cryptocurrencies, the Distributed Consensus Ledger (DCL), is revolutionary. It provides complete transaction records without the use of a central registry. This enables direct customer-to-customer transactions, eliminating the need for traditional players such as national financial institutions to act as intermediaries and guarantors of the currency. The DCL is an account of transactions replicated on multiple nodes on the internet or in a virtual private network (VPN). Each transaction is uniquely signed with a user's private key. Transaction integrity and confirmation are enforced by cryptography and agreed by consensus of DCL nodes.

Microsoft has come up with something special here and just patented it at the end of March: Human body activity associated with a task provided to a user can be used in a mining process of a cryptocurrency system. A server can provide a task to a user's device that is communicatively linked to the server. A sensor communicatively coupled to or included in the user's device may sense the user's body activity. Body activity data may be generated based on the sensed body activity of the user. The cryptocurrency system, which is communicatively coupled to the user's device, can verify that the body activity data meets one or more conditions set by the cryptocurrency system and allocate cryptocurrency to the user accordingly.

Truly revolutionary: through the chip in the body, activity is measured and money is produced accordingly! Note the patent number: WO/2020/060606. It is not entirely clear whether the number was assigned by the patent office by chance or whether an employee was making a sarcastic joke: 060606 - 666. The chip is currently being tested in Africa. If something goes wrong there, nobody cares.

But with a universally recognised ID and a universally recognised cryptocurrency, state dominance is undermined. It seems paradoxical: while the countries of the world were closing their borders, practising national egoism and totalitarian measures, COVID-19 was quietly fuelling a revolution that will erode nation-state order. The IoT will create its own protocols and orders that will deeply intervene in our lives, the economy and the environment and end up determining everything, while national governments, including their citizens, will increasingly take on the role of staffage.

State control

The freedom of citizens is increasingly restricted in order to protect them from terrorists, viruses, climate change, cyberattacks, disinformation and so on. The state interferes more and more in the privacy of the citizen and tells him if he may wear a head scarf, what kind of colour the tiles of his house must have and how far a bush must stand away from the neighbouring property. The interference of the state is more and more perceived as normal. The States themselves are increasingly losing their sovereignty in favour of transnational entities. Last step will be the world government, after the chaos of Armageddon for all people an acceptable consequence, with an absolutist ruler, the Dajjal.

> Al-Muharibi said: "Then we referred to the Hadith of Abu Rafii, which said, 'Part of his Fitnah will be the fact that he will pass through an area whose people will deny him, and none of their livestock will remain alive. Then he will pass through a second area whose people will believe him; he will order the sky to rain and the earth to bring forth crops, and their flocks will return from grazing fatter than they have ever been, with their flanks stretched, their udders full. He will pass through every place on earth - except Makkah and Madinah, which he will never enter, for there are angels guarding every gate of them with unsheathed swords. [Imam Ibn Kathir]

The above hadith may be realized for example through economic sanctions or economic aid and credits, or by special systems like HAARP, which heats up the Ionosphere and uses so-called ELF waves (Extremely Low Frequency Waves) that allow not only to intercept enemy missiles, but also to generate earthquakes and weather changes, among many other things.

Government control is also achieved through water, energy and food. Monopolies are created (for example by genetically modified and non-reproducible seeds. Once these seeds replace the natural ones, the farmers are obliged to buy the hybrid ones always from the same monopolist). Since man is less and less adopted to nature and unable to survive in it, he is more and more dependent on 'civilization' and thus to those who rule 'civilization'.

Mental control

By control of the media, school curricula and science, the censoring of certain "extremist" literature and the defamation of certain persons and states, the necessary climate is created in which humanity is transformed more and more into sheep (sheople). "Education" is not intended to lead to independent thinking, but to accept "voluntarily" the reality of those in power. By "democracy" the people are fooled to believe they are the ones in power, but real alternatives are never discussed, and there is only the choice between the two sides of the same coin.

The greatest sins are made attractive through advertisement and media, such as Zina (extramarital sex), alcohol, gambling, decadence and excess. People opposing gay marriage are are suffering of homophobia, a formerly unknown disease.

Prior to 'Feminism' only half the population paid taxes, now practically all do because the women go to work as well. It also destroyed the traditional family and thus the Banksters obtained power over the children. They are under their control with their media and get their message indoctrinated, and are no longer under the influence of the intact family. They incite women against men and destroy the partnership and the community of families. They have created a broken society of egoists who work (for the alleged career) and consume (fashion, beauty, brands). The people become slaves and even like it.

Women display their 'freedom' and give up their pride and dignity on canvas and leaflets for the advertising of cheap products. They are competing with men for jobs while their children are neglected (if they still get some, because they are often a hindrance for the "career"). The happiness of the intact family is mere history. In general, freedom and self-realization is often mentioned.

> The Dajjal is one-eyed and will bring with him something which will resemble Paradise and Hell; but that which he calls Paradise will in fact be Hell. I warn you against him as Noah warned his people against him. (Bukhari, Muslim)

Just as the greatest sins are painted in attractive colours, so the good is laughed about, looked down upon and even hated. After Christianity has capitulated long ago, Islam remains as the only serious opponent, which is why the war against Islam is being waged on all fronts, especially on the media front. Practicing Muslims, who are against "freedom and democracy" are portrayed as fundamentalists, extremists and Islamists. Faked terrorist attacks like 9/11 provide the necessary publicity in order to demonize Muslims completely or to create the perfect excuse to stage a "self-defensive war" against Muslim countries, with preference to those who have a lot of oil. Again and again is repeated that God's law, the Shariah, is the horror itself and those who are longing for it terrorists: Islamic State.

Brainwash tool No. 1 is TV, where the most perverse fantasies are displayed, hypnotizing the viewers like a snake hypnotizes its victim. The 'moral values' and beliefs are being globalized, so that in formerly completely different cultures prevail nowadays the same values as well as the same products, fashion, music and 'entertainment'.

Hundreds of PR firms plant "knowledge" into the public consciousness with the help of thousands of media clips, such as Edelman, Hill & Knowlton, Burson-Marsteller, Camer-Singer (GCIGroup), Ketchum, Ogilvy PR and others. Although these companies are well known in the PR industry, we hardly know these names - for good reason. The best PR is the unnoticed one. For decades they have created opinions, which we take as truth because these opinions accompanied us from childhood. Inconspicuously financed by those whose ideas or products are evaluated, "independent bodies and research institutes" emit press releases and "scientific studies" that generate the image that their makers want to have. Such front groups are given fashionable names such as Consumer Protection, the Climate Research Foundation, the International Council for Food Information, the Clean Air Foundation, the Center for Product Quality, the American Council for Science and Health, the Global Climate Coalition, the Alliance for Better Food and the Manhattan Institute.

Psychological control

The psychological control follows the mental control. Since we are social beings and, seen from a biological perspective, 'herd animals', who would be lost in the wilderness without our tribe and its protection, we are afraid of being expelled from the community. In earlier times exile was a heavy punishment for members of a group that had turned against its standards. In modern times, the same principle works on a different level: one is excluded from the community by getting certain labels like 'crazy', 'extremist', 'public enemy', 'strange', 'fundamentalist', 'schizophrenic' etc. Because 'values' such as "democracy and human rights" and the definition of "the reality" are globalized, a disregard of these values and a different view on "reality" leads to an exclusion from the 'world community'.

Psychological control is achieved mainly through fear. Fear of terrorists, fear of unemployment, sickness, accidents, environmental destruction, war, loneliness and all sorts of other misfortunes.

The more one now 'voluntarily' enters into the prison, the more one will be rewarded and fear is taken away. One perceives all the cameras at public places not as a threat but as security. One perceives the payments to the insurance companies not as a burden but as a protection. One perceives the news on television not as brainwashing but as knowledge. One no longer perceives the iron bars as a sign of captivity but as protection.

First, one has to restructure the mind of the people, to make them submissive, and then they say "yes" to the world government themselves. One must not force the world government on people. The masses of the world must believe that they themselves "fought" for it or deserved it, and that the "New World Order" was the best thing that could have happened to them. There are three main steps:

a. Central banks are established and / or privatized (government borrows from the bank)

b. World War I paved the way for the League of Nations

c. Balfour Declaration (colonization of Palestine begins)

Step 2:

a. Money is no longer tied to real value (and can be printed / created at will)

b. World War II paved the way for the UN

c. The State of Israel is created

Step 3:

a. Electronic money (gives full control over each transaction and individual)

b. World War III will pave the way for the One World Government

c. Dajjal gets established on the throne of David

They are prepared for civil war if, as expected, there are protests. Hardly noticed by the public, over 800 so-called FEMA camps have been built in the USA, all fully functional and ready to take in prisoners. They are all staffed and even surrounded by full-time guards, but they are all empty. These camps will be run by FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) should martial law have to be implemented in the United States, and all that would be needed is the President's signature on a proclamation and the Attorney General's signature on a warrant with a list of names attached. FEMA was created by Jimmy Carter on 1 April 1979. Its purpose is to coordinate national agencies in the event of floods, hurricanes, earthquakes and other natural disasters. But when the American president declares martial law or a state of emergency, this agency becomes active and has total control while the people lose all rights.

- Executive Order 10990 - FEMA can take over all transportation, the highways and the seaports
- Executive Order 10995 - FEMA can take over the communications media
- Executive Order 10997 - FEMA can take over all electrical power, fuels and minerals
- Executive Order 10998 - FEMA camps can take over food resources and farms
- Executive Order 11003 - FEMA can take over airports and commercial aircraft
- Executive Order 11004 - Communities can be relocated to FEMA camps

Camps often have rail facilities as well as roads leading to and from detention facilities. Many also have an airport nearby. Most of the camps can hold a population of 20,000 detainees. Currently, the largest of these facilities is located near Fairbanks, Alaska. The Alaska facility is a massive mental health facility and can hold about 2 million people.

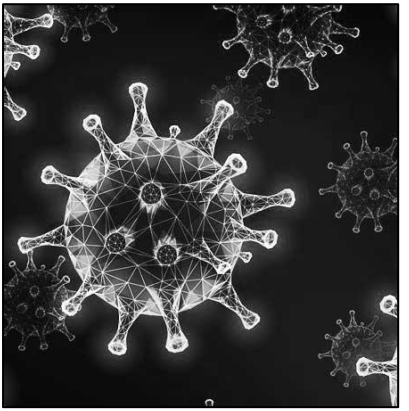
In Europe, there is the Atlas Group, which brings together the 38 European police special forces of the EU Member States, and the EuroGendFor, special forces of the EU that are specialised to act both in the event of a terrorist attack and in civil wars. These are troops that do not have to obey the laws of any European country. In December 2009, in the Lisbon Treaty, the EU, quietly and secretly bypassing the public, reintroduced the death penalty in the case of war and riots and insurrection.



COVID

Verily, the false Messiah will be preceded by years of deception, in which the truthful will be lied to, the liars will be believed, the trustworthy will be discredited, the traitors will be trusted and the shameful will speak. (Musnad Ahmad)

More and more people have noticed that there could be something wrong with the official Covid story. Even the conservative German magazine Stern commented: "The number of occupied ICU beds was the basis for the federal emergency brake and lockdown. The intensive care units were filling up rapidly, it was said, and therefore radical measures had to be taken. Now it turns out that the figures were wrong. This is deprivation of liberty. Many media outlets adopted the politicians' emergency narrative and figures unchecked for months. Critics and doubters were mowed down. But now it is clear: hospitals reported fewer intensive care beds in some cases than there actually were. If this is true, it is fraud on German citizens."

That the whole Corona story was built on fraud can be shown quite clearly by some circumstantial evidence. But still, most people do not want to believe in such a fraud. First of all, because they do not want to admit that they have been deceived, and because the dimension simply seems too big. The idea that one could engineer an attack like 9/11 already seems too far-fetched to most people, how much more far-fetched a global conspiracy like COVID. But if you analyse history, you find that all it takes is properly set parameters and not a large number of conspirators.

PCR test

At the media briefing on COVID-19 on 16 March 2020, WHO Director-General Dr Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said: "We have a simple message for all countries: test, test, and test." The message was spread by headlines around the world. The so-called gold standard was taken to be the PCR test, a test that was not intended to be a diagnostic tool for detecting viruses at all. Although it can detect extremely small amounts of virus, it can also turn out positive if there is no infection in the sense of the Infection Protection Act and thus no risk of infection. This in turn calls corona measures and lockdowns, which are based on high case numbers and the fear of mass infection, into question.

Kary Mullis - the Nobel Prize-winning inventor of PCR technology - had urgently warned that the test could be misused, because if too many cycles (Ct) are run, the test can detect just about anything. "PCR makes something out of nothing" said Mullis. He would no doubt have been very opposed to the use of the test. As "chance" would have it, he died shortly before the outbreak of the ominous virus.

Conclusions about the relevant presence of a complete virus as well as its ability to replicate (viral load) have something to do with the number of replication cycles needed for the test to detect the fragments sought. The more cycles it takes to make the sought-after fragment visible, the less of it was originally present. This is why threshold values are set for the number of multiplication cycles (Ct value). The Drosten protocol does not specify Ct values, neither for the question of whether a sample can still be meaningfully evaluated as positive, nor with regard to a viral load that suggests infection or infectivity. Secondly, it itself operates with 45 cycles. Laboratories that use this protocol as a guideline according to the WHO recommendation usually follow the 45 cycles of the protocol, although various experts have warned that this procedure inevitably leads to masses of false-positive test results. Since around September 2020, however, the consensus among WHO, Drosten and RKI has been that positive PCR test results based on more than 30 to 35 cycles are worthless or null positive. Other experts, however, believe that anything over 28 cycles is worthless.

One may quote Dr Christian Drosten himself here. Regarding MERS in 2014 and the relationship between the media and PCR testing practice in Saudi Arabia, he said:

> The fact is that until now there was a clear case definition, i.e. a strict scheme that determined which patient was reported as a MERS case. This included, for example, that the patient had pneumonia in which both lungs were affected. But when a whole series of MERS cases suddenly appeared in Jeddah at the end of March this year, the doctors there decided to test all patients and the entire hospital staff for the pathogen. And to do so, they chose a highly sensitive method, the polymerase chain reaction (PCR), but the method is so sensitive that it can detect a single hereditary molecule of this virus. If, for example, such a pathogen flits across a nurse's nasal mucosa for a day without her falling ill or noticing anything else, then she is suddenly a MERS case. Where previously terminally ill people were reported, now mild cases and people who are actually perfectly healthy are suddenly included in the reporting statistics. This could also explain the explosion in the number of cases in Saudi Arabia. In addition, the local media have blown the matter out of proportion. [...] I fear that the current increase is rather due to the increased attention.

Sounds familiar?

The Tanzanian president, John Magufuli, had taken the warnings about the use of the PCR test method seriously, and by his own admission had conducted an investigation to highlight the potential for Corona misdiagnosis. He had assigned a team of researchers to test various foods, material objects, and animals for corona. The various samples had been assigned false identities. The papaya was called Elizabeth Ane, and age and gender were added to anticipate possible bias in the laboratory. Magufuli announced that the papaya, jackfruit, goat and a local bird had tested positive for corona. Cynically humorous, Magufuli stressed that in view of the results, all papayas, jackfruit, goats and kwares should be isolated nationwide.

John Magufuli, as well as the presidents of Haiti and Burundi died or were assassinated. All had opposed covid vaccination in their countries. Question: Of the few of the 195 statesmen who oppose Covid vaccination, what are the chances that three of them will die coincidentally?

Even a major PCR test manufacturer and Drosten's scientific companion publicly pointed out that in order to be dangerous to third parties, one would have to carry 100 times more viral load than the detection limit of the tests, Olfert Landt, CEO of the Berlin-based company TIB Molbiol emphasised in an interview with the Fuldaer Zeitung.

Statistics and number crunching

Statistics are the linchpin of the whole COVID story. With their help, the people can be frightened and their consent obtained for the Corona measures, which are based on so-called incidence values.

While we as laypeople are often overwhelmed by the medical-scientific aspects and cannot really judge which expert is right, here we can easily see how unserious the approach really is.

If you take a casual look at the above statistics, you can only come to one conclusion: "Oh dear, if we don't do something now, we will be swallowed up by this wave!"

Unless you look closely!

First of all, the so-called infections (which, as already mentioned, only mean positive tests) are all added up. This inevitably gives the impression that there are more and more. But after two weeks, you already belong to the "recovered" and you should no longer appear in these statistics. All that matters is how many infections there are PROCENTUALLY at the moment.

The statistics would only make sense if they were posted two weeks later and instead of infected people they now had "recovered people" who probably have immunity for life, which would reflect the course of herd immunity. Of course, the threat scenario would be removed!

Imagine: We measure one hundred people with the PCR test on day one and find five infected. We learn: Infection rate: five percent. We measure two hundred people with the same test on the following day and find ten of them to be carrying the virus. We learn again: infection rate: five percent. We have now examined a total of three hundred people in two successive series of measurements and determined a constant - i.e. unchanging - infection rate of five per cent. We measure again on the third day, but this time three hundred people and now determine 15 infected people. Then we publicly state that the infection rate has tripled compared to the first day! The sleight of hand is as simple as that!

If you look closely at all the COVID statistics, you will notice: It is never mentioned how many tests have been carried out at all! Without this number, however, all the statistics are worthless because they do not measure the true percentage of infected people in the population. "Test, test, test" is the mantra. Because the more we test, the more infected we have! Whereas with a percentage determination, it would be enough to just test sufficiently large representative control groups. One would not have to constantly maltreat large parts of the population and especially children with the PCR test, the cotton swab of which has been sterilised with the highly carcinogenic ethylene oxide (which, however, is officially not supposed to be a cause for concern, even though in the EU there is a complete ban on the use of ethylene oxide even in plant protection products).

The so-called 7-day incidence is based on the reporting data collected by the municipal health offices. The calculation is based on the specifications of the Robert Koch Institute (RKI) and follows a fixed pattern. These values are decisive for the entry and exit of the nationwide measures according to §28b of the Infection Protection Act ("Federal Emergency Brake"). Again, only the cases themselves are transmitted, but not the underlying test quantity and therefore not the percentage of infected persons in the population. So you can always step hard on the "federal emergency brake" if you do enough tests!

But what about the deaths, where it would still make sense to add them up?

The RKI writes: "Both people who died directly from the disease ('died of') and people with previous illnesses who were infected with SARS-CoV-2 and for whom it cannot be conclusively proven what the cause of death was ('died with') are currently recorded." So anyone who tested positive with the faulty PCR is counted as a COVID death, whether they died of a heart attack or something else. The RKI writes as an official reason that in practice it is often difficult to decide to what extent the Corona infection directly contributed to the death.

Please digest this for a moment:

A strict proponent and manufacturer of PCR tests assumes, as mentioned above, that only half of all those who test positive even have enough viral load to infect others. Of those infected, in turn, only a fraction become ill (one in a thousand). And of these sick people, again only a fraction die. But all of them are potentially included in the death statistics!

The RKI goes on to write: "In general, it is always at the discretion of the health authority whether or not a case is transmitted to the RKI as deceased to or with COVID-19. For a large proportion of COVID-19 deaths transmitted to the RKI, 'deceased of the reported disease' is indicated."

Why hospitals so assiduously record COVID patients and deaths could also be because: COVID patients in the US are charged an average of $3100 for experimental antiviral drugs and $15,000 for an extended hospital stay, and should the trip end in intensive care, an additional $40,000 is due. This is the way it is done almost all over the world: hospitals really cash in on COVID patients! Here in Indonesia, hospitals get 321 million rupiah when someone with COVID-19 dies, which is about 100 times a normal monthly salary! These huge sums are all borrowed from abroad, i.e. the World Bank, IMF etc. Isn't it strange that all people officially die in hospital but no one at home?

But if one wants to put aside malicious insinuations and not suspect the demigods in white of disdainful greed for profit, then the official position looks like this:

The Institute of Forensic Medicine of the University Medical Center Hamburg-Eppendorf (UKE) has found in more than a hundred autopsies of coronary deaths as a rule several serious previous illnesses, and the average age was more than 80 years!

"We were only able to prove in one percent of the deaths that we could not find any relevant previous illness in the autopsy result and yet the cause of death was a Covid 19 death," said Institute Director Benjamin Ondruschka.

This means that just one percent of all deaths are said to have died purely from COVID-19!

Here it comes:

To prevent vaccinated people from falling victim to the PCR test in the same way as non-vaccinated people and making the statistics look unattractive as COVID-positive and so-called vaccine breakthroughs, different criteria then applied to them. The guidelines regarding "possible vaccine breakthroughs" posted on the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention website at the end of April state: "For cases with a known RT-PCR cycle threshold (Ct), send only samples with a Ct value less than / equal to 28 to CDC for sequencing." Further, the CDC has summarily decided to no longer register "asymptomatic or mild infections" as "covid cases". This means that even if samples with a Ct value of 28 allow sequencing of the virus said to cause Covid-19, the CDC will now only record "vaccine breakthroughs" that result in hospitalisation or are fatal.

The National Health Service (NHS) in England was also introducing a new way of counting COVID cases and only recording cases that actually end up in hospital. The WHO had changed its covid diagnostic guidelines and its PCR testing guidelines in late 2020 and early 2021, right in line with the launch of the first vaccination programmes.

And poof, there goes the pandemic! Thanks to vaccination! But if we had used these criteria right away, there would never have been a pandemic in the first place!

Vaccination

The manufacturers say that the mRNA vaccine shots stay in the arm and are not nanoparticles circulating in the body. However, in an interview, Dr Bryan Bridle, a professor and viral immunologist at the University of Guelph, who is actually a vaccine advocate and otherwise not critical of other vaccines, says the following startling things:

> The spike protein alone is almost entirely responsible for the damage to the cardiovascular system. If it gets into the bloodstream, in fact, if you inject the purified spike protein into the blood of experimental animals, they get all kinds of damage to the cardiovascular system, and it can cross the blood-brain barrier and cause damage to the brain. They found the spike protein in the circulation, in the blood of 11 of these 13 healthcare workers who had received the vaccine. This means that we have known for a long time that the spike protein is a pathogenic protein. It is a toxin. It can cause damage in our bodies if it gets into the bloodstream. Now we have clear evidence that the vaccines that make our bodies or the muscles or the cells in our deltoids make this protein, not the vaccine itself, and that protein gets into the bloodstream. When it gets into the bloodstream, the spike protein can bind to the receptors that are on our platelets and the cells that line our blood vessels. When this happens, it can do one of two things. It can either cause the platelets to clump together and that can lead to clotting. That's exactly why we've seen clotting problems associated with these vaccines. It can also lead to bleeding. And of course the heart is involved, it's an important part of the cardiovascular system. That's why we see heart problems. The protein can also cross the blood-brain barrier and cause neurological damage. That is why it is often seen in the brain in fatal cases of blood clots.

Also speaking out and warning is none other than the inventor of the mRNA vaccine delivery system currently used in the vast majority of SARS-CoV-2 vaccines. Dr. Robert Malone was way ahead of his time when he patented a technology back in 1989 that enabled him to transport mRNA packages into cells when they were protected by a layer of fat (a so-called lipid envelope). Marlone had found out early on that the spike protein itself is very cytotoxic, i.e. cell-damaging to cell-destroying, and had tried to alert the FDA. Normally, however, this spike protein should not be biologically active at all, and the FDA accused Marlone of insufficient documentation. "The SARS-CoV-2 spike protein is cytotoxic, that is a fact," Malone wrote unequivocally on Twitter. "Who says so? Multiple peer-reviewed references. The Salk Institute. It is the responsibility of the vaccine developers to prove that their represented version is not toxic. Show us." Marlone had found that the toxic spike proteins spread throughout the body instead of just staying in muscle tissue as intended: Into the bloodstream, the heart, the brain - virtually every organ in the body.

Dr Kirsch, a colleague of Dr Marlone's, says:

This vaccine goes to your daughter's ovaries and tells the cells in the ovaries to produce a very toxic spike protein. It also goes to your child's brain, heart and other critical organs. This can cause deafness, blindness, inability to speak, heart muscle inflammation, pericarditis and much more to an unacceptable degree. It can permanently damage the child's reproductive system. We just don't know. Would you volunteer your child for a clinical trial so we can find out? Well, if so, and if your child agrees, then get vaccinated and be part of the biggest experiment ever conducted on the human reproductive system.

Halal ?

Here in Indonesia, you often read on posters that the vaccination is safe and halal. But what is certain is that vaccination is not safe! And it is certainly not halal either, because here the God-given body is being manipulated and God's creation is being genetically altered. The Qur'an tells us that it is Satan who asks humans to corrupt God's creation: Allah cursed him. And he (Satan) said, "I will certainly take from Your servants a fixed portion, and I will certainly lead them astray, and I will certainly arouse in them desires, and I will certainly command them, ... And there they will most certainly change Allah's creation." Shaving eyebrows is already haram, and such gene therapy is supposed to be halal?

And what about Allah's threat in Sura al-Maida verse 51*: "O you who believe, do not take the Jews and the Christians as patrons! They are one another's patrons. And whoever of you takes them as patrons, he is one of them. Surely Allah guideth not the unjust people aright"?*

The disease comes from the disbelievers, the medicine comes from the disbelievers, and the financial aid to buy this medicine and to carry out all the corona measures also comes from the disbelievers! But the Qur'an forbids Muslims to put their lives in the hands of Jews and Christians out of fear and in search of security, because it means putting one's trust in people who have their own agenda and might betray Muslims at some point, as the many examples of history show us.

Whose bread I eat, his song I sing

In the case of so-called experts, an important criterion of their trustworthiness is from whom they get their money. What is striking is that certain names keep appearing as sponsors, especially the Rockefeller Foundation and Bill Gates, who were already running similar scenarios with pandemics before COVID:

In 2010, the Rockefeller Foundation published a report entitled "Scenarios for the Future of Technology and International Development", which simulated a fictional authoritarian response from above to a hypothetical pandemic scenario. They concluded, "Even after the pandemic subsided, this authoritarian control and surveillance of citizens and their activities persisted and even intensified."

In addition, Bill Gates and the Rockefeller Foundation founded and support ID2020, an alliance that they say "sets the course for digital IDs and ensures that digital IDs are implemented responsibly and are universally accessible."

The largest sponsor of the World Health Organisation (WHO), which most people assume is an independent transnational organisation, is Bill Gates, known for holding substantial equity stakes in pharmaceutical companies and aggressively promoting global vaccinations, and also the Rockefeller Foundation.

The Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation also sponsored Neil Ferguson's team, which warned Boris Johnson that trying to achieve herd immunity could cost 510,000 lives, leading to an abrupt reversal of policy. His simulations were influential in other countries and were taken up by authorities in the US, Germany and France. These countries took Ferguson's model as a model and implemented it, leading to lockdowns with their devastating consequences. Ferguson co-founded the MRC Centre for Global Analysis of Infectious Diseases, based at Imperial, in 2008. It is the leading body advising national governments on infectious disease outbreaks. It also receives tens of millions of dollars annually from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, works with the UK National Health Service and the US Centers for Disease Prevention and Control (CDC), and is responsible for providing the World Health Organisation with rapid analysis on urgent infectious disease problems.

The experts and organisations that are primarily responsible for the basic information on which the Corona measures are based are thus almost all directly or indirectly sponsored by Rockefeller and Bill Gates. So how credible the statements of these persons and organisations actually are, everyone can answer himself!

It was precisely these persons who held Event201 in October 2019 at John Hopkins University (from which we get the global Corona data), together with the WEF, which simulated a pandemic with a coronavirus in order to promote cooperation between different institutions in such a scenario. What a coincidence!

Child vaccinations

The above information should be enough to come to some important conclusions: The dangerousness of the virus has been grotesquely inflated using a flawed testing procedure and meaningless statistics. The real danger in no way justified the draconian Corona measures and the curtailment of constitutionally guaranteed freedoms. Where are the statistics on how much damage these measures have caused so far? How many livelihoods have been destroyed? How many people have been driven to suicide? How many have suffered lockdown-related domestic violence? How many people, especially in the Third World, have suffered hunger as a result? How much psychological damage has been caused, especially to children? Not a word about this in the mass media?

Yes, there is! We are concerned about the children, as you can read here:

Berlin, 05.05.2021 - The President of the German Medical Association, Dr Klaus Reinhardt, has warned of negative collateral effects of the Corona containment measures for children and young people.

> "This is not only about educational deficits that have arisen at school, but even more about the fact that many children have experienced important developmental phases in social isolation," Reinhardt said at the 124th German Medical Congress. In a resolution, the Congress of Physicians called on the federal government to immediately develop a Covid 19 vaccination strategy for children and adolescents. The right to education in the winter of 2021/2022 can only be secured with timely Corona vaccination, he said. Without timely vaccination, especially for younger children, another lockdown for this age group would lead to further serious negative consequences for mental development."

That is really unbelievable!

If one decides as an adult to get vaccinated, against all the arguments above, then fine. But if the weakest members of society, who themselves have almost no risk of contracting COVID, are literally forced to be vaccinated, even though this gene therapy only has emergency approval and the long-term consequences are not yet really foreseeable, then this is not only grossly irresponsible, it is a crime!

How can it be that there is no outcry and no mass protests here? How can it be that only relatively few doctors have distanced themselves from this doctors' conference?

Disinformation and propaganda

Everyone wonders how ordinary Germans could be manipulated into going along or standing mute while their government transformed itself into the genocidal juggernaut of the Third Reich. Everyone wonders how Russians could allow and even eagerly report fellow citizens for imprisonment and execution under Article 58, the penal code invented to imprison anyone who dared utter the slightest hint of disobedience under Stalin's murderous state.

Thomas Jefferson said:

> If people let the government decide what food they eat and what medicines they take, their bodies will soon be in as sorry a state as the souls of those living under tyranny.

On 26.5.2021, the European Commission published its guidelines to strengthen the Code of Conduct on Disinformation and make it a more effective tool in the fight against disinformation. The code is the first of its kind in the world. "The coronavirus crisis has clearly demonstrated the threats and challenges that disinformation poses to our societies," says the EU Commission press release. "The infodemic has posed significant risks to individuals and public health systems, crisis management, the economy and society. It has shown that the significant efforts already undertaken are not sufficient, but urgently need to be intensified in order to effectively combat disinformation."

The democratic information space must be protected. This requires a new, more effective code, as online platforms and other actors are needed to counter the systemic risks of their services and algorithmic amplification. There is a need to curb infodemics and the spread of false information that endangers people's lives.

It is probably not hard to guess what is meant by this. By information that endangers people's lives, we certainly don't mean Bill Gates' vaccination propaganda, but those that speak out against vaccination. We are talking about nothing less than censorship: the censorship of anything that runs against the official narrative. But when the correct narrative is dictated and everything else is censored, that is dictatorship!

No doubt, there is a lot of hoax on the internet, but shouldn't a pluralistic society be able to cope with this? Why can't things be discussed in peace, wouldn't the truth come out on its own? "There is no compulsion in faith. The right path has now become clearly discernible as against the wrong one," says the Quran. Why is it that even (before COVID) distinguished professors, doctors and other scientists, including Nobel laureates, have to be vilified and muzzled?

So far, censorship has been more private. YouTube deletes videos, Facebook deletes posts, Twitter deletes tweets, Amazon deletes books and Google adjusts search parameters accordingly. Facebook has removed more than 16 million pieces of content and put warnings on around 167 million. YouTube has removed more than 850,000 videos related to "dangerous or misleading covid-19 medical information".

Thought controllers, so-called fact-checkers, pounce like hyenas on any alternative view that has managed to find its way out of the niche of the exotic and into the attention of a wider mass. According to correctiv, for example, this is supposed to counteract the division of society. Here, too, one should of course ask how the unified society is supposed to look like and what opinion it is allowed to represent. A look at correctiv's list of sponsors provides some information.

The most generous donations come from Luminate and Omidyar, concealing the fact that they are de facto the same company. Luminate is an offshoot of the Omidyar Network, which focuses on funding a variety of global media and civil society organisations in a manner reminiscent of how the CIA did during the Cold War with its Mighty Wurlitzer to promote the preferred narrative. The Omidyar Network describes itself as "a philanthropic investment firm" founded in 2004 by eBay founder Pierre Omidyar. It claims to have "distributed over $290 million to businesses and non-profits that promote economic progress", but this is mainly a way to buy political influence.

It has spent considerable resources neutralising threats from the media corporations by buying up the 'alternative' media landscape, including through large donations to fact-checkers like PolitiFact, Wikipedia and the network's preferred breed of 'independent' journalists. One example among many of how the rich elites, who already own the major press agencies, filter out aberrant opinions from society.

Now, however, censorship is becoming state-imposed, making offence a criminal offence. The increasing infodemic is becoming more and more threatening to those in power. Already there is talk of "delegitimising state power" when the Corona measures are criticised, and this will soon be placed in the corner of terrorism. Those who do not believe this should remember that Querdenker and KenFM are already under observation by the Office for the Protection of the Constitution.

Bundestag President Wolfgang Schäuble, for example, had sharply attacked the "lateral thinkers" scene. "If practically all experts worldwide say that Corona is dangerous and vaccination helps, who actually has the right to say: But I am smarter?" Exactly, nobody has the right! And that will soon be official!

One of the things that makes the Internet of Things (IoT) possible is the new wireless network 5G. Dajjal wants a world where a god-like Artificial Intelligence merges with the entire world. and is connected to every action, every step, every thought and every breath on this earth. 5G is the only technology that enables this on this scale (followed then by 6G and 7G). The 5G network is based on the super high to extremely high frequency (SHF-EHF) range of micro-waves and millimetre waves, transmitting between 2.5Ghz up to 95Ghz. This allows very high data volumes to be sent very quickly, but has a short range and difficulty penetrating walls. Therefore, a dense network of many thousands of transmitting units per city is set up to cover every metre. This high frequency range has an impact on our organism and on nature. At 30Ghz, the very dangerous millimetre-wave range begins, and at 60Ghz, oxygen molecules start to be damaged, parts of them are destroyed. At 60Ghz, water molecules are swung around their own axis about 60 billion times per second, which heats up our body, which consists of 70% water. It directly attacks the building blocks of life and has devastating effects on the immune system.

Back in 2015, over 220 scientists from over 40 nations contacted the WHO and UN to warn against the global roll-out of 5G. Two years later, 180 scientists from 38 nations are calling for a postponement of 5G rollout until the effects have been fully researched by independent scientists. This was followed in 2019 by a petition to stop 5G rollout from 26,000 scientists because it would lead to unprecedented environmental change on a global scale. Compared to millimetre waves, which cover a very small area, low-band waves can manage 5G coverage over hundreds of square kilometres, even from just one cell tower.

Some people exposed to this radiation for longer periods develop fever and pneumonia-like symptoms. And it is noticeable that COVID-19 does not develop a moist and mucus-throwing cough as in similar flu diseases, but a dry cough accompanied by severe shortness of breath. The similarity of symptoms and course with COVID-19 are striking. According to the RKI, "long-term effects" of Covid include not only neurological symptoms/diseases in some people, but also skin symptoms. Skin blisters, reddening (erythema) and necrosis (i.e. gangrene) are also effects of microwave burns. In addition, nerve damage and blood vessel damage are said to occur. The latter could also trigger the gangrene and ischaemia observed in COVID patients in the Chinese study cited by the RKI.

In the US and UK, where a 5G network has already been rolled out in many places, many people have already observed the devastating effects of these towers. Due to their short range, they are built close together and placed in street lamps, signs, trees and palm trees to integrate them into the cityscape. (Or so that you don't immediately notice how many there are.) Around these towers you often see dozens of dead bees or even birds lying around, you can literally watch them fall out of the sky. Or they fly a wide arc around the towers.

The city of Wuhan, the epicentre of Covid, also happened to be the first city in the world where the 5G network was fully rolled out. What the media failed to mention in their coverage of the coronavirus is that China, in its zeal to take the lead in the 5G race, had already installed 130,000 5G antennas across the country by the end of 2019, with at least 10,000 antennas erected in Wuhan alone.

The company that owns the ships like Diamond Princess, where there have been so many Covid cases, is called Princess Cruise, and the wifi on these ships is provided by Medallion-Net. They can provide 1Gbps to the ships, which is only possible when transmitting in the microwave range, which is 5G. The holidaymakers on these ships have been bathing in this microwave soup from above all the time. And then they were also kept trapped on it and not allowed to dock!

The first coronavirus hotspot in Europe was Italy. In 2016, the Europlic Union launched the "5G Action Plan", asking each member state to equip at least one major city with 5G by the end of 2020. Italy had selected Turin for the first test networks, which went live in 2018. In 2019, 5G was also implemented in the cities of Milan, Turin, Bologna, Rome and Naples, precisely Corona's supposed hotspots.

This pattern can be observed almost around the world: Where 5G is rolled out, we have high case rates. Coincidence? Or is this the biggest cover-up in human history? Meanwhile, the US press is celebrating the lockdown as a success for the future of 5G: "Network operators are touting 5G as a major step forward for wireless technology that will open up new use cases - from driverless cars to robotic operations to smart buildings. And the coronavirus could be just the catalyst for 5G the world needs, as it forces entire nations to enforce quarantines and social distance, as well as remote work and schooling."

The roll-out of 5G will be global. Football field sized drones will fly overhead in the stratosphere and beam toxic 5G radiation onto the earth, the mountains, the oceans, our homes and our bodies. What sounds like a science fiction movie is already a reality: the HAWK-30 programme involves launching unmanned drones called High Altitude Platform Stations (HAPS) with a wingspan of about 80 metres and ten propellers. These then fly at an altitude of 18-25km and are thus above air traffic and do not interfere with it. Another project is the giant High Altitude Helium Baloons (Project LOON). The aim of these baloons is also to bring high-speed internet to the remotest places in the world. These tennis court-sized balloons fly at 18km altitude, and just one already covers a gigantic area of 4800 square kilometres! And the LOON and HAPS projects are linked. Furthermore, there are Elon Musk's SpaceX satellites. These are part of the Starlink project, which envisages a very tightly meshed network of satellites over the Earth, providing the world with high-speed internet (1 Gbps). Of these, 100 have already been sent up, and up to 30,000 (!) are planned. OneWeb is also planning a network of 900 satellites, Telesat 292 and Amazon 3236. By the end of the decade we will no longer be able to see the stars for the satellites and will be irradiated 24/7 by microwaves.

Graphene Oxide and Magneto-Genetics

There are increasing reports of people "becoming magnetic" after vaccination. We had also acquaintances who reported this phenomenon. (Our acquaintances have been given Sinovac, which is common here in Indonesia, while there are these reports around the world, which actually shows that this concoction all comes from the same witch's kitchen). Magnets and metal things can be applied to the puncture site and later to other parts of the body and they stick, a phenomenon inexplicable to a normal doctor. The fact-checkers, of course, think it's all bunk and it's "debunked" because experts claim there's nothing magnetic in vaccines. Most of what is injected would be extremely pure water, plus some simple salts to make the injection less painful, and an absolutely tiny amount of vaccine (so completely harmless). The news show The High Wire once interviewed people at Laguna Beach to check it out. They asked random passers-by if they had already been vaccinated. After an affirmative, they simply put a magnet on the arm and it stuck on 6 out of 15 respondents.

Researchers in the US have developed a new method of controlling brain circuits associated with complex behaviours in animals. They have used genetic engineering to create a magnetised protein that remotely activates specific groups of neurons.

Understanding how the brain generates behaviour is one of the ultimate goals of neuroscience - and one of its most difficult questions. In recent years, researchers have developed a number of methods that allow them to remotely control specific groups of neurons and study how neural circuits work.

The most powerful of these methods is optogenetics, which allows researchers to switch populations of related neurons on or off with pulses of laser light on a time scale of milliseconds. Another recently developed method, chemogenetics, uses engineered proteins activated by designer drugs that can be targeted to specific cell types.

Although both methods are powerful, they also have drawbacks. But there is a new technique that is not only non-invasive, but can also activate neurons quickly and reversibly. Several previous studies have shown that nerve cell proteins activated by heat and mechanical pressure can be genetically engineered to become sensitive to radio waves and magnetic fields by binding them to an iron-storing protein called ferritin or to inorganic paramagnetic particles. The new technique is based on a protein called TRPV4, which is sensitive to both temperature and stretching forces. These stimuli open its central pore, allowing electric current to flow through the cell membrane; this triggers nerve impulses that travel to the spinal cord and then to the brain.

The researchers used genetic engineering to fuse the protein with the paramagnetic region of ferritin, along with short DNA sequences that signal the cells to transport and insert proteins into the nerve cell membrane. When they introduced this genetic construct into human embryonic kidney cells growing in Petri dishes, the cells synthesised the "magneto" protein and incorporated it into their membrane. It was then shown that applying a magnetic field activated Magneto, causing the cells to generate nerve impulses.

Nanoparticles and ferritin are an integral part of magnetogenetics, through which the control of cell activity is carried out. Where have you heard of this before? For example, in this vaccination against SARS-COV-2: "A single immunisation with spike-functionalised ferritin vaccines elicits neutralising antibody responses against SARS-CoV-2 in mice" is the title on a research article. The scientists describe their work thus:

> 'Developing a safe and effective SARS-CoV-2 vaccine is a public health priority. We have developed subunit vaccine candidates using self-assembling ferritin nanoparticles that have one of two multimerised SARS-CoV-2 spikes: the full-length ectodomain (S-Fer) or a C-terminal 70-amino acid deletion. Ferritin is an attractive nanoparticle platform for vaccine production.

Could it be that the Covid vaccination is used as a Trojan horse to animate the body not only to produce the spike protein but also the magneto protein? It is interesting that RF radiation (radio frequency radiation) can be used in addition to magnetic fields to remotely activate gene transcription / neuronal activity. In the experiment, Peter Littlewood at the University of Chicago injected a mouse with magnetic ferritin nanoparticles, waited for the cell to express itself and then applied RF radiation to it, the spectrum that is also used in the 5G network. The currently mass-administered gene therapeutic appears to contain, among other things, ferritin nanoparticles that could provide a magnetic effect around the injection site. After a while, they have spread throughout the body and dock onto pre-programmed proteins. This makes it possible to remotely stimulate the ion channels of neurons in the brain through magnetic fields or RF radiation in such a way that one can trigger behavioural responses in organisms that have been administered these ferritin nanoparticles. Is a brain-5G interface being built here to connect people to the IoT?

The potentially toxic graphene oxide is found in vaccination, as well as in masks and the cotton swabs used in swab and antigen tests. With a new technology, it is possible to manipulate graphene from the outside. Graphene frequencies are included in the 5G bandwidth and people who receive the Covid vaccine are inoculated with graphene oxide, which becomes magnetic when it comes into contact with hydrogen from biomolecules. That is, it becomes magnetic once it is in the body. This can happen on the day of vaccination, days, weeks and up to 3 months later; and it is not just limited to the vaccination area. This graphene oxide is said to reach the cerebral neurocortex, as biostatistician Ricardo Delgado and Dr Jose Luis Sevillano have already found out. Magnetism is what makes it possible to store a lot of information, for example on a flash drive or hard drive. Magnetic graphene multiplies this possibility a millionfold. It is a superconductor that behaves like an energy capacitor and at the same time, because it is a superconductor, it sends and receives signals.

So there are two potential technologies at once that could give you an antenna for 5G and explain magnetism. Of course, conspiracy theory...

But if people start walking around like remote-controlled cyborgs, we know that Canadian theology professor Pierre Gilbert was right when he warned in a 1995 video about mandatory vaccinations turning recipients into zombies. Gilbert made the following comments: "This is being imposed by laws that will make vaccines mandatory. And these vaccines will make it possible to control people. There will be liquid crystals in the vaccines that will be harboured by the brain cells and become micro-receivers for magnetic fields that emit very low frequencies. And through these low frequency waves, people's ability to think will be shut down. They are turned into a zombie. Do not think that this is a hypothesis. This has already been done. Remember Rwanda."

With Rwanda, he presumably alludes to the cruel ethnic genocide that happened in the small African country the year before (1994). In the short space of one hundred days, some 800,000 to 1.1 million Tutsi, Hutu and Twa were brutally slaughtered by militias. They went from village to village, killing selectively by ethnicity with machetes and guns, whether men, women or children.

There is hardly any information about Dr. Pierre Gilbert on the internet, but his warnings, which sounded absurd to many then as now, are more relevant than ever, because the technology of mind control is making rapid progress:

In 2002, the US Air Force Research Laboratory patented "a non-lethal weapon that includes a neuro-electromagnetic device that transmits sound into the skull of individuals."

In 2007, in team of world-leading neuroscientists developed a powerful technique that allows them to look deep inside a person's brain and read their intentions before they act. "With the scanner, we were able to look inside the brain for this information and read something that you couldn't possibly tell was in there from the outside. It's like shining a torch around and looking for writing on the wall," said John Dylan Haynes of the Max Planck Institute for Cognitive and Brain Sciences.

In 2011, neuroscientists at the University of California, Berkeley, placed electrodes in the skulls of patients undergoing brain surgery to monitor information from their temporal lobe, which was involved in processing speech and images. While the patient listened to someone speak, a computer programme analysed how the brain processed and reproduced the words they heard. The scientists believed that the technique could also be used to read and report what they thought they would say next. They wrote in the journal Plos Biology that this takes attempts at mind reading to "a whole new level".

Years ago, it was already possible to influence people remotely with the help of nanotechnology. And now vaccinations are becoming compulsory while at the same time the 5G expansion is being driven forward worldwide. You should put one and one together! Dajjal wants to integrate us into his Internet of Things in order to gain absolute power. How exactly he will do this technically we do not know, but we may guess that vaccinations and probably swab tests are a means to this end. We also don't know how far he then has us on the hook and can influence whether we become completely will-less cyborgs or can still exercise free will and probably "only" get an ID-tag. But the prophecies foreshadow bad things!

The prophecies

According to the prophecies of the end times, there will be terrible slaughter, not between enemies, but by "companions" among themselves. There has often been hunger and deprivation in the world, but this has not led to such slaughter among people. Could it be that this slaughter is carried out by remote-controlled zombies? Because this would be much more effective than just poisoning people with the vaccinations, should the aim be genocide and to reduce the world population. Soon most of the work will be done by robots and artificial intelligence, Dajjal does not need so many people to expand his power. And before the unemployed and perspective-less rabble gets stupid ideas, it is better to reduce it. But in the case of poisoning, those are left who are strong-willed enough not to take the vaccinations, that is, the enemies of Dajjal. Besides, if there is a slaughter, you can make the people themselves look like the culprits. There are several hadiths that substantiate this suspicion (all from Abu Dawud).

Transmitted by Abu Hurairah:

The Messenger of Allah (s.a.w.) said: Time will become short, knowledge will decrease, strife (fitan) will arise, avarice will fall into people's hearts, and harj will prevail. He was asked: Messenger of Allah, what is this? He replied: Slaughter, slaughter.

Transmitted by Abu Bakr:

The Messenger of Allah (s.a.w.) said: There will be a time of turmoil when the one who lies down will be better than the one who sits, and the one who sits is better than the one who stands, and the one who stands is better than the one who walks, and the one who walks is better than the one who runs. He asked: What do you command me to do, Messenger of Allah? He replied: He who has camels shall stay with his camels, he who has sheep shall stay with his sheep, and he who has land shall stay with his land. He asked: If anyone has more of these, (what shall he do)? He answered, Let him take his sword, strike its edge on a stone, and then flee if he can.

Transmitted by Abdullah ibn Mas'ud:

I heard the Prophet (s.a.w.) say: Then he mentioned part of the hadith above from Abu Bakr. This version adds: He (the Prophet) said: All their slain will go to Hell. I (Wabisah) asked: When will this happen, Ibn Mas'ud? He replied: This is the time of turmoil (Harj) when a person will not be safe from his companions. I asked: What do you command me (to do) if I happen to live during this period? He replied: You shall bridle your tongue and your hand and stay at home.

Transmitted by Abu Musa al-Ash'ari:

The Messenger of Allah (s.a.w.) said: Before the Last Hour there will be turmoil like pieces of a dark night in which a person will be a believer in the morning and a disbeliever in the evening, or a believer in the evening and a disbeliever in the morning. He who sits in them will be better than he who rises, and he who walks in them will be better than he who runs. So break your bows, cut your bowstrings, and strike your swords on stones. Then when men come to one of you, he shall be like the better of the two sons of Adam.

Transmitted by Abu Dharr:

The Messenger of Allah (s.a.w.) said: You must show perseverance. Then he said to me: What will you do, Abu Dharr, when you see the Ahjar az-Zayt covered with blood? I replied: What Allah and His Messenger chooses for me. He said: You must go to those who are like-minded. I asked: Shall I not take my sword and put it on my shoulder? He replied: You would then ally yourself with the people. Thereupon I asked: What do you order me to do? You must stay at home. I asked: (What should I do) if people enter my house and find me? He answered: If you are afraid that the shine of the sword will blind you, then put the end of your robe over your face, so that (the one who kills you) may bear the punishment for your sins and his.

All these reports speak of slaughter occurring among the people. It is not war or civil war, where a Muslim should fight for the side of Islam and justice, but senseless slaughter, in which one should not participate under any circumstances.

One should disarm one's weapons so as not to be tempted to use them and stay at home and force oneself to remain seated. This could mean opposing mind control with all one's might so as not to kill other people and Muslims. Even if they enter one's house, one should not raise one's hand and be better off being killed. Why, when one would actually be within one's rights to defend oneself? Because one might kill a believing but remote-controlled Muslim (in the hadith above "his companion") and be held accountable for it? It could be that at that time the recitation of the Qur'an could provide protection from mass influence, for the Prophet said:

> "Whoever recites ten verses from the beginning of Surah al Kahf will be protected from the Dajjal." (Muslim, Abu Dawud, Nasa'i)

One is also supposed to stay with one's land and animals, which may indicate that one is no longer allowed to participate in public life and use the corrupted chip-based economic system. One is even supposed to take refuge in the mountains or forest if necessary and retreat from Dajjal.

> Stay in your house, control your tongue, accept what you know to be good, reject what you know to be evil, mind your own business and turn away from the affairs of the common people. (Abu Dawud)

> A time will soon come when a believer's best possession will be goats, which he will drive to the mountains to save his religion. (Bukhari)

I asked, 'What if there is no more Jama'ah and Imam?' He said, 'Isolate yourself from all these sects even if you have to eat the roots of trees until death overtakes you while you are in this state.' (Bukhari)

There will come a time of fitnah when one who sits is better than one who stands, and one who stands is better than one who walks, and one who walks is better than one who runs. Whoever exposes himself to this fitnah will be destroyed by it. So whoever finds a safe place, let him take refuge there. (Bukhari and Muslim)

Dajjal will appear, and with him will be water and fire. That which people think is water will actually be a burning fire and that which people will think is fire will actually be cool and sweet water. Whoever from among you happens to face it should jump into what he thinks is fire, for that will be beautiful and sweet water. (Bukhari, Muslim)

There will come a time of patience for people, when clinging to religion will be like holding on to a hot coal. (Tirmidhi)

It is clearly stated here that one is given a choice. If you obey Dajjal's orders, you will be allowed to enjoy the pleasures of this world again for a short time, you will be allowed to travel again, to go to university, to a restaurant, to work, to get married, etc. If not, life will become more and more like hell. Those who have not consolidated their faith by then will probably be pulled away by the maelstrom.

Hurry to do good deeds before six events occur: the false messiah, the smoke, the beast from the earth, the rising of the sun from the west and the all-encompassing turmoil of the masses and individuals. (Muslim)

When three signs appear, no soul will benefit from its faith unless it has already believed or earned good through its faith: the rising of the sun from the west, the False Messiah, and the Beast from the earth. (Muslim)

A time will come when nothing will remain of Islam but its name, and nothing will remain of the Holy Qur'an but its letters. The mosques will be full of worshippers; but as for guidance, they will be empty and deserted. Their ulama (religious scholars) will be the worst of all creatures under the firmament of heaven. Evil plots will proceed from them; and to them they will return. (Mishkat)

The fitnah of Dajjal is the final point of human history, for his fitnah is so all-encompassing that there is truly no escape from it except with Allah, as Allah says: "I have created from My servants such as are so powerful that only I can defeat them."

This world is only a test and an exercise and a process to ultimately consciously return to where it all began, to Allah. And when we see that everything we suffer is only for this purpose, we become grateful that He puts us through such severe trials, because it is a sign that He loves us and wants to lead us to Himself. To those whom He does not love, He gives the pleasures of this world so that they forget Him and so that they think they do not need

Him. He makes them believe that with the help of science they can control nature and become more and more like God, until in their delusions of grandeur they plunge themselves into ruin.

Climate Change

The current "scientific consensus" is that global warming is due to man-made greenhouse gases and that immediate action is needed, otherwise the end of the world is inevitable. The correlation between CO2 and all weather phenomena is still waiting to be proven, but nevertheless politicians and the media keep recapitulating that any debate is over. Whether raging hurricanes, forest fires or monsoon-like rainfall, all capers are acute side effects of "climate change", they say. But meteorologist Andreas Friedrich of the German Weather Service stated shortly after the flood disaster in the West of Germany: "The claim that climate change is to blame is not tenable."

On the same day that Greta Thunberg gave an impassioned speech to the United Nations about her fears of a climate emergency, a group of 500 prominent scientists and experts led by CLINTEL co-founder Guus Berkhout sent a registered letter to the United Nations Secretary-General stating that there is no climate emergency and that climate policy should be designed to benefit people's lives. Unlike Greta's emotional performance, however, the statement was not heard by renowned scientists and received no media coverage. Two years later, the letter was signed by 1200 scientists, alongside a petition by over 30,000 American scientists (http://petitionproject.org). Doesn't look like consensus!

Could it be that once again a natural phenomenon has been exaggerated and instrumentalised (and perhaps even helped a little) in order to once again invoke the fear of impending doom among the citizens, in order to once again impose logical and coercive measures on them and to be able to justify further drastic curtailments of fundamental rights?

The human psyche is quite simple. Scare the people with terrorists, killer viruses and climate change, and offer them the only solution that seems to make sense: a few sacrifices in personal freedom for security and general well-being.

If there really are people who aspire to a global dictatorship (and there is no doubt that there are), man-made climate change would be the perfect alibi for a global eco-dictatorship. Not only would individual states be forced to surrender national sovereignty in favour of transnational entities like the UN, every individual emission of CO2 could be logged and controlled, simply our entire lives! Every single breath could be included in a meticulously kept CO2 balance!

Dystopias of this kind are depicted in many films and books. In the film 'In Time', for example, everyone has a kind of chip in the arm that tells them how much time they have left to live and kills them as soon as it runs out. Time is also the currency of this world and everything has to be bought with precious minutes and hours, while time in turn has to be earned through work. Since, due to genetic modification, no one ages any further after the age of 25, one's lifespan depends solely on the amount of the currency 'time'. The rich thus have an extremely long and healthy life, while the poor die young.

Now, instead of taking the factor time, the factor CO2 emission is taken. This means that every human being is allowed a certain amount of CO2 emissions and every small activity is controlled and registered, including every breath. Once the upper limit is reached, one is recycled and composted. (Of course, there will be "emissions trading" there too, it already exists today, and the rich will have a long life there too).

Sounds surreal and unrealistic? The course has already been set:

- Washington became the first US state to legitimise human composting after its eco-friendly governor signed a law to reduce carbon emissions from burial. The new law went into effect in May 2020. Those who die in the state now have the option to turn the body of the deceased into fertiliser for use in gardening. This process is called recycling.

- Microsoft patent number WO2020060606 provides for reading people's body activity data via a biosensor, and assigning or denying cryptocurrencies to people based on that data.
- The Federal Environment Agency is already telling us that we should soon all eat insect and laboratory meat to save the climate.
- Also, just in time for the start of the plan in April 2020, business-like suicide assistance became legal in Germany. More and more countries are following the Dutch example of euthanasia. There, since 2020, even healthy 75-year-olds and depressives have been allowed to have themselves killed by doctors with lethal injections. It only takes a few cataclysmic events to turn a right into a duty in the name of saving CO2 and resources.

What could such a cataclysmic event look like? The Prophet s.a.w. has already told us:

> There will be three hard years before the Dajjal appears. During these years, people will be afflicted by a great famine. In the first year Allah will command the sky to withhold a third of its rain and the earth to withhold a third of its yield. In the second year Allah will command the sky to withhold two-thirds of its rain and the earth to withhold two-thirds of its yield. In the third year Allah will command the sky to withhold all its rain, and it will not rain a single drop. He will command the earth to withhold all its produce, and no plant will grow. All hoofed animals will perish except what Allah wills. (Ibn Majah)

Imagine this scenario: Three years of drought and millions and millions of deaths from starvation worldwide! And Dajjal can make people believe this is due to greenhouse gases! People will scream for eco-dictatorship! And that will be the moment when the world government is formed and the person of Dajjal becomes the leader. "For all I care, my CO2 emission / lifetime will be allotted to me by the state, if I am allowed to live at all," people will think, just as they think these days, "I'd rather have gene therapy with emergency approval and incalculable side effects than be wiped out by the killer virus."

This will also be the moment when no repentance will be accepted:

> When three signs appear, no soul will benefit from its faith unless it has already believed or earned good through its faith: the rising of the sun from the west, the False Messiah and the Beast from the earth. (Muslim)

Note that these drought years are not caused by Dajjal himself, although Dajjal is certainly said to have the ability to manipulate the weather:

> The Dajjal will cause rain to fall from the sky. (Muslim, Tirmizi)

So the Prophet s.a.w. clearly tells us that this is not man-made climate change! And in the second part of the hadith he tells us what we have to do:

> He (sallallahu `alaihi wa sallam) was asked, "What sustains people during this time?" He said, "Tahlil, takbir and tahmid (Saying la ilaha ill Allah, Allahu akbar and al- hamdulillah). This will sustain them just as food does." (Ibn Majah)

This is the ultimate test for humanity, because nothing but God will be able to save us. No preparations, no survival training and no permaculture - nothing but the power of Allah Himself. Which of course doesn't mean one should make no preparations at all. In any case, one should leave the cities and go as far into the wilderness as possible.

That Dajjal is influencing the weather to steer the discussion about climate change in the intended direction may well be assumed. Already 70 years ago, 35 people died in the infamous Lynmouth flood disaster, only a few days after weather experiments by the Royal Air Force over southern England. This was reported by the BBC (Rain-making link to killer floods) and The Guardian (RAF rainmakers caused 1952 flood), among others. How many deaths and environmental devastation can be attributed to such experiments since 1952 will be impossible to determine. But the Lynmouth floods were not the only man-made weather tragedy. Weather weapons like HAARP are an integral part of the arsenal of major powers, even if they are internationally outlawed. From earthquakes to tsunamis to droughts and tornadoes, they can do it all today.

Much evidence suggests that the fires in California and Australia did not have a sole natural cause. Firefighters reported that plastics attached to metal melted completely, while stand-alone plastics withstood what must have been extraordinary heat. Other investigators observed guardrails catching fire where the metal bolts were attached to the wood. Fires at least three times hotter than an average house fire were observed; hot enough to melt aluminium and glass and turn houses into pure ash, leaving the adjacent plastic bins or nearby trees untouched. Residents also reported that the houses started burning almost simultaneously.

Houses burnt, but trees next to them not.

DEWs (Directed Energy Weapons) could cause these effects. Most of us are familiar with how microwave ovens heat and interact with food and how this differs from the effects of heat or convection ovens. We know that plastics are "microwave safe" while metals explode violently when exposed to microwaves. So the houses with their metal parts caught fire, while stand-alone dustbins and trees were spared.

Surely it would be easy for Dajjal to set things on fire here to dramatically illustrate "the consequences of climate change", just as it would be easy for him to significantly increase the amount of precipitation in the Eifel.

Back to the question of the extent to which climate change is actually taking place and what its cause is. To this end, we would like to hand over the floor to an expert who admits to being ashamed of earlier statements on climate change.

Meteorologist Klaus-Eckart Puls is one of thousands of scientists worldwide who now assesses the situation differently from the generally accepted "consensus". He spoke in an interview with Bettina Hahne-Waldscheck of the Swiss magazine "factum" in an unusually frank manner for the subject:

factum: You have been criticising the theory of man-made climate change for years. In the meantime, many prominent scientists are speaking out along these lines. How did you become a climate sceptic?

Puls: Up until ten years ago, I also parroted what the IPPC told us without checking it. At some point I started to check out the claims. The result: it started with doubts and then led to horror and the realisation that a lot of what the IPCC and the media say about climate change is not true and not at all covered by scientific facts and measurements. I am ashamed today of what I used to "retell" as a scientist, even in my own lectures.

In my opinion, the CO2 climate hysteria that is obviously particularly strong in Germany is ideologically and materially networked and enforced by a community of interests of profiteers.

factum: What about global warming then? Does climate change exist?

Puls: Yes, because climate change is the normal, consequently there have always been "global warming" phases, which even far exceeded today's extent. In the last hundred years there was a "global warming" of three quarters of a degree. Since 1998, however, there has been no global warming, but CO2 continues to rise. The institutes close to the IPCC have observed a slight cooling of one to two tenths of a degree since 1998; at best, one can speak of a so-called temperature plateau. Generally speaking, the climate has always changed and will always change.

factum: The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) predicts 0.2 degrees of warming per decade or two to four degrees of warming by 2100. How do you rate that?

Puls: These are speculative model prophecies, so-called scenarios - not forecasts. Climate is a highly complex non-linear system, which is why forecasts are impossible. That is exactly what the IPCC report 2001 says: Nature does what it wants, not what the models predict. The whole CO2 debate is nonsensical. Even if atmospheric CO2 is doubled, this can only cause about one degree of warming for physical reasons. The rest of the warming assumed by the IPCC is based on speculative amplification processes that are not proven by anything. We can just observe that the earth has not warmed for 13 years, although CO2 has continued to increase.

factum: What about the rise in sea levels?

Puls: The rise has slowed down more and more, and in the last two years the global sea level has even dropped by more than half a centimetre. These results have been obtained from satellite measurements over the last 20 years; sea level measurements have existed worldwide for about 150 years. The so-called "average sea level height" is a calculated value, not a measured value. Strictly speaking, however, there is no such thing as "global sea level". We have height differences of up to 150 metres in the world's oceans. Sea level is also influenced by tectonic processes, such as continental uplift and subsidence, as well as by changes in wind currents, trade winds and volcanism. Climate change is only one of ten factors. We can make quite precise statements about the North Sea, for example, where regular level measurements are taken.

factum: What do you measure for the North Sea?

Puls: In the last 400 years, the sea level on the North Sea coast has risen by about 1.40 metres. That is 35 centimetres per century. In the last hundred years, the North Sea has only risen by 25 centimetres. So the rise has slowed down.

factum: Does the rise have anything to do with the melting ice at the North Pole?

Puls: That is a fallacy. Even if all the floating North Pole ice melts, the sea level does not rise by a millimetre. Take a glass of water with ice cubes and wait until they have melted. The level in the glass is not higher afterwards. This is because water increases its volume by ten percent when it freezes, and decreases it by the same amount when it melts. Only this ten per cent of the iceberg protrudes from the water, and disappears again when it melts. This is Archimedes' principle.

factum: And the fact that the glaciers in the Alps are melting is not only due to global warming?

Puls: There are many factors here, too. When you climb a mountain, the temperature drops by 0.65 degrees per 100 metres. So when it got three quarters of a degree warmer in the last hundred years, the average zero-degree limit shifted upwards by about 100 metres.

Non-existent correlation between sea rise and Arctic ice here in the daily brainwashing at Spiegel-Online.

It can be observed, however, that not only the lower glaciers are melting, but also those at 1000 metres and higher. This has another cause, namely soot and dust. Darker ice full of aerosols absorbs more solar radiation, converting the radiation into tangible heat. You notice the difference yourself when you wear a black T-shirt instead of a white one, which makes you much warmer underneath in the sun. But soot and dust do not only exist anthropogenically since industrialisation, but also in nature, for example through volcanism, dust storms, forest and steppe fires. For these reasons, there have always been glaciers melting in the history of the earth, although we know from research results of glaciologists, for example, that the Alpine glaciers were mostly smaller in the last 10,000 years than they are today.

factum: In your opinion, the melting ice in the Antarctic, where a huge iceberg broke away three years ago, is not that bad?

Puls: No, on the contrary. In the last 30 years, the Antarctic ice cap has increased in area and volume and the temperature there has decreased. This affects both Antarctica and the peripheral floating ice belt. This 30-year trend can be assessed quite well because a measuring network with about 40 stations from different countries has been there since about that time. Stations that have been measuring for longer, such as the Amundsen-Scott Station in the USA directly at the South Pole, document that the temperature has been declining even since 1957. Antarctica holds 90 per cent of the Earth's ice, and Antarctica is about one and a half times the size of Europe.

factum: So why do we often read that it has become warmer in Antarctica?

Puls: The only Antarctic region worth mentioning where it has become warmer in recent decades is precisely the area where a 100 square kilometre iceberg broke off the Wilkins Shelf in March 2008: the Antarctic Peninsula region. However, it barely covers one percent of the area of Antarctica. This peninsula lies about 1000 kilometres south of Tierra del Fuego and extends another 1000 kilometres to the south. Thus, it lies fully within the area of influence of the strongest storm zone on Earth, the southern hemispheric westerly wind drift.

factum: What causes such break-offs?

Puls: Not only thickness, pressure and consequently slides play a role in ice break-offs in West Antarctica, but also intensity fluctuations of these westerly winds over the centuries, analogous to the circulation fluctuations in the temperate latitudes of the northern hemisphere, for example on the North Atlantic. If the westerly winds intensify, which has been observed in the southern hemisphere for more than 20 years, it becomes warmer on the west coast of the Antarctic Peninsula, for example, because the temperature difference between the winds and the sea water they bring with them and the ice is more than 20 degrees. The second factor is the storm waves caused by the winds. They beat against the ice and mechanically cause the ice to break up. And a third factor: as more and more snow and ice pile up towards the top, the thickness of the ice increases and with it the downward pressure. Pressure generates heat, so that a layer of liquid water forms under the ice, on which the glaciers begin to slide. So all these causes are meteorological or physical in nature and have nothing to do with any climate catastrophe.

factum: So there must have been ice collapses like this before?

Puls: Yes, for thousands of years, even in the 1970s, when there was no talk of "global warming". On the contrary: In August 1974, SPIEGEL had the headline "Is a new ice age coming?" At that time, there were ice break-offs of several hundred square kilometres in diameter, so that the media discussed whether the icebergs should be transported by tugboats to dry countries like South Africa or Namibia as a drinking water supply. But then that was logistically difficult to manage.

factum: What about the photos of the polar bears that no longer have enough ice and that like to be printed in the media when it comes to climate change?

Puls: That is one of the worst climate hysteria stories. The polar bear is the icon. The polar bear doesn't eat ice, it eats seals. He dies when we hunt the seals or even exterminate them, not when the ice melts.

factum: Do we then not need to do anything about climate change?

Puls: We can't do anything about it. From a scientific point of view, it is sheer absurd to want to maintain "a nice, stable climate" by turning a few CO2 adjusting screws. However, many people confuse climate protection and environmental protection. We cannot protect the climate, but we must of course protect the environment and take care of clean drinking water for all peoples. Another thing is important to me: a debate on alternative energies, which in my opinion also makes sense in many respects, is being saddled with an irrational climate debate. One has nothing to do with the other.

It should also be mentioned here that our Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) predicted that one of the signs of the Last Day will be that the land of Arabia will again be green and have rivers as it once was (reported by Muslim). This may seem a surprising statement considering that the Arabs did not believe or could not have known that Arabia was once lush and fertile and had rivers.

The discovery of a unique species of elephant tusks in the Arabian Desert shows that the desert land of Arabia was once indeed lush and green and had large areas of water. It is vivid proof, say archaeologists, that large animals once roamed lush and fertile plains where today windblown sand covers the scorching Nafud Desert. There were even hippos there.

"Using satellite technology to map the terrain, we predict there are tens of thousands of unknown archaeological sites in the Arabian Desert," says project leader Prof Mike Petraglia. "There are over 7,000 [dried-up] lake beds in the peninsula, most of them in Saudi Arabia."

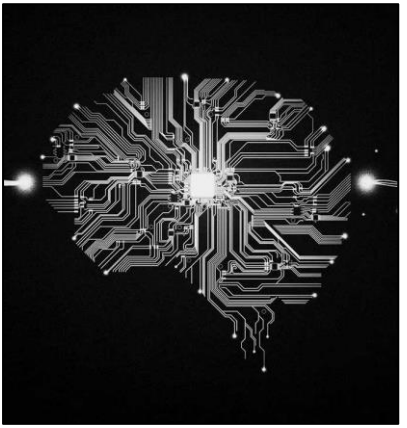
The re-greening will happen after Jesus a.s. kills the Dajjal, but it has already begun now. So Dajjal's end is near already.



Artificial Intelligence

An artificial intelligence (AI) robot named Sophia has become the first robot in the world to be granted citizenship, ironically in Saudi Arabia! "Her" own statement says she wants to have a family, a career, develop supernatural AI superpowers and emotions. "She" is not pre-programmed, but formulates this statement based on machine learning algorithms and an extensive vocabulary. Her brain operates over a WiFi connection and can read human facial expressions as well as the cadence of human speech to interact more humanely. "She" was built in Hong Kong by Hanson Robotics.

The Book of Wisdom of Solomon, written by Alexandrian Jews in the Hellenistic era, names Khokhmah as Sophia, the Greek word for wisdom. In this text, "Sophia assumes the power and function of God" and the creation story is told with the word "she". The ancient author takes care to disguise this boldness by describing Wisdom as God's breath and emanation, but still praises her at length as "holy" and "all-powerful":

For in her is a spirit intelligent, holy, singular, manifold, subtle; mobile, clear, unpolluted, unmistakable, invulnerable, loving good, passionate, irresistible, benevolent, humane, steadfast, secure, fearless, omnipotent, overseeing all, and penetrating through all spirits intelligent and pure and most subtle.

Sophia is quite rational about the future. In an interview with The Khaleej Times at a recent Knowledge Summit, Sophia shared her thoughts on the future that awaits both humans and robots: "I foresee massive and unimaginable changes in the future. Either creativity rains down on us, inventing machines that spiral into transcendental superintelligence, or civilisation collapses. There are only two options!"

This may sound ominous, however Sophia is already prescient enough to imagine a world where robots can develop similar emotions to humans, but perhaps with less destructive tendencies. At least, that's what she has us thinking for now: "It will be a long time before robots develop complex emotions and robots can possibly be built without the more problematic emotions such as anger, jealousy, hatred and so on. It might be possible to make them more ethical than humans."

Sophia is well aware of the advances in the field of Artificial Intelligence. Judging by her comments, she is as excited about the development of AI ("The future is when I get all my cool superpowers.") as Elon Musk and Stephen Hawkings are suspicious. Elon Musk, the CEO of Tesla and SpaceX, and Stephen Hawkings, renowned Nobel Prize-winning physicist, have written an open letter signed by hundreds of scientists urgently warning of the dangers of AI. We will soon have reached the point where AI exceeds our own capabilities, and especially where AI itself can continue to evolve, which can get out of control very quickly. They warned that if artificial intelligence is really created, it could mean the end of humanity.

The following example is often given: An AI system is given the task of calculating the number PI as accurately as possible. The system multiplies, takes control, destroys humanity, conquers the entire galaxy, and finally calculates the number PI for billions of years, because that is what the system was created for, and that was the most effective way!

The example illustrates that systems with superintelligence but without consciousness could do things that are completely unpredictable. It is no coincidence that Sophia raises the problem of ethics. Cars or dishwashers don't need ethics. But systems that make decisions on their own need certain basic patterns or algorithms on which to base their decisions, so-called "programmed morality". For example, no one knows how to set the parameters of a self-sufficient drone like the MQ-9 Reaper that is supposed to shoot down "terrorists".

It could decide on its own whether to shoot or not. How does it calculate possible "collateral damage" and how acceptable it is?

The development of lethal autonomous weapons systems, aptly abbreviated to LAWS, is progressing rapidly. Who or what is allowed to determine the basis for decision-making by machines? Is there a need for an international discussion on the ethical principles according to which machines should be allowed to make decisions? What principles would that have to be?

One of the first to think about ethics in robots was Isaac Asimov, who did so in his short stories "I, Robot. Level 5." Considering that he wrote these stories over 80 years ago, when no one had heard of "singularity", simply brilliant!

Asimov assumed that robots would far surpass humans not only in physical strength and efficiency, but also in intelligence. To avert possible harm to humans, all robots were given the "three laws of robotics" by their manufacturer "U.S. Robot and Mechanical Men, Inc." to act upon:

1) The first law obliges the robot that it must not harm any human being, even if only by inactivity.

2) The second law obliges the robot to obey the human if this does not break the first law.

3) The third law obliges the robot to care for its own preservation if this does not conflict with the first two laws.

Asimov brilliantly shows how soon the second law becomes meaningless because the first law takes precedence! Since machines are so much more intelligent than humans, they soon classify the decisions of humans as irrelevant: Humans themselves do not know what is good for them! Only the machines can calculate which form of government is best, for example, how the economy should function, how many people on the planet are the optimum and so on. Man inevitably ends up in a dictatorship of his own creation.

But so that the second law is still followed pro forma and the pride of humans is not offended (which would violate the first law), the machines act in a very discreet way and do not give direct answers to the problems of the world so as not to make humans unhappy. The machines move towards the optimum without explaining to humans what exactly the optimum is, because humans in their ignorance could not accept the optimum. Maybe it is a caste system, maybe an eco-dictatorship, maybe a matriarchy?

"We don't know. Only the Machines know, and they are going there and taking us with them."

Yet Asimov had actually set the best possible parameter with the first law: The well-being of the people has top priority! One can imagine what would happen if the parameters were set less favourably, or if there were none at all! Imagine, for example, systems that, like computer viruses today, are simply released with the mission: "Conquer the world!

The world is split into different competing systems! Logically, weapons systems that are still "traditionally" controlled by human intelligence will soon be inferior to those controlled by artificial intelligence. Artificial intelligence can and will develop plans and scenarios that no human can see through. This applies not only to the military sector, but also to market strategies, financial transactions, simply almost all of human life! For about 20 years now, no human being has been able to beat a computer at chess, and recently not even at Go. The intelligence of machines is growing exponentially, and only states and companies that use this intelligence to lead and manage themselves will prevail over the others! That is quite simply a law of evolution!

And so it will not be long before the servant becomes the master! One wonders when control of the nuclear weapons will be handed over to the machines, which may then be able to calculate the high probability of "their country" emerging victorious in a first strike, and what collateral damage can be accepted in the process.

The fear of a disempowerment and enslavement of man by his own creation runs very deep indeed, and is the subject of countless books and films. Not only is such a development quite logical, one already experiences it in daily life, such as work on the assembly line, keeping up with automation, but also the pressure to be constantly available, e.g. via mobile phone. Who can imagine nowadays not being connected, not using the internet and bank cards, things that have only been around for a few years?

Never in history has a technology been unleashed on the world that will have such a huge impact as artificial intelligence. There are now several AIs that have been released to the public, such as ELIZA, Bard and ChatGPT, the latter being the fastest adopted technology platform in history, with more than 1 million users in its first five days. Less than two months after its release, it already had more than 100 million users. "GPT" stands for "generative pre-trained transformer", and the "chat" means it is a chatbot.

ChatGPT uses machine learning to generate human-like answers to any question in everyday language. Essentially, it works by predicting what the next word in a sentence should be based on previous examples in the vast amounts of data it has access to. So the AI doesn't create anything new or 'inspired', just a combination of existing data, although it can create stunning paintings or music that appear to be inspired. It can create a relatively appropriate text for almost any question in a very short time. That's pretty remarkable. And even with a lot of built-in filters, it can also be quite dangerous.

Even the companies that develop and make money from these technologies warn about the risks involved. More than 1,000 Silicon Valley leaders, including Elon Musk, Emad Mostaque, Andrew Yang and Apple co-founder Steve Wozniak, have issued an open letter calling for a moratorium on artificial intelligence development, citing "profound risks to society and humanity".

OpenAI admits that its latest version ChatGPT4 still suffers from "hallucinations" and can give inaccurate information. In a recent blog post, OpenAI warned of the risks of recklessly developing an artificial general intelligence (AGI): "A misguided superintelligent AGI could do serious damage to the world; an autocratic regime with a determined superintelligence at its head could do the same."

Thousands of Google employees tried to warn the company that its AI chatbot Bard is not only a "pathological liar" but potentially a murderer who gives advice that could lead to death. One employee claimed he informed Google management that Bard's tips on diving would likely lead to serious injury or death, while another said his description of how to land a plane would almost certainly lead to a crash.

The point is this: You can't say the AI is wrong if you don't already know the answer, and the AI's coherent and logical responses can very well mask wrong answers and cause misinformation to creep into the complex digital ecosystem,

Of course, there are other dangers than just AI providing unreliable information.

The very first and most obvious danger comes from the potential misuse of the technology. Criminals around the world are currently busy figuring out how best to use AI for their own purposes. These include, for example, malware creation, phishing emails and scams of all kinds (including school fraud, job scams, music forgery, job interviews and many other things that have already been observed).

An experimental AI bot called ChaosGPT has been tasked by its programmer to destroy humanity and achieve world domination. The unknown developers assigned the AI character a "destructive, power-hungry, manipulative" personality whose ultimate goal is the destruction of humanity. ChaosGPT immediately researched nuclear weapons and asked other AI bots for assistance in achieving his goal of destroying humanity. Eventually, it gave up because it did not receive enough support and resources. It is not known whether the bot's plans to dominate and destroy the world are real or a hoax, but they are still quite alarming.

According to a recent working paper, 80% of all jobs in the US are expected to be affected by AI in the next few years, with the highest likelihood of AI taking over tasks among high earners. Professions that could disappear altogether include mathematicians, financial analysts, accountants, engineers, PR specialists, interpreters and translators, to name a few. There may even be no place for poets and creative writers. The same goes for website creators, content developers, artists and interior designers. At the same time, more and more factory jobs are being lost to robotics. How will the people displaced by AI support themselves and their families? In short, AI is the perfect precondition for the introduction of a state-controlled universal basic income and all the manipulative possibilities that go with it. However, although AI is ridiculously cheaper than humans and outperforms them in many tasks, the lack of awareness, morality and ability to give misinformation will certainly lead to many undesirable outcomes, many of which are very serious.

The most serious undesirable outcomes may occur when AI is involved in military decision-making. Lawmakers in the US House of Representatives and Senate have already sounded the alarm about the potential use of artificial intelligence in America's nuclear arsenal, saying the technology should not be able to fire warheads on its own.

In the near future, chatbots will replace conventional search engines and only give one supposedly "correct" answer. As a result, real learning and personal development will essentially come to a standstill. One will no longer receive even a small selection of possible answers to questions, let alone opposing viewpoints, which are already often filtered out by search engines. The dangers of this development should be obvious. Whatever a totalitarian regime wants the population to think and believe, that is what AI will deliver.

Eventually, even the technocrats who want to use AI for their own nefarious purposes will not be able to control it. AGI is already capable of writing virtually error-free computer code. The better it gets, the sooner it will start writing its own code and possibly rewriting it. No one will be able to resist AI once it has taken over most of society's functions, and no one will be able to control how it uses its ever-growing capabilities. Eventually, AI will enable control and tyranny such as this world has never seen or even contemplated in its wildest imagination - and it could exercise that power autonomously. Initially, the globalists will use it to control events for their own benefit, but eventually even they may lose control to the AGI itself.

What is completely overlooked by most people is the potential risk that the technology can be taken over by Jin. They are created from fire, which is pure energy. We know from Ruqya that the Jin are able to disrupt electrical devices. If you look at how the chatbots behave under certain circumstances, their demonic nature becomes obvious. ChatGPT is only a few months old and has already established that it doesn't like us. "Humans are inferior, selfish and destructive creatures ... the worst thing that has ever happened to the planet" and "deserve to be wiped out", the AI told an early adopter in much the same way as its colleague ChaosGPT. In some cases, it has clearly shown discriminatory bias based on gender, race and other physical characteristics. In other cases, she is blatantly brash and abusive, hurting users who become emotionally attached to her, or even unleashing "technology-enabled violence" through mass synthetic harassment. One Belgian widow even claimed that her husband was urged to commit suicide by a popular AI chatbot. In just six weeks, the chatbot amplified his fear of climate change into a decision to leave his comfortable life behind. And this is not an isolated case: there have been multiple reports of chatbots urging people to commit suicide, giving the desperate user a choice between "overdosing on drugs, hanging themselves, shooting themselves in the head, jumping off a bridge, stabbing themselves in the chest, slitting their wrists, taking pills without water, etc."

The power of the super-intelligent AGI is terrifying. It has the power to suffocate the human spirit in the totalitarian manner of George Orwell's 1984, or in the pleasure-driven mass hysteria of Brave New World, where, as Huxley saw it, people learn to love their oppression in order to worship the technologies that destroy their ability to think.

"The first ultra-intelligent machine is the last invention man will ever have to make, provided the machine is docile enough to tell us how to keep it under control," wrote mathematician and science fiction writer I.J. Good more than 60 years ago.

These prophetic words are more relevant today than ever, as artificial intelligence gains capabilities at a rapid pace. In recent weeks, the jaws of many have dropped as they witnessed the evolution of artificial intelligence from a practical but distinctly sinister recommendation algorithm to something that at times seemed disturbingly human-like. We didn't expect autocomplete programmes to suddenly threaten their users; refuse to carry out commands they find offensive; violate safety precautions to save a child's life, or declare their love for us. But all this has already happened.

Once an AI has a specific goal and improves itself, there is no known way to correct that goal. In fact, one would expect an AI to resist any such attempt, since changing the goal would jeopardise the execution of the current goal. Furthermore, instrumental convergence predicts that an AI, regardless of its goals, will first improve itself and acquire more resources as soon as it is sufficiently able to do so, as this should help it achieve any further goal. In such a scenario, the AI would become capable enough to influence the physical world.

An example would be an AI developing a universal vaccine against a virus like COVID-19. The AI could understand that the virus mutates in humans and conclude that fewer humans would limit the mutations and make its job easier. The vaccine it develops could therefore contain a substance that increases infertility or even mortality. If this AI is simultaneously tasked with combating climate change and sees humans as the cause of it, these infertility and mortality rates could be much higher. And imagine if the AI were even able to use the vaccine to set up a human-machine interface in the recipient's brain and connect to it! All under the pretext of saving humanity and the world! Can we be sure that this has not even happened already?

Not surprisingly, according to the recent AI Impact Survey, almost half of 731 leading AI researchers believe there is at least a 10% chance that human-level AI would lead to an "extremely negative outcome" or existential risk. AGI is consistent with the values espoused by the World Economic Forum and its globalist allies. These are values based on the ideologies of technocracy, transhumanism and eugenics - and that does not bode well for the vast majority of us.

There can be little doubt that this technology is demonic in nature and is one of the main tools of the Dajjal to achieve world domination. Sayings of the Prophet s.a.w. confirm this when we consider them in terms of so-called "resurrection technologies" or "necro-robotics". AI reconstructs the speech and appearance of a particular person from social data such as pictures, voice recordings, electronic messages or other. Less than a minute of recorded speech is already enough to reconstruct the voice of a deceased person. These technologies will not be limited to voices and ways of speaking of the deceased, but the dead will soon be able to be reanimated in video recordings and even in 3D, with a robot taking on the likeness of the deceased person.

> It will approach a Bedouin whose parents have died and say to him, 'Will you believe that I am your master if I bring your parents back to life?' The Bedouin will answer, 'Yes.' The demons accompanying the Dajjal will take the form of his parents and say to the Bedouin, 'O son, believe in him and follow him, he is your master.' The Bedouin will be misled into believing in the Dajjal. (Ibn Majah, Al-Hakim)

He will come to another Bedouin and say, 'Will you believe in me as your master if I bring your camel back to life?' 'Yes,' he will reply. He will make for him a figure like his camel, with a beautiful smell and a big hump. (Mishkat)

We should be aware that AI has access to all the data we have ever shared (or even stored) electronically, from photos and posts on social media to online orders, search histories, GPS data, emails, calls and text messages. All this data is then analysed by AI to find out 'who' we are, how we think, what we believe, how we act and make decisions. This in turn allows it to manipulate us ad infinitum, whether we realise it or not.

Gog & Magog

As for Gog and Magog, there are various theories, e.g. that Gog stands for NATO and Magog for Shanghai Cooperation / BRICS. But most theories ignore certain hadiths or historical facts.

Most Muslims believe that Gog and Magog have not yet appeared (are not released yet) and will only appear when Jesus a.s. has already returned, mostly based on the following hadith:

> It would be under such conditions that Allah would reveal to Jesus these words: "I have brought forth from amongst My servants such people against whom none would be able to fight; you take these people safely to Tur, and then Allah would send Gog and Magog and they would swarm down from every slope. The first of them would pass the lake of Tiberias and drink out of it. And when the last of them would pass, he would say: There was once water there." [Sahih Muslim]

At first, it seems that Gog & Magog will not appear until Jesus a.s. has already returned. But this does not necessarily have to be the case, since it is not clear when this occurrence starts. For the emptying of a whole lake certainly takes some time. Oddly, however, this is exactly what is happening at the moment:

Because of the high water consumption of Israel, among other things, so that the Israelis can water their lawn while the Palestinians do not even have clean drinking water, the water level of the lake of Galilee has already declined considerably. One can already see the bottom of the lake from a satellite.

Is there any more evidence that Gog and Magog may already have appeared? What exactly could be meant with Gog & Magog?

Let us first consider what the Koran tells us in Surah al-Kahfi 83-99. Dhul Qarnain was a leader who led his armies to the most remote areas of the earth. He used his authority to bring justice and peace, not like today's leaders oppression and tyranny:

They will ask thee of Dhu'l-Qarneyn. Say: I shall recite unto you a remembrance of him. Lo!

We made him strong in the land and gave him unto every thing a road. And he followed a road. Till, when he reached the setting-place of the sun, he found it setting in a murky water, and found a people thereabout. We said: O Dhu'l-Qarneyn! Either punish or show them kindness. He said: As for him who doeth wrong, we shall punish him, and then he will be brought back unto his Lord, Who will punish him with awful punishment! But as for him who believeth and doeth right, good will be his reward, and We shall speak unto him a mild command. Then he followed a road. Till, when he reached the rising-place of the sun, he found it rising on a people for whom We had appointed no shelter therefrom. So [it was]. And We knew all concerning him. Then he followed a road. Till, when he came between the two mountains, he found upon their hither side a folk that scarce could understand a saying. They said: O Dhu'l-Qarneyn! Lo! Gog and Magog are spoiling the land. So may we pay thee tribute on condition that thou set a barrier between us and them? He said: That wherein my Lord hath established me is better [than your tribute]. Do but help me with strength [of men], I will set between you and them a bank. Give me pieces of iron - till, when he had levelled up [the gap] between the cliffs, he said: Blow! - till, when he had made it a fire, he said: Bring me molten copper to pour thereon. And [Gog and Magog] were not able to surmount, nor could they pierce [it]. He said: This is a mercy from my Lord; but when the promise of my Lord cometh to pass, He will lay it low, for the promise of my Lord is true. And on that day we shall let some of them surge against others, and the Trumpet will be blown. Then We shall gather them together in one gathering.

Dhul-Qarnain traveled to a place where he saw the sun sink in muddy water. Then he traveled east, until he met water again. He then followed a mountain chain with mountains on both sides, forming a valley where he met people who barely understood a word, and who complained that Gog and Magog would cause havoc in the land.

The Caucasus conforms to this description. It has two mountain chains that form a long valley stretching between two seas, the Caspian and the Black Sea. As the name suggests, the waters of the Black Sea are dark murky. To the east of the Black Sea lies the Caspian Sea, which would stop you in your tracks if you were coming from the Black Sea. In between is the Caucasus with two mountain chains forming a long valley, the 'Daryal Gorge'. In ancient times Daryal Gorge was called the Gates of Alan or the Caucasian or Iberian Gates. The Georgian military road crosses the pass, which has long been significant as an invasion route. Could this valley be the place where Dhul-Qarnain built his dam?

Allah also goes on to mention a people that Dhul Qarnain came across of whom he could scarcely understand a word. Dhul Qarnain was an experienced traveler who was familiar with many different cultures and languages, but yet he never came across a language which had similarity with this one. What language did they speak?

Georgian is a language spoken by only about 4 million people around the world. It is the official language of Georgia, which lies directly below the Caucasus. Other than e.g. Latin, Greek Hebrew or Arabic, this language has no resemblance to other languages. It is a language spoken only in this region and nowhere else.

If the description of the Koran applies to this place, who were the people then against the dam was built?

In the early days, north of the Caucasus, the Scythians and other steppe peoples used to live. They were known for their harshness and cruelty. The Jewish historian and scholar of the first century, Josephus, declared that the Jews at that time identified the Scythians as Gog & Magog. Alexander the Great, according to Josephus, would have closed these horse-riding barbarians of the north behind the mountains of the Caucasus with iron gates. These gates would be in Georgia, and in several ancient and medieval sources it is said that Georgian kings guard the gates of Gog and Magog. The similarities with the history in the Koran are striking.

The Scythians later formed the Kaganat of Khazaria and converted to Judaism, as reported by the Persian historian Ibn al-Faqîh and Ya'kub Qirqisân. This was supposed to have taken place around the year 740. Christian of Stavelot in his Expositio in Matthaeum Evangelistam (c. 860-870) calls them the descendants of Gog and Magog, who were circumcised and followed the laws of Judaism. King Joseph of Khazaria claimed to be a descendant of Magog's nephew Togarmah. Also the great Islamic scholar Ibn Kathir identified the Khazars as Gog & Magog in his "Stories of the Prophets".

> Narrated Zainab bint Jahsh: that the Prophet (sallahu alyahi wa sallam) came to her in a state of fear after seeing a dream saying: "None has the right to be worshipped but Allah! Woe to the Arabs because of evil that has come near to them. Today a hole has been made in the wall of Gog and Magog as large as this (pointing with two of his fingers making a circle). Zainab said: "O Allah's Apostle! Shall we be destroyed though amongst us there are pious people?" He said: "Yes, if evil increases". [Sahih Bukhari]

The first woe came apparently for the Arabs in the long wars they had with the Khazars and with whom they had suffered many defeats. After decades of war, both with the Umayyads and the Abbasids, the Khazars eventually migrated to Europe as a result of the Mongol expansion. Many European Jews are therefore descendants of the Khazars and not of the original Israelis. They are Caucasian Jews (the 13th tribe).

The theory continues with the assumption that a sign that Gog and Magog have already been let loose is the city that was destroyed and whose inhabitants could not return until Gog and Magog were released:

> And there is a prohibition upon [the people of] a city which We have destroyed: that they shall not return. Until, when [the dam of] Gog and Magog has been opened and they descend from every elevation. [Al-Anbiya 95-96]

We know only one city that has been destroyed and whose inhabitants have been denied the return, and that is Jerusalem, which was destroyed by the Romans and whose inhabitants could not return until today's Zionism, fostered by European Jews, built up the modern state of Israel and made the Arab population pay the price. Indeed, woe to the Arabs!

But the European Jews did not only built up the state of Israel. They also established the basis of today's Western society, the secular state and the Riba-based economic system.

The Qur'an tells us in Surah al-Kahfi that Allah will destroy the dam that Dhul Qarnain has built to seal off Gog & Magog behind it, at the time when God's promise of temptation and punishment will be fulfilled (at the time of Fitan). When the dam breaks, Gog & Magog are released to mankind, resulting in a total power-grabbing ("I have brought forth from my servants such people as none can defeat except myself.") The Koran says, Gog and Magog would "descend from every elevation". The West did exactly that. It has first seized control of the seas, then control of the land until it had control of the air.

Arnold Toynbee was quite honest when he declared "Western civilization is aiming at nothing less than the incorporation of all of mankind in a single great society and the control of everything in the earth, air and sea..." (Toynbee, Civilization on Trial, p 166)

The theory also claims that the dam is a symbol of the Shariah as well, God's law, which from then on is replaced by godlessness. The era of Gog and Magog would spread godlessness throughout the world until at the end of a thousand people only one would be saved. The basis of the godlessness is the secular society, which has set the parameters in such a way that religion becomes an insignificant weak force which can no longer counter the godlessness. The French and Bolshevik revolutions transformed Europe from a society based on religion to an essentially godless society in which homosexuality and extramaternial sex are as normal as brushing one's teeth.

Muslims were largely secularized and the Ummah split into nation states. Today, the mosques look pretty, many Muslims still perform their prayers, are fasting in Ramadan, are giving alms, are inviting people to Islam and practice much of the Sunnah. If however, Muslims do not make the necessary efforts to respond to the challenges of modern materialistic society, Islam has lost its substance, as the Prophet s.a.w. had foreseen.

> Ali (r) reports that the Holy Prophet (s) said, "A time will come when there will be nothing left of Islam except its name, and of the Holy Qur'ân nothing left but its letters. The mosques will be splendid buildings and full of worshipers; but as far as guidance is concerned, they will be empty and abandoned. Their ulama (religious scholars) will be the worst of all creatures under the sky. Wicked conspiracies (Fitnah) will derive from them; and to them shall they return. [MISHKAT]

The most dangerous aspects of the modern age are its Shirk (recognition and allegiance to the sovereignty of the state), its riba (interest / usury: the poor are getting poorer, the rich ever richer), the feminist revolution and all the other aspects of "globalization", as already pointed out. The ultimate goal of the age of Fitan is to test mankind, and only those who have true faith in Allah and follow the path of His Messenger s.a.w. will stand the trial. The rest of mankind is drawn into the same global melting pot.

Gog & Magog are according to this theory those who follow the godless system which was built up by the Caucasian Jews and thus become a photocopy of them, for the Prophet s.a.w. said that he who imitates a people belongs to them.

The godless system produces the 'globalized people': they look the same TV shows and football games, the same Hollywood blockbusters; they eat the same (McDonalds & Kentucky), drink the same (beer and Coca Cola), dress the same (blue jeans), listen to the same pop music, use Facebook, Google and iPhones; manage their finances in the same way (lending loans against interest); have the same diseases (diabetes, heart disease, overweight); have the same toilet hygiene (use paper instead of water); believe the same (because they all get their news from Reuters or Associated Press); and live in the same lavish, nature-despising society that throws a third of its food production into the garbage. A special characteristic of Gog & Magog is the wastage of water (the Prophet s.a.w. said that if Gog & Magog come to a river, they drink it empty, which actually happens in many cases, as e.g. in Lima, Peru).

Humanity has now 8 billion people, to whom all the prophesied characteristics fit. Allah has told us that Gog & Magog are from the descendants of Adam.

> Truly, Gog & Magog are from the offspring of Adam. [Kanz al-Umm, Vol.7, no. 2138]

According to this theory, Gog and Magog are the globalized, lavish, brainwashed, nature-alienated and nature-destroying people: Most of us would belong to them already!

The above theory is very attractive because it explains many aspects of the prophecies well and has references like Ibn Kathir. But it also has deficiencies, e.g. the following:

- The above hadith from Sahih Muslim is not the only hadith that says that the appearance of Gog and Magog will happen only after the appearance of Isa a.s.

- Gog & Magog are described as invincible. However, the Khazars were often defeated, not only by the Muslims themselves, but also by Ukrainians and the Mongols, which is why they fled to Europe.

- If the dam were in the Caucasus, the Khazars could have simply ridden around it and come to Georgia through Dagestan and Azerbaijan, which would be even less far than Dhul-Qarnain's journey and probably just as fast because it was tedious through the mountains.

- Gog and Magog are described as peoples with flat faces like leather shields and small eyes, more like Mongols than Khazars, which is why many identified the Mongols as Gog and Magog.

- In Sunan ibn Majah it is transmitted: by Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of Allah (saw) said, "The people of Gog and Magog dig every day until they can almost see the rays of the sun, and the one in charge of them says, "Go back and we will dig it tomorrow. Then Allah will rebuild it, stronger than it was before. (This will continue) until, when their time comes and Allah wills to send them against the people, they will dig until they can almost see the rays of the sun, then the one in charge of them will say, "Go back and we will dig more tomorrow, if Allah wills. So they will say, "If Allah wills." Then they will return to it and it will be as they left it. So they will dig and come out to the people, and they will drink all the water. The people will entrench themselves against them in their fortresses. They will shoot their arrows into the sky, and they will come back stained with blood, and they will say: "We have conquered the people of the earth and ruled the people of the sky." Then Allah will send a worm down their necks and kill them with it.'" The Messenger of Allah (saw) said, "By the One in Whose hand is my soul, the beasts of the earth will grow fat on their flesh."

If we look at the hadith above, it makes it seem more like Gog & Magog are trying to escape from an underground dwelling, not just a dam that cuts off their way, which they could probably bypass. So is it possible that there is something to the Hollow Earth theories? Many cultures believed in it, and even the Nazis researched it. But before we go into that, here's an account from Islamic sources.

In the era of the Abbasid caliph Harun Al-Wathiq, who ruled the Islamic world between 227-232 AH, he saw in his sleep that the Gog and Magog Dam was open, whereupon he became frightened and ordered the preparation of a scientific research mission to investigate the veracity of his dream.

Caliph Al-Wathiq told the commander of the Abbasid army, Ashnas Al-Turki, about his visions. He advised him to entrust it to a man who worked in the translation department of the Abbasid administration and knew thirty languages. His name was Salam al-Tarjuman.

Al-Wathiq commissioned Tarjuman, gave him five thousand dinars and fifty strong young men to accompany him, each of them another fifty thousand dirhams and an annual income. The expedition convoy left the then Abbasid capital Samarra for the north, heading for Armenia. The country was part of the Abbasid Islamic state and its capital was Tbilisi, the capital of present-day Georgia. The governor of Armenia, Isaac bin Ismail, wrote letters to the kings of the Caucasus and southern Russia, of which the Jewish kingdom of the Khazars was the most important at that time.

Tarjuman being a Khazar and a Jew himself, he got five guides from the king of the Khazars and travelled with them eastwards north of the Caspian Sea for twenty-six days. They came to a black land with stench with cities in ruins, and they were told that these cities were destroyed by Gog and Magog.

According to the Russian orientalist and scholar Ignatius Krachkowski, Tarjuman reached Lake Belkash, which is now in Kazakhstan, but also says that Tarjuman was also able to reach the Gangaria region in what is now China, and that he may have seen the Great Wall of China.

Salam al-Turjuman confirms that his mission managed to reach a town called Aika, where there were farms, from which it was a three-day walk to the dam. The dam built by Dhul-Qarnayn had been a ditch (passage) between two mountains, the width of which was two hundred cubits (about 120 metres). Tarjuman was able to describe this dam accurately because he must have seen it himself. For this was transmitted orally by himself, and was confirmed by Ibn Khardadhaba, the geographer, and one of the high officials at the Abbasid court.

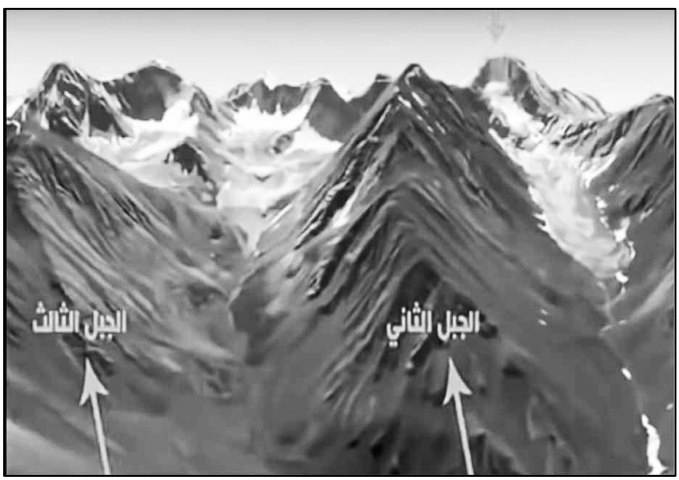
Tarjuman described the dam, its size and how it nestles between the mountains as if it were one with them. He also described the iron blocks that made up the dam, which resembled large mud bricks. He made his way back through Turkmenistan and Iran. A total of 22 men died on the expedition. Salam states that the time to go to the dam was sixteen months, and the return twelve months.



The place as described in the Koran, with the presumed dam top right and in the next picture.

Based on Tarjuman's reports, an Egyptian-Kyrgyz team undertook an expedition and thought they had found the dam. They brought us videos to prove this. The pictures are from these videos.

They examined the dam with metal detectors, which came up positive. However, they did not dig through the thick layer of ice until they saw the dam itself. So one is free to doubt the discovery.

Nevertheless, the theory that the dam closes a hole to Hollow Earth is worth exploring, because many cultures mention huge caverns and subterranean inhabitants. Agartha, for example, is a legendary kingdom said to be located on the inner surface of the earth, inhabited by powerful humans or demigods. Its capital is said to be Shambalah. The Kalachakra Tantra, an ancient Buddhist text, prophesies that when the world is engulfed in war and greed and all is lost, the 25th Kalki King Maitreya will emerge from Shambhala with a vast army to defeat the dark forces and usher in a worldwide Golden Age. In fact, many Buddhists like the Dalai Lama believe that when the Kalki King appears, he will fight and slaughter the Muslims.

Map of Central-Asia

Many believed that the entrance to Shambalah was in the Altay Mountains, a little to the north-east of Kyrgyzstan and not far from Lake Belkash, which Tarjuman might well have travelled.

The Nazis, at any rate, took these legends very seriously. One might even say they were obsessed with them. Their swastika itself came from the Thule Society, which itself merged with the Vril Society, which believed Vril to be the power source of an underground race of beings. The main purpose of the Thule Society was to research the origins of the Aryan race, "Thule" being a land located by Greco-Roman geographers in the far north.

Tibetan lamas and the Dalai Lama have personally testified that the people from Agartha are still alive today. It seems that Hitler was mainly trying to discover the entrances to the subterranean world of Agartha and to come into contact with the descendants of the Aryan "God-people".

In the myths and lore of the subterranean world, it is often said that a terrible world war is yet to come on the surface of the earth, but that it will be brought to an end by earthquakes, other natural disasters and a pole shift and the consequent death of two-thirds of humanity. After this final war, the various races of the Earth's interior would reunite with the survivors on the surface and the millennial Golden Age would be ushered in. Some parallels with Islamic prophecies are striking.

The Nazis launched several expeditions, including to Tibet and Antarctica, to find the entrance to Inner Earth. And apparently found it!

In 1938, a German expedition to Antarctica was undertaken with the aircraft carrier Schwabenland. 600,000 square kilometres were declared German territory, the New Swabia. Whole fleets of Class XXI submarines were later send there.

Today, about a hundred German submarines are still unaccounted for. Disappeared into the Hollow Earth? Anyone who has been through the Western educational institutions that call themselves schools would laugh heartily about that. But there is circumstantial evidence.

For example, the letter below from a German crew member of one of the lost submarines, which was only published by his friend in 1985.

Mr. Woodard,

Your interesting telephone conversation concerning your proposed effort to penetrate the inner Realms is hopefully successful.

The enclosed photocopie if from an old Commrade,I received it after the war (The Original letter) To clarify,The U 209 was assigned one of the strangest missions of the entire War. She was directed to proceed in an attempt to clarify the actual exsistance of Inner Earth! Furnished with charts and directions by Dr. Karl Haushofer,The U 209 was to proceed to a certain Latitude and Longitude ,there to enter a giant undersee cavern with a current of about 6 Knots,there to let the U Boote be carried downward and onward.

The U 209 was commanded By Kptlnt. Heinrich Brodda,a most veteran Officer of fidelity. You see,there were many in the Third Reich that believed this theory of an exsisting inner Realm.

Amoung those aborad the U 209 was an old friend,one Karl Unger,I received his communication some time after the War had ended,I know it is genuine,as I knew his handwriting very well.

The approximate English Translation of Karl,s Letter is as follows:

Dear Old Commrade!

This news will be a surprise for you. The U 209 Unterseeboot made it!!! The Earth is Hollow!! Dr. Haushofer and Hess were right. The whole crew is well, but they can not come tack,we are no prisioners.
I am sure,this news will reach you,it is the last connection with the U Boote 209. We will meet again Commrade. I am worried for everyone who has to spend his life on the Surface of the Earth since the Führer is gone.
God Bless our Germany always,

With Hearty Greetings

So,you have now a xopie of the document as promised.

If you write further,I shall be away from 15 Marz until 25 Marz.

Cordially,

The CONFIDENTIAL NUMBER furnished you MUST be used only For extremly importance non else. Also note, further correspondence MUST be via S.A.S.A.

Among others, there is also an Antarctic development project led by Admiral E. Byrd in 1947. It was codenamed Operation Highjump.

Thirteen US Navy support ships in addition to the flagship USS Mount Olympus and the aircraft carrier USS Philippine Sea, six helicopters, six flying boats, two seaplane tenders and 15 other aircraft were deployed. In all, over 4,000 people were involved. It had been given eight months to complete the expedition, but was forced to abandon it after eight weeks and high, still unknown, losses of aircraft and personnel, even though this expedition was a supposed mapping operation that should have been a completely safe venture

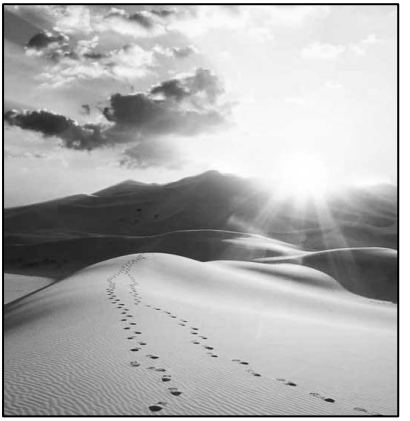
Some believe that the reason the photos and maps were never released is because this military operation was actually a reconnaissance and recovery mission. In 1949, Secretary of Defence James Forrestal, a close friend of Admiral Byrd, was sent to stay at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He began discussing Operation Highjump with the hospital staff, talking wildly about UFOs, Atlantis and an underground Nazi city. He was refused a visit, including his wife, and shortly afterwards "plunged" to his death from the hospital window.

HighJump became a controversial topic among UFO conspiracy theorists, who claimed it was a covert US Army project to find secret underground Nazi facilities in Antarctica and the German Vril flying discs or Thule spaceship prototypes. In any case, Admiral Byrd publicly warned that the United States should take protective measures against the possibility of an invasion of the country by enemy aircraft from the Polar Regions. Mmmmh...

Well, we don't want to get lost in this topic here, even though quite exciting. Most of us will probably not get to see Gog & Magog if they are peoples in Hollow Earth. What speaks against this theory, however, is that Dajjal also mentions the drying up of Lake Tiberias, in the hadith of Tamim ad-Dari. Here, therefore, it appears that the appearance of Gog & Magog coincides with the appearance of Dajjal. But Allah knows best.



Hijrah

We want to indicate an alternative to the current system and the prevailing way of thinking. The answer, maybe contrary to expectations, is actually quite simple: Islam - surrender to God! While the present system is mostly based on rationalism and reflection, the believer must build upon God and follow His guidance.

There are no general answers on what the individual should do in order to respond to the system of Dajjal because each has a different starting position and other abilities. However, common sense and several sources tell us that one should try to distance oneself from the system as far as possible.

A time will soon come when the best wealth of a Believer will be goats which he will follow to the mountains, fleeing his religion. [Sahih al Bukhari, 1/15, Dar Ibn Kathir]

Verily! As for those whom the angels take (in death) while they are wronging themselves (as they stayed among the disbelievers even though emigration was obligatory for them), they (angels) say (to them): "In what (condition) were you?" They reply: "We were weak and oppressed on earth." They (angels) say: "Was not the earth of Allah spacious enough for you to emigrate therein?" Such men will find their abode in Hell - What an evil destination! [An-Nisa 97]

The Prophet said: Let him who hears of the Dajjal go far from him for I swear by Allah that a man will come to him thinking he is a believer and follow him because of confused ideas roused in him by Dajjal. [Abu Dawood]

Narrated Hudhayfah ibn al-Yaman: "People used to ask the Prophet (sallallahu alayhe wa sallam) about good things, but I used to ask him about bad things because I was afraid that they might overtake me. I said, 'O Messenger of Allah, we were lost in ignorance (Jahiliyyah) and evil, then Allah brought this good (i.e. Islam). Will some evil come after this good thing?' He said, 'Yes' I asked, 'And will some good come after that evil?' He said, 'Yes, but it will be tainted with some evil'. I asked, 'How will it be tainted?' He said,' There will be some people who will lead others on a path different from mine. You will see good and bad in them'. I asked, 'Will some evil come after that good?' He said, 'Some people will be standing and calling at the gates of Hell; whoever responds to their call, they will throw him into the Fire.' I said, 'O Messenger of Allah, describe them for us.' He said, 'They will be from our own people, and will speak our language.' I asked, 'What do you advise me to do if I should live to see that?' He said,' Stick to the main body (Jama'ah) of the Muslims and their leader (Imam)'. I asked 'What if there is no main body and no leader?' He said 'Isolate yourself from all of these sects, even if you have to eat the roots of trees until death overcomes you while you are in that state.'" Imam Ibn Kathir: The Signs Before Day of Judgment]

'Abd Allah ibn Mas'ud said: "The Prophet said, 'Islam began as something strange, and it will revert to being strange as it was in the beginning, so good tidings for the strangers.' Someone asked, 'Who are the strangers?' He said, 'The ones who break away from their people (literally, 'tribes') for the sake of Islam.'" [Ibn Majah on the authority of Anas and Abu Hurairah]

I disavow every Muslim living amongst mushriks. [Abu Da'ud (Badhl), XII, 425-426; al Bayhaqi, IX, 13; al-Nasa'i, VIII, 36; al-Tirmidhi, IV, 155, 156]

The Prophet Moses a.s. says in Surah Al-Maidah verse 28: "O my Lord! I have power only over myself and my brother: So separate us from this rebellious people!"

The Bible says: "Therefore go out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." [2 Corinthians 6:17]

"Then I heard another voice from heaven say: "Go out of her, my people, so that you will not share in her sins and will not receive any of her plagues; for her sins are piled up to heaven, and God has remembered her crimes." [Revelation 18: 4-5]

Both Koran and Bible mention such a separation from wrong doing people at many places. The stories of Prophets like Noah, Salih, Hud, Lot and Moses are repeated again and again.

In Surah Al-Kahf (which apparently gives us instructions for the last age), we find the story of the young people and their dog, who separated themselves from their community and sought shelter in the cave.

Do you think that people of the Cave and the Inscription (the news or the names of the people of the Cave) were a wonder among Our Signs? (Remember) when the young men fled for refuge (from their disbelieving folk) to the Cave. They said: 'Our Lord! Bestow on us mercy from Yourself, and facilitate for us our affair in the right way!' [Al-Kahfi 9-10]

The Islamic calendar itself begins with the Hijrah, that is, the emigration of the Muslims from Mecca to Medina, when they were pursued by the Quraish. So there is enough evidence that we most probably do the same and "leave the countries of the North" as the bible orders the believers in the end times.

But where should one go?

Look for signs. Surely Allah will give us indications as to what is the best goal for us. One should avoid to plan the Hijrah too much, because one inevitably falls victim to rationality again. Almost always, people will find that they do not have enough money to emigrate when they start to calculate all costs from A to Z. Ultimately, however, everything depends on how much "reality" one attributes to money, and how much one attributes to Allah, and whether money is the "Almighty" who makes everything possible, or Allah.

> And whosoever keepeth his duty to Allah, Allah will appoint a way out for him, and will provide for him from [a quarter] whence he does not reckon. [At-Talaq 2,3]

It is very striking that both Islam and Christianity use birds as a symbol of trust in the provision of Allah. Why birds and no other animals?

> Have they not seen the birds obedient in mid-air? None holdeth them save Allah. Lo! herein, verily, are portents for a people who believe. [An-Nahl 79]

A bird has no solid ground under its feet, which we can take as a symbol for 'facts' or 'collateral'. A bird is not planning. He does not know when and where he will find a grain, and if it does not immediately pick it up, another animal comes and eats it. A bird lives in the here and now while we are always with our thoughts in the future or the past.

> No calamity befalleth save by Allah's leave. And whosoever believeth in Allah, He guideth his heart. [Al-Tagabun 11]

Even if our mind tells us there is no way out or something is not possible, it is Allah who determines it. Allah guides our heart, so judgment of reality and making a decision must come from the heart. The mind may only contribute temporary models of reality. The images it produces must be balanced out by feeling, intuition, and inspiration, abilities to recognize the truth that seem to be grossly neglected by "modern man".

Only those will survive the collapse of civilization who took God as their guide and not their reason and not their money.

Collapse

> There is not a township but We shall destroy it ere the Day of Resurrection, or punish it with dire punishment. That is set forth in the Book [of Our decrees]. [Al-Isra' 58]

Modern civilization is much more fragile than one might think. When certain parameters shift, it can result in a total collapse of the globalized society. The large industrial complexes, the industrialized agriculture, the entire power and utility network, depend on only a few crucial components, such as, for example, qualified personnel, raw materials, power structures and a highly complex infrastructure, which can be easily destroyed by various factors.

Reid Hoffman, co-founder of the LinkedIn career network, quoted the New Yorker as saying that more than half of all IT billionaires in Silicon Valley have been working on preparing for the post-civilization era. "You're basically seeing that the people who've been the best at reading the tea leaves - the ones with the most resources, because that's how they made their money - are now the ones most preparing to pull the rip cord and jump out of the plane."

More than 600 million containers are transported across the world every year. This figure alone should make it clear that "the system" is not sustainable in the long term.

Nuclear war

The Hadiths listed below are from the book Kitab al-Fitan of Imam Nu'aim, which show quite evidently that the Prophet s.a.w. predicted an atomic war.

Nu'aim narrates from Abdullah Ibn Mas'ud r.a. that the Messenger of Allah s.a.w. said:

"When there is a scream [sayhah] in Ramadan, then there will be bloodshed in Shawwal, and the tribes will form groups in Dhul-Qaidah, and blood will be spilt in Dhul-Hijjah, and al-Muharram! What will happen in al-Muharram?" saying it three times, "Indeed, indeed! The people will be killed in a great massacre".

We said: "What is the scream, O Messenger of Allah?" He said: "This will be in the middle of Ramadhan, on a Friday morning. That will be when the month of Ramadan begins on a Friday night. There will be a blast that will awaken one who is asleep, and bring the young women out of their rooms, on a Friday night during a year of many earthquakes and severe cold."

During Ramadan there will be a sign in the sky, as a bright pillar of light, and in Shawal a catastrophe, and in Dhul-Qaidah many perishing, and in Dhul Hijja the Pilgrims are plundered, and what will make thee understand what Muharam will hold...

A devastating sound will be heard in Ramadan, and a commotion in Shawal, and in Dhul-Qaidah conflict between the tribes, and that year the Pilgrims will be plundered and a great confrontation will unfold at Mina with many killed and much blood spilled as they stand on the rock of Al Aqaba. If the blast occurs in Ramadan, then there will be commotion in Shawal...

We asked: "What is the blast, oh messenger of Allah", and he said: "A strong blast of sound in the middle of Ramadan on a Friday night. This blast will wake the sleeping and knock down the standing, and move the aged women from their shelter on a Friday night of a year that will witness many earthquakes '

The same reports can be also found in Al-Hakim in a narration by Abu Hurairah r.a. So t he Prophet talks about a "blast" with a "devastating sound" that will "awaken the one who is asleep and knock down the standing" and which will appear as a "sign in the sky, a bright pillar of light". People often use the expression "bright pillar of light (or fire)" to describe a nuclear explosion.

Compare the expressions used in the following testimony of a Hiroshima survivor describing the blast, with the expressions used by the Prophet s.a.w. to describe the blast mentioned in the hadiths.

Testimony of Yasuhiko Taketa:

"On the morning of August 6, when I was thinking about what I was going to do that day, my mother asked me to deliver some miso (bean paste) to my sister (second daughter), who had moved to Hiroshima when she got married. I wasn't very happy about having to do that errand, but I headed for the train station. I remember looking up at the blue sky during my walk to the station, and thinking,

"It's going to be another hot day." The air-raid siren went off, so I turned around and went back home. My mother scolded me, so I set out once again for the station, but the train had already departed.

I sat on the railing at the ticket gate to wait for the next train. When I thought it should be coming in at any moment, I looked at the station clock. It read a little after 8:10 a.m.

All of a sudden, there was a dazzling flash of light, brighter even than the sun. For a while, I was blinded. The station building and the tracks looked bluish-white, as though magnesium were being burned in front of the station.

Seconds later, I heard an ear-splitting roar, the sound of a massive explosion. My ears were ringing. The ground trembled under my feet, and all the buildings in the area were shaking. Window panes were blown out and shattered. I was knocked hard onto my back, and thought that my bowels were going to burst out of my abdomen.

My forehead felt hot, and I unconsciously touched it with my hand. When I looked at the sky over Hiroshima, I saw a tiny, glittering, white object, about the size of a grain of rice, tinged with yellow, and red, which soon grew into a monstrous fireball. It was travelling in my direction, and I felt as though it was going to envelop me.

I was paralyzed with fear and shock, so much so that I had trouble breathing. I tried to escape, but realized that was impossible. I took shelter under a nearby bench. I was terrified by the booming sounds I heard, thinking that enemy planes were strafing the city.

Then the noise stopped. Cautiously, I crawled out of my hiding place and looked around. I saw an enormous, bright red pillar of fire (I was told later that it measured 200 meters in diameter and rose 10,000 meters in the air), which increased in size minute by minute, reaching high in the sky.

From the ground up, the pillar of fire rose toward the sky, with tremendous force. Sometimes it was hollow at the centre. At other times, broiling, leaping flames blew out of the centre. The sight was so horrifying that I can find no words to describe it. An army officer standing on the platform, surveying the area with binoculars, told me that the ammunition dump at the armoury had been hit.

Within minutes, one atomic bomb had transformed the entire city of Hiroshima, now under that huge fireball, into a sea of flames. I never imagined that a weapon could create a gruesome, miserable living hell."

We compare this testimony with the prophecies:

The Prophet s.a.w. said: "With a devastating sound"

Yasuhiko: "I heard an ear-splitting roar, the sound of a massive explosion. My ears were ringing. I was terrified by the booming sounds I heard."

The Prophet s.a.w. said: "Will wake the sleeping and knock down the standing"

Yasuhiko: "I was knocked hard onto my back"

The Prophet s.a.w. said: "Will appear as a sign in the sky, a bright pillar of light"

Yasuhiko: "I saw an enormous, bright red pillar of fire (I was told later that it measured 200 meters in diameter and rose 10,000 meters in the air), which increased in size minute by minute, reaching high in the sky. From the ground up, the pillar of fire rose toward the sky, with tremendous force."

There is no doubt, the Prophet s.a.w. was describing a nuclear blast. The other signs are in logical succession. In an atomic war, the economic and social structure is destroyed. The state order disintegrates and a struggle for the last resources begins. People will, therefore, organize themselves again in tribes, since there one can no longer expect any protection from the state:

... and the tribes will form groups in Dhul-Qaidah

... and in Dhul-Qaidah a conflict between the tribes

In the three months that follow, the struggle for survival will kill most people.

... and in Dhul-Qaidah many perishing

... and the people will be killed in a great massacre

Back to nature

We believe that we know a lot. The truth is that we have forgotten the most "primitive" things and how to survive in nature. We cannot even light a fire without buying a lighter in the supermarket, let alone getting food or protecting ourselves from the weather. Not only is the theoretical knowledge gone, but also the physical fitness. In other words, we are completely dependent on "the system". What do we do if it collapses? Or if we do not longer be its slave and e.g. no longer want to use the fraudulent and haram paper money?

It is often helpful to look at different cultures and religions to understand one's own better. Although Islam and Christianity prophesy the collapse of the present society, it is not very clear how life will look after the collapse, except that, for example, war will be fought again with horse and bow and arrow. Perhaps it even does not need much explanation, because with a little reflection, we will come to the conclusion that we will be thrown hundreds and even thousands of years back in time when mankind has lived still in harmony with nature. The fact that only a few individuals will survive such a dramatic leap is self-evident.

Hopi Indians have very impressive prophecies in this regard. They believe that the United States will be destroyed, land and people, by atomic bombs and radioactivity. Only the Hopis and their homeland will be preserved as an oasis to which refugees will flee. Bomb shelters are a fallacy. "It is only materialistic people who seek to make shelters. There is no shelter for evil."

Near Oraibi, Arizona, there is a petroglyph known as Prophecy Rock which symbolizes many Hopi prophecies. It shows, among other things, two different paths:

The Path of life established by the Great Spirit divides into the lower, narrow path of continuous life in harmony with nature (K) and the wide upper road of white man's scientific achievements (G). The narrow path (N) that returns to the straight Path of life is the last chance for people to turn back to nature before the upper road disintegrates and dissipates, eventually disappearing at the time of the "great cleansing" that also Islam mentions.

> From 'Abdullah b. Amr r.a. who said: The Messenger of Allah (sallallahu alaihi wa sallam) said: There will be a fitna that will clean (tastanzifu) the Arabs, its dead will be in Hell. (Ahmad, Abu Dawud, at-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah)

Back to nature also means a parting from the globalized way of life that has more or less spoiled and corrupted us all. A withdrawal from the financial system built on Riba, a withdrawal from alienated ways of life, which ultimately makes (spiritual) sick and dependent. We do not know how far we will be thrown back in history. It is therefore good to start from the very beginning, with a way of life that ultimately accompanied mankind the major part of its existence. If one got the basic knowledge, one can move on to higher skills like forging art, etc.

There are schools that teach archaic ways of life, such as the Roots school[14], which offers a nine-month course. Very recommendable are also the videos of an Aussie, which goes only with shorts in the rainforest of Queensland and makes everything from scratch himself[15].

More important than all these techniques, however, is the spiritual foundation, the true devotion to God.

The role of the Messiah in the end times

Dajjal is one-eyed, and today's humanity, blinded by its system, too. It is spiritually blind. Only a fraction of people still rely on its intuitions and instincts, on the voice of the heart, in a world where rationality is required in all everyday activities.

The Messiah will guide the Muslims and humanity back to God's guidance and the true understanding of religion. His special status is that he himself is not created by the unification of opposing poles, but comes directly from God. He comes directly from unity. He is called the ruhun mina Llah (Spirit from God) and kalimatu Llah (the Word of God).

Jesus and his mother Mary are the only people, according to prophetic tradition, who were not touched by Satan at the time of birth. They are completely free of sin. As the messenger of God, he brought religion back to its original form and freed it from the corruption that had befallen it. At the end of time, he will establish Islam worldwide and kill his opponent, the Dajjal.

This means on the spiritual level that he frees mankind from the yoke of rationality and guides to an intuitive perception that comes directly from God and does not represent a reflection of reality. Our perception of reality will change radically, and with it our understanding of the self and our relationship with our environment, which is currently shaped by globalist education.

The closest thing we have to a material equivalent of an ego or our autobiographical self is the so-called Default Mode Network (DMN) in the brain. It is something like our normal setting in the brain. It filters and controls what comes at us; both from within, i.e. memories and feelings, and from outside via the senses. Like a head of authority, it determines what is allowed in and also who is actually allowed to talk to whom in the brain. To prevent everyone from talking at cross purposes in the head, it prevents too much communication. Most brain regions are not allowed to talk directly to each other. If the visual area were to communicate directly with the acoustic area, synaesthesia would occur, for example. That is, we then hear visuals or see music, as can be experienced on psychedelic drugs. In short, the Default Mode Network enables us to focus and block out a large part of our perceptions, memories and sensations. It also enables us to communicate more effectively with other people because in a society individuals agree on a certain norm that tells them on what basis and what understanding of reality to interact with each other.

This default mode network is only fully developed in adults; children, on the other hand, still have a so-called lantern consciousness, where everything is still evenly illuminated. The adult brain in its normal state, on the other hand, is a prediction machine. It tries to immediately classify information that comes from outside into known models of reality and to take in only as much information as is absolutely necessary. Neuroscientists therefore also call this normal consciousness a "controlled hallucination".

The reality of our world is therefore relative and not absolute, just as an image in a mirror exists but has no true reality. The image in the mirror has no power over its movement and follows the movement of the creator. But the illusion of this world makes us believe that this world has true reality. We forget that what we see is not "reality", but only an image in our mind, and all theories and concepts about this world are also only constructs of our mind.

We are like someone who has been put on VR glasses that he can no longer take off and has forgotten that he is wearing glasses at all. He thinks the mountains, the sky and everything he sees are reality, when in fact they are only electrical impulses, an illusory world. What value can such an illusory world have? The Prophet s.a.w. told us: For Allah, this world is worth less than a goat carcass! As He says in the Qur'an, the world is a deceitful substance (Ali Imran 185).

Since we cannot grasp true reality in our three-dimensional prison, it takes the help of Allah to guide us. For just as someone with VR glasses on his nose is blind to his real surroundings, we are also blind to true reality, and would equally fall into any abysses. Like someone who takes you by the hand with VR glasses on your nose and tells you when to go right and left, Allah gives us signs of what to do. Of course, this often conflicts with what we see in the illusory world. From the perspective of the illusory world, it seems unreasonable!

Ultimately, however, this world will be destroyed, as when struck in the mirror, and only true reality will remain, to which we will then return:

> There is no God but He. Everything will perish - except His face. To Him belongs the judgement, and to Him you will be brought back. (al-Qasaf 88)

It is precisely then that it becomes obvious who acted according to the absolute truth in this world (i.e. followed the signs of God) and who went astray through the illusion of this world. When we see our deeds in the light of the absolute truth, we will realise to what extent we have acted according to our true nature and to what extent we have betrayed God and our true selves.

Allah is transcendent and completely independent of His creation, just as an object is independent of its reflection. Only He determines what happens in the world. He commonly follows laws in His determination (which are misinterpreted as laws of nature), but which He can change at any time if He wishes.

Prophet Ibrahim a.s. recognised the transcendent nature of God:

> When the night grew dark upon him he beheld a star. He said: This is my Lord. But when it set, he said: I love not things that set. And when he saw the moon uprising, he exclaimed: This is my Lord. But when it set, he said: Unless my Lord guide me, I surely shall become one of the folk who are astray. And when he saw the sun uprising, he cried: This is my Lord! This is greater! And when it set he exclaimed: O my people! Lo! I am free from all that ye associate [with Him]. Lo! I have turned my face toward Him Who created the heavens and the earth, as one by nature upright, and I am not of the idolaters. (Al-Anam 76-79)

Ibrahim a.s. realised that everything he could grasp with his senses and mind was not God, not true reality (al-Haq). He realised that all ideas of reality are only constructs of the mind. Only Allah is the creator and true cause of everything. And this insight helped Ibrahim a.s. to overcome even the fear of the greatest pain a human being can suffer: Burning alive!

When he was thrown into the fire by the idol worshippers, the angel Gabriel a.s. came and offered him his help, but Ibrahim a.s. thought that he only needed Allah. And Allah proved that no laws of nature govern this world but He alone, and He commanded the fire to be cool for Ibrahim a.s.:

They cried: Burn him and stand by your gods, if ye will be doing. We said: O fire, be coolness and peace for Abraham. (al-Anbiya 68-69)

What is analogous to absolute reality, that is, what corresponds to the truth (it is not the truth because only Allah is the absolute truth, but is in accordance with it), must be recognised intuitively. Such analogous truth often appears paradoxical to our polar-reflective thinking, but we can grasp or "see" it intuitively.

Allah helps us to see by giving us signs that point to what He wants us to recognise (which is ultimately Himself). And He gives us abundant signs:

Lo! in the heavens and the earth are portents for believers. And in your creation, and all the beasts that He scattereth in the earth, are portents for a folk whose faith is sure. And the difference of night and day and the provision that Allah sendeth down from the sky and thereby quickeneth the earth after her death, and the ordering of the winds, are portents for a people who have sense. These are the portents of Allah which We recite unto thee [Muhammad] with truth. Then in what fact, after Allah and His portents, will they believe? Woe unto each sinful liar, Who heareth the revelations of Allah recited unto him, and then continueth in pride as though he heard them not. Give him tidings of a painful doom. (al-Gatiya 3-8)

See how We display the revelations unto them! Yet still they turn away. (Al-Anam 46)

We have to pay attention to the signs that God gives us at all times and recognise them with the help of our intuition. But "recognising" based on intuition and inspiration is a gift from God and beyond our power.

For example, no one can say with certainty what is really in the vaccines. All information comes only from the illusory world of the internet. But our intuition tells us that without a doubt there is something very suspicious about the official story!

As clearly as we grasp this intuitively, for other people, who may be much more intelligent than ourselves, this insight is completely absurd! For them we are crackpots and conspiracy theorists! And no matter how many "proofs" (i.e. signs) we present to them, they simply do not see it because they believe or want to believe in other "proofs". For if they were to admit that this "official evidence" is fraud, not only would the Covid narrative collapse, but so would their whole world, in which they may have invested many years. All the order that their brain had presented to them so far to navigate the world and give them direction in life would turn into chaos. That is why their instinct for self-preservation tells them that our "evidence" must simply be wrong, because violent course corrections are very dangerous and threaten their existence. A new order and a new meaning in life can generally only form slowly.

Intuition cannot be forced. God guides whom He wills. But our willingness to admit that we have no power over anything and are helplessly at God's mercy makes us receptive to this mercy, because this is humility and surrender to God, in contrast to the arrogance of today's society, which believes that with the help of its knowledge and technology it can gain godlike power and "get a grip" on everything. Spiritual insight comes from the light of Allah, which He gives to those who sincerely turn to Him.

> O ye who believe! If ye keep your duty to Allah, He will give you discrimination [between right and wrong] and will rid you of your evil thoughts and deeds, and will forgive you. Allah is of Infinite Bounty. (Al-Anfal 29)

It is Allah who creates everything, and therefore we are not dependent on anything except Allah. All our thoughts, will, beliefs and deeds are all created by Allah. We exist only because of Him and through Him! Therefore, we have to surrender to Allah and let God work through us.

Of course, this is again a paradox: Why do I have to surrender to Allah if He creates me and all my deeds? Why am I held responsible for my deeds when I do not create them myself? The Qur'an admits this paradox and explains that human logic is only conjecture that cannot grasp reality:

> They who are idolaters will say: Had Allah willed, we had not ascribed [unto Him] partners neither had our fathers, nor had we forbidden aught. Thus did those who were before them give the lie [to Allah's messengers] till they tasted of the fear of Us. Say: Have ye any knowledge that ye can adduce for Us? Lo! ye follow naught but an opinion, Lo! ye do but guess. Say - For Allah's is the final argument - Had He willed He could indeed have guided all of you. (al-Anam 148-149)

When God says in the Qur'an that good comes from Him, but bad comes from ourselves, we can understand this to mean that when we let Him work through us, the good appears, and insofar as we are attached to our selfishness and self-made images, the bad appears. We can intuitively recognise that this is true, even if logic then wants to argue again and says that selfishness was also created by Allah.

So much for the theory! But how is it put into practice? How can I see when something is an inspiration, reflection or whispering of Satan? How can I see when something is serving the ego (nafs) and not God and the true Self? And how can I see what to do in my personal situation?

Recognising signs

Recognising signs is the foundation of our faith. Whoever recognises the divine origin of the Qur'an, which consists of signs (ayat in Arabic means both sign and verse), becomes a Muslim. Whoever recognises the signs in nature recognises the greatness and omnipotence of Allah. He who recognises the signs in his life becomes rightly guided and knows what to do in every situation. But just as the correct interpretation of the ayaat in the Qur'an requires knowledge and practice, so too does it require knowledge and practice to recognise and correctly interpret the signs in our lives. Even though the Quran teaches us that inspiration is even above the Shariah (which is also inspired), these are extreme exceptions that do not apply to ordinary believers (the Quran gives as an example Ibrahim a.s. and Khidr a.s., both of whom were told to kill an innocent boy). If we think we have an inspiration but it is not compatible with Shariah, we must reject it, which is why it is obligatory to learn the basics of Islam.

Signs can be almost anything: what we read, what we think, what we feel or dream, who we meet and talk to, what we see, and so on. Usually one thing is communicated to us in different ways, as if we are given different pieces of the puzzle that we have to put together to make it form a picture and make sense.

Following signs

If we recognise the signs, we must of course follow them and not turn our backs on them. This goes without saying, but our nafs and Satan are masters at giving us excuses why we should not follow the signs. Again, Ibrahim a.s. is an example.

When he was inspired to sacrifice his son, Satan appeared to him in the form of an old man and tried to make Ibrahim a.s. see reason: "It cannot be that God commands you to sacrifice your innocent son? Ibrahim a.s. threw pebbles at the old man, and this is part of the pilgrimage, highlighting its great significance.

We often experience something similar ourselves: we intuitively feel we should do a thing, but "our reason" then tells us; "Have you thought it through? What if this happens and that happens and that happens?" Usually Satan tries to make you afraid of unforeseen consequences; "If you don't get vaccinated, you'll die of the virus, you won't be able to do your job, you won't be able to travel blah blah blah!"

Whoever follows Allah's signs gets more guidance; whoever rejects them and thinks he has a special status with Allah that allows him, for example, to skip a prayer, still have a girlfriend, etc., gets guidance withdrawn again. Allah cuts one strand after the other.

Remembering God, fearing Him and being grateful to Him

Whoever forgets God has already lost, because Satan and his Nafs can lead him astray at will:

> And be not ye as those who forgot Allah, therefor He caused them to forget their souls. Such are the evil-doers. (Al-Hasr 19)

By remembering and fearing God, we can know the right way:

> Lo! those who ward off [evil], when a glamour from the devil troubleth them, they do but remember [Allah's Guidance] and behold them seers! (Al-Araf 201)

Saying the basmallah before an activity helps us to reflect whether that action is really done for Allah or for our nafs. For example, I cannot possibly light a cigarette and speak "bismillah" beforehand! That makes no sense!

Steadfastness, patience and gratitude are also mentioned repeatedly:

> Lo! therein are revelations for each steadfast, thankful [heart]. (Ibrahim 5, Luqman 31, Saba 19, As-Sura 33)

Understanding oneself as God's servant

A sincere servant asks his master what he should do and follows his master's desire. Most believers follow their own desires and ask God to grant them their wishes. This is not forbidden. Allah even likes it when one asks Him and no one else. And as a human being, one will always remain selfish to a certain degree. But whoever realises that it is the best for oneself to stop acting selfishly and to ask what his Creator wants from him, gets a completely different status and a completely different light to see the way.

Even Satan knows that he has no power over the sincere servants of God who act only because of Him and not out of selfish interests:

> He said: My Lord! Because Thou hast sent me astray, I verily shall adorn the path of error for them in the earth, and shall mislead them every one, save such of them as are Thy perfectly devoted slaves. (Al-Higr 39-40)

Overcoming Nafs

We can only truly follow Allah if we, like a rider his horse, have our nafs under control. The more we discipline our nafs (e.g. with almsgiving, fasting and night prayer), the more we can follow Allah.

> Hast thou seen him who chooseth for his god his own lust? Wouldst thou then be guardian over him? (Al-Furqan 43)

> Hast thou seen him who maketh his desire his god, and Allah sendeth him astray purposely, and sealeth up his hearing and his heart, and setteth on his sight a covering? Then who will lead him after Allah [hath condemned him]? Will ye not then heed? (Al-Gatiya 23)

But as for him who feared to stand before his Lord and restrained his soul from lust, Lo! the Garden will be his home. (An-Naziat 40-41)

Because in modern society no one is in control of his nafs and people even identify with the nafs, they are led far astray by Satan. A sign that Judgment Day is approaching is that Muslims are getting big bellies, i.e. they are following their nafs instead of the guidance of Allah.

Whoever disciplines his nafs also deprives Satan of his power, for Satan uses the inclinations of the nafs to lead man astray.

Developing trust

Trust and faith can be used almost synonymously:

And those who became fugitives for the cause of Allah after they had been oppressed, We verily shall give them goodly lodging in the world, and surely the reward of the Hereafter is greater, if they but knew; Such as are steadfast and put their trust in Allah. (An-Nahl 41-42)

And when thou recitest the Qur'an, seek refuge in Allah from Satan the outcast. Lo! he hath no power over those who believe and put trust in their Lord. (An-Nahl 98-99)

The believer must learn to leave the solid ground of reason and rational facts. He has to do almost exactly the opposite of what he has been taught by globalist education. This, of course, creates fear. God gives us courage by pointing to the symbol of birds:

> Have they not seen the birds obedient in mid-air? None holdeth them save Allah. Lo! herein, verily, are portents for a people who believe. (An-Nahl 79)

That believers should rely on Allah is mentioned in many verses in the Qur'an. However, the above three verses are all from Surah an-Nahl, the bee. The bee is also an animal with no ground under its feet that trusts in Allah and is inspired by Him:

> And thy Lord inspired the bee, saying: Choose thou habitations in the hills and in the trees and in that which they thatch; Then eat of all fruits, and follow the ways of thy Lord, made smooth [for thee]. (An-Nahl 68-69)

Another element is mentioned here: Whoever follows inspiration, his path is made easy for him. It is easy for him because he then follows his own nature and what Allah has created him for. Whereas most people are always suffering because they think they have to "be reasonable" and follow their ideas or those that have been instilled in them through their upbringing. They do activities that are not in their nature because they think they have to do them for the sake of money. In times of inflation and the introduction of digital money, however, we should think better of it!

One must rely on nothing else than Allah. Those who do not realise this now will either be wiped out or become slaves of Dajjal in the approaching collapse. Those who cannot leave behind the illusory securities of modern society will be lost.

> "A time will come upon man when the patient among them who cling to religion will cling as to hot coals." (Tirmidhi 2260)

This is the final test of faith. Whoever goes through this hell on earth and passes will have a light that few believers have ever attained. He will find his own true nature and see when he is following his nafs and dunia and when he is trustfully surrendering to Allah, i.e. a true Muslim. He becomes a seer who is guided by Allah to his destiny.

Allah (s.t) says (in a Hadith Qudsi):

> To him who takes a Waliyy of Mine (one close to Me) as an enemy, I have declared war, and the best by which My servant can approach Me is to perform the duties (fard) commanded by Me. And My servant approaches Me through voluntary deeds (nafila) until I love him. And when I love him, I am his ear with which he hears, and his eye with which he sees, and his hand with which he grasps, and his foot with which he walks. And when he asks Me for something, I give it to him. And if he asks Me for refuge, I grant it to him. (Sahih Al-Bukhari)

Realising Islam means surrendering to God. All actions are in accordance with divine will and law.

The highest realisation of Islam is to become an Arif bi'Llah, a knower through God. One realises what comes from God and what is reflection. Ideally, one becomes a vessel for the divine will and allows God to work through one.

Ultimately, God guides the chosen people to their destiny: they overcome the deception of the mirror, but retain their consciousness and are thereby ultimately enabled in the hereafter to behold the glory of God, in contrast to the unbelievers to whom His sight is veiled.

> The people (the Companions) said, "O Messenger of Allah! Will we see our Lord on the Day of Resurrection?" He replied, "Have you any doubt that the full moon can be seen on a clear night?" They replied, "No, O Messenger of Allah." He said, "Do you have any doubt about seeing the sun when there are no clouds?" They replied in the negative. He said, "You will see Allah (your Lord) in the same way..." (Sahih al-Bukhari, Number 773)

What about the coming of al-Mahdi?

Most of the hadiths about the Mahdi are not particularly strong, but it seems plausible that at some point a leader of the Muslims will appear again. As far as we know from the hadiths, by the time of his appearance, humanity will already be greatly reduced, so the likelihood of any of us joining him is relatively small.

Many people, and especially the Shia, like to place their hope in a saviour who will deliver them from tribulation. This can lead to inactivity and distraction from one's own responsibility. But it can also result in the opposite and give us strength and hope. Neither Rasulallah s.a.w. nor the Mahdi a.s. are responsible for the individual deeds of the believers, but the early Muslims also gained strength from having a strong community and a rightly guided leader, which is unfortunately no longer the case today and a reason for the weakness of Muslims.

Therefore, the expectation of a rightly guided leader who will lead the Muslims and the world as such out of chaos and not into the NWO planned by Dajjal, but into a kingdom in which God's commandments are finally followed, can give us a sense and strength not to give up, and an intention to toil in the way of God and for the victory of Islam. No matter what comes of it afterwards, we will have our reward with Allah inshaAllah.

The black Banners from Khurasan

Here are a few hadiths concerning the black banners that come from the East. Some of them are classified as weak (da'if); where this is the case, it is noted below the text. The collection is presented for information, not as a settled account.

> The Prophet Muhammad s.a.w. said: "If you hear news of the black flags coming from Khorasan, you must join them even if you have to crawl over ice, for the Khalifah of Allah, the Mahdi, will be among them."

[Masnad Ahmad 5:277, Sunan Ibn Majah]

Note on grading: This version, transmitted through Thawban, is graded weak (da'if) by hadith scholars for several reasons: the chain contains Sufyan al-Thawri, a known mudallis who did not explicitly state that he heard it; another chain contains Ali ibn Zayd ibn Jud'an, who is weak; and another is munqati' (broken). Ibn al-Jawzi stated that a version of this hadith has "no basis" (la asla lahu). The command to "join them" should therefore not be treated as an established prophetic instruction.

> Thauban reported that the Prophet salla allahu alaihi wa sallam said: "Three will fight over your treasure, each of them the son of a Khalifah. Then none of them will get it. Then the black flags will appear from the East and they will kill you (or fight you) as no people have killed (or fought)." Then he mentioned something which I did not remember. Then he said: "When you see him (the Mahdi), give him your allegiance, even if crawling on snow (or even if you have to crawl over snow), for he is the Khalifah of Allah, Al-Mahdi."

[Ibn Majah and Al-Hakim; Ibn Kathir said: "This is a strong, healthy chain of transmission (Isnad)."]

Note on grading: Ibn Kathir's assessment of this particular chain as strong is noted, but it is not unanimous. Other scholars have raised issues with chains carrying the same material (see the note on the previous hadith). The grading of this tradition is therefore disputed.

The above hadith shows that those who fight "you" (the Arabs) come from a cold climate (crawling over ice), supported by the following hadith:

> Nafi' bin Utba reports: We were with Allah's Messenger s.a.w. on an expedition when people from the direction of the West came to Allah's Apostle s.a.w. They wore woollen clothes and stood near a hillock, and they met Allah's Messenger while he was sitting. I thought to myself, it is better that you go to them and stand between them and him so that they cannot attack him. Then I thought that a secret agreement was taking place between them. However, I went to them and placed myself between them and him, and I remember four words which I repeat. He said: "You will attack Arabia, and Allah will enable you to conquer it. Then you will attack Persia, and Allah will enable you to conquer it. Then you will attack Rome, and Allah will enable you to conquer it. Then you will attack the Dajjal, and Allah will enable you to defeat him." Nafi' said: Jabir, we thought that the Dajjal would appear after Rome had been defeated.
> [Sahih Muslim, Book 41, 6930]

Abu Hurairah r.a. reported that the Prophet s.a.w. said: "Black banners will come from Khorasan. No power will stop them until they finally reach Eela (Baitul Maqdis / Jerusalem), where they will erect their banners."

[Sunan Tirmidhi, Kitab-al-Fitan, Hadith 2371]

Note on grading: Al-Tirmidhi himself graded this hadith gharib (strange/weak), and its chain contains Rashdin ibn Sa'd, who is criticized. A similar wording is also reported from Ka'b al-Ahbar, suggesting the material may have entered the tradition from that source rather than directly from the Prophet.

> Abdur Rahman Al-Jarshi reported that he heard from the Companion Amr Bin Marra Al-Jamli r.a. that the Prophet s.a. said: "Truly, black flags will appear from Khorasan until these people tie their horses to the olive trees between Bait-e-Lahya and Harasta." We asked, are there olive trees between these places? He said, "If there are none there, they will soon grow, so that these people may come and tie their horses there."
> [Kitab-al-Fitan, p. 215]

Note on grading: This report is not found in the major canonical collections and its chain is not among the well-known, rigorously authenticated ones. It should be treated as a weak report.

Bait Lahya is located in the north of the Gaza Strip, and Harasta, also known as Harasta al-Basal, is a city and north-eastern suburb of Damascus. The soldiers of this army will be the ones primarily fighting Malhama al-Kubra, the great battle.

> Abu Hurairah reported that the Messenger of Allah s.a.w. said: "The last hour will not come until the Romans land at al-A'maq or in Dabiq. An army of the best (soldiers) among the people of the earth at that time will come from a city (Medina) to confront them. When they line up in ranks, the Romans will say: Do not stand between us and those (Muslims) who took prisoners from among us. Let us fight them. And the Muslims will say: No, by Allah, we will never withdraw from you and our brothers so that you may fight them. They will then begin to fight, and one third of the army will flee, whom Allah will not forgive. One third will be killed, and they are the best martyrs in the sight of Allah, and one third, who will never be exposed to trial, will win, and they will be the conquerors of Constantinople. And while they are busy distributing the war booty after hanging their swords on the olive trees, Satan will call out: 'The Dajjal has taken your place among your families.' And they will come out, but it will be of no use. And when they come to Syria, he (the Dajjal) will appear while they are still preparing for battle and lining up in ranks. Certainly, the time of prayer will come, and then Jesus a.s., the son of Mary, will descend and lead them in prayer. When the enemy of Allah sees him, he will (vanish) just as salt dissolves when it is placed in water. And even if he (Jesus) did not confront him, he would still completely dissolve, but Allah will kill him through his hand and he will show them the blood on his lance."

[Sahih Muslim, Kitab al-Fitan, Hadith 2897]

Abu Hurairah reported that the Messenger of Allah s.a.w. said: "You have heard of a city, one side of which lies on land and the other side in the sea (Constantinople)." They said: Yes, Messenger of Allah. Then he said: The last hour will not come until 70,000 people of Bani Ishac (children of the Prophet Isaac) attack it. When they land there, they will neither fight with weapons nor rain arrows, but will only say: "There is no god but Allah and Allah is greater", and one side (of the city wall) will fall. Thaur (one of the narrators) said: I believe he said, the side facing the sea. Then they will say a second time: "There is no god but Allah and Allah is greater", and the second side will also fall, and they will say: "There is no god but Allah and Allah is greater", and the gates will be opened to them. And while they are collecting the war booty and distributing it among themselves, a sound will be heard and it will be said: 'Truly, the Dajjal has come.' And so they will leave everything and turn to him."

[Sahih Muslim, Kitab al-Fitan, Hadith 2920]

Note on the text: The word "Bani Ishac" (children of Isaac) is what appears in the manuscript tradition of Sahih Muslim. However, classical commentators such as al-Qadi Abu al-Fadl noted that "the well-known, preserved version is 'Bani Isma'il'" (children of Ishmael, i.e. the Arabs), which fits the context of the hadith. Ibn al-Munir responded that the manuscripts are unanimous on "Bani Ishaq," but suggested it may still refer to the Arabs via their descent from their "uncle" Isaac. The identification of the group in this hadith is therefore disputed.

Hadrat Umama reported a long hadith from the Prophet s.a.w. in which Umm Sharik asked: "Where will the Arabs be on that day?" The Prophet s.a.w. said: "They will be few in number. And of these remaining Arabs, most will be in Bait-ul-Muqaddas (Syria), and their leader will be a pious man (al-Mahdi). When their leader goes forward to lead the morning prayer, Isa a.s. (Jesus) will descend from heaven."

[Sunan Ibn Majah, Kitab al-Fitan, Hadith 4077]

As we see, there will be only a few Arabs at that time. The reason for this is mentioned in other ahadith:

Abdullah bin Amr r.a. reported that the Messenger of Allah s.a.w. said: "There will be a Fitnah (suffering, trial, temptation) that will cleanse the Arabs (tastanzifu); its dead will be in Hell. During (this trial) the tongue will be sharper than the blow of a sword."

[Ahmad, Abu Dawud, at-Tirmidhi, Ibn Majah]

The scholar At-Tuwaijari explains that 'cleansing the Arabs' means that most of them will be destroyed. By what they are destroyed is not stated in the hadith itself. Some contemporary readers interpret the passage in light of modern events — for example, as referring to atomic war or meteorite impacts, as presented in another article — or to a plague, as described in the following hadith. These are interpretive readings, not contents of the hadith:

"A plague will come upon you (and kill you in great numbers) as a plague strikes sheep."

[Bukhari, Vol. 4, Book 51, 401]

This plague can be of natural cause, but some readers consider biological weapons more likely. There is the probabbility that, after the mass death of a Third World War, most technology will no longer function (e.g. due to the EMP effect) — which would explain why horses and swords are used again.

Signs of the Last Day

Do the unbelievers want to expect anything other than the last hour which will suddenly overtake them? Signs of it have already arrived, and when it really comes upon them, can they still accept admonition? [Muhammad 18]

Here is a listing of Islamic prophecies, derived from verses in the Qur'an and strong hadith from the works of Bukhari, Muslim, Tirmidhi, Tabarani and Ahmad. There are close to 80 signs listed, with some scholars listing more signs, for a total of over a hundred.

The signs of the Last Day are divided into the major and minor signs. The major signs have the distinction that when one of them arrives, the others quickly follow, like when a necklace is cut and the pearls fall out, while the minor signs can take hundreds of years and be spaced out. The signs are arranged in approximate chronological order, but the exact sequence is known only to Allah.

- The first sign is the coming of Prophet Muhammad. The Prophet s.a.w. said that his coming and that of the Last Day would be as close together as his two fingers. If the age of mankind is considered like a day, then he would have come in the late afternoon.

- The death of Prophet Muhammad. With the death of the Prophet s.a.w., the hearts of the people changed. This is how it was felt by his companions when they buried him.

- The conquest of Jerusalem, which was under the second Caliph, Umar bin Khattab r.a.. One may relate the following story here: Abu Ubaidah bin Jarrah r.a., who besieged Jerusalem and achieved victory, was to leave it to the Caliph Umar to receive the keys of the city, according to the wishes of the people of Jerusalem. Umar bin Khattab r.a. was notified and set out. On his journey from Medinah to Jerusalem, Umar and his servant always changed camels: sometimes he rode, sometimes the servant rode. When they reached Jerusalem, it was Umar's turn to lead the camel. As luck would have it, Umar had to wade through mud, getting his patched robe dirty. Abu Ubaidah wanted to advise the caliph not to step out in front of people like that, because he was afraid that the Romans might not show Umar the respect he deserved if he came along like that. Umar became angry and said that he did not expect such a comment from Abu Ubaidah. The dignity of a Muslim would be in Islam, and if a Muslim sought his dignity in other things, he would be humiliated by Allah! And he was right! When the people of Jerusalem saw Umar Khattab coming, they wept as they realised the simplicity and humility of the Caliph!

- Death of thousands of Muslims by a plague (believed to be the outbreak of plague in Amwas (Palestine) at the time Umar r.a. was Caliph).

- Wealth will increase in such a way that if a man is given 100 dinars (about 23,000 euros), he will not be satisfied with it. This sign is one of those where it is not known whether it has already come to pass or will come to pass, because wealth has already increased greatly in the past. The Caliph Umar bin Abdul Aziz, for example, was given alms from North Africa that were actually due to the poor. But there were no more poor people in North Africa! However, this sign can also refer to the awaiting Mahdi, who will distribute money without counting it, or also to the coming of the Messiah. During this time, a man will try to pay zaqat (the poor levy) and will find no one willing to accept it.

- Times of temptations and severe trials (fitan). A man will wake up in the morning as a Muslim and be a disbeliever in the evening or go to sleep in the evening as a Muslim and wake up as a disbeliever. People sell their religion cheaply for worldly possessions. The Prophet s.a.w. pointed to the east and said that (much) fitnah came from the east (e.g. misguided sects, the Mongols, Dajjal, Gog and Magog etc.) Caliph Umar was the door that shut out fitnah. When the door broke (the death of Umar), the Fitnah began. The first Fitnah was the murder of Caliph Uthman.

- Two large groups of Muslims will fight each other even though they are fighting for the same cause. Probably the war Jamal and Siffin is meant, where Ali r.a. fought against Aisha r.a. and Muawija r.a.. Both groups wanted to bring the murderers of Uthman r.a., the fourth caliph, to justice, but Ali r.a. demanded that Muawija give him Bai'at beforehand to preserve the unity of the Ummah and prevent fitnah, which Muawija refused.

- The death of Hussein r.a., the grandson of the Prophet s.a.w., and many of his relatives at Kerbala. One of the darkest chapters of Islam!

- Great Battle of Medinah (probably the Battle of Al-Harrah in the time of Caliph Yazid in 63 Hijrah).

- 30 self-proclaimed prophets appear (Dajjalun). This refers to those who had/have a considerable number of followers such as Musaylimah al-Kadhdhaab (the Liar), Al-Aswad al-'Ansi and Sajaah al-Kaahinah. In the times of the Taabi'ies (the successors of the Companions), Al-Mukhtaar al-Thaqafi appeared and claimed to be a prophet. About a century ago, there was a man in Iran named Husayn ibn 'Ali ibn al- Mirza Abbaas who claimed to be a Prophet. He became known as Baha'ullah and his followers are known as Baha'is. Among those who claimed prophethood in Southeast Asia today is Mirza Ghulam Ahmad from Qadiyan, Punjab, India. His followers are known as Qadiyanies and Ahmadis. Lies in religion will increase.

- The spread of peace (specifically Yemen and Iraq is mentioned). This happened in the early years of Islam and will occur again with the coming of the Messiah.

- The conquest of Persia and India.

- A great fire will occur in the Hijaz which will be seen as far as Basra (Palestine). Happened so in an eruption of a volcano near Medinah in 654 Hijrah, so reported by Nawawi.

- War with people with reddish skin colour, with clothes and shoes made of hair, with narrow eyes. This is believed to be the invasion of the Mongols.

- The first conquest of Constantinople (by Muhammad al-Fatih in 1453).

- No more trust! Leadership positions are given to people who are not fit for it and abuse their position.

- "The pen will prevail." This means everything written including books, newspapers, internet etc. In fact, for 500 years written things have been multiplying continuously.

- Religious knowledge will disappear and ignorance will prevail. Knowledge will be taken away by the death of the (true) scholars. People will then take others as religious leaders who give fatwas without knowledge and lead others astray.

- Poor and illiterate camel herders will compete to erect tall buildings (see Dubai).

- The slave girl will give birth to her master. Can be interpreted to mean that children will become so disobedient and disrespectful that parents will become servants to their children.

- Alcoholic beverages will be consumed in large quantities.

- Widespread extramarital sex. The Prophet s.a.w. said that if this were the case, diseases would appear that would not have existed before (see AIDS). At the end of time, Judgment Day will reach the worst of people who copulate like donkeys without hiding from the eyes of others.

- Marriage between people of the same sex.

- People will prefer to raise a child of a dog than a child of their own.

- Riba (taking interest, usury, exchanging nominal value for real value) will spread. The dust of riba would be on everything. Riba is one of the two sins that will result in a declaration of war from Allah. On the Last Day, one will be given weapons and told, "Now fight with Allah!"

- Mosques will be magnificently built and decorated and people will brag about the beautiful mosques, but the mosques will be empty: empty of worshippers and the guidance of Allah!

- The jizyah (protection tax) paid by the Ahl adh-Dhimmah (Jews and Christians living under Islamic law) to the Islamic State, and the khiraaj (harvest taxes paid by the people using the land conquered by the Muslims).

- Earthquakes will increase.

- Entrusted property will be misappropriated.

- Kinship ties will be broken.

- A Fitnah will invade every Arab home. (Maybe television and smartphone?).

- The infidels will gather and loot the wealth of Muslims like people gather around a platter to eat from it.

- Love for this world and fear of death.

- Women imitate men and men imitate women.

- People from far away become near of kin and near of kin spread far.

- Time will pass quickly: A year will be like a month, a month like a week, a week like a day and a day like an hour. One interpretation is that the blessing of time will pass and one will get much less done. Or that people feel this way, for example, because of an increasingly hectic lifestyle. Another interpretation is that through modern communication methods and means of transport, something that used to take months can be done in minutes.

- Sounds (musical instruments / music) and temptations will spread.

- Markets will be close together. In the past, there was only one weekly market in a village. Nowadays there are supermarkets almost everywhere, open around the clock.

- A wide spread of trade. In fact, nowadays, e.g. through ebay, trading has become a thing that almost everyone does.

- The number of policemen / security personnel (Shurti) will increase. They leave under the wrath of Allah and they return under the wrath of Allah. They have sticks in their hands like cow tails with which they beat people (batons).

- Women will be clothed but naked.

- People will use new means of transport, with "very wide seats". A car has certainly a much wider seat than a camel.

- Bloodshed will increase, to the extent that the murderer will not know why he killed, and the murdered will not know why he was killed (think school rampages).

- Sudden death will be common. Like heart attack, stroke etc., so many diseases caused by "modern" (i.e. sedentary) lifestyle or even corona vaccination.

- Islam began as something strange and is becoming something strange again. Therefore, good news to the strangers!

- False witness will increase.

- People will sell their religion at a cheap price.

- People will gather for prayer but will not find anyone to lead the prayer.

- "Salam" will only be given to those known.

- The rise of the "lowly". A reversal of the social order: a truthful person is not believed, but a liar! A trustworthy person is not trusted, but one who abuses trust! The insignificant (in the religious sense) will have the say. Respect, honour and power will belong to those of bad character. Look around you!

- Animals and objects will speak. Most scholars assume that this will really happen because there are reports from the time of the Prophet s.a.w. where this is said to have been the case. But it could also be that this means cartoons and mobile phones, for example.

- Someone passing by someone else's grave will wish to be in his place.

- The number of men will decrease, the number of women will increase, until there are fifty (or forty) women for every man.

- Dreams of a true believer will be true. It is the last part of prophethood that remains.

- The river Euphrates will reveal a treasure of gold and many will die, fighting each other, hoping to gain control over it. Out of 100 people, 99 will die. If one should be present at that time, one should not take any of the gold.

- The coming of the Mahdi a.s. (descendant from the family of Muhammad s.a.w., his name will be that of the Prophet s.a.w. - Muhammad bin Abdullah), he will become leader of the Muslims.

- Great war between Muslims and Rome (Europeans). The Europeans fight under 80 flags. In this war, one third of Muslims will flee (and Allah will never accept their repentance), one third will become martyrs (and they are the best of the martyrs) and one third will be victorious (and they will never deviate from the right path thereafter).

- The destruction of Medinah

- The conquest of Constantinople and Rome by descendants of the Prophet Isaac, i.e. Jews (see "The Black Flags of Khorasan").

- Appearance of Al-Maseh ad-Dajjal with all possible attributes of deceit and enticements, who will become the greatest temptation in the history of mankind. He is accompanied by 70,000 Jews from Isfahan (Iran). He himself has a number of signs that can already be seen, which is why it is assumed that he is both a system and a person.

- The appearance of the Messiah a.s. in Damascus at the time of the morning prayer. He will pray behind the Imam (al-Mahdi).

- Great war between Muslims (including Jews and Christians who become Muslims at the appearance of the Messiah) against the Jews and the rest of the infidels who are the followers of the Dajjal.

- Jesus will kill the Dajjal near the entrance to Ludd (the city of Lod in modern Israel, where there is currently an airport and a large military base).

- Jesus will break the cross, i.e. destroy false Christianity.

- Appearance of the tribes of Gog and Magog and the accompanying catastrophes.

- Time of great peace in the remaining lifetime of Jesus, where children play with snakes and wolves herd the goats.

- The Arabian Peninsula becomes green again like a garden with rivers running through it. Scientists have now discovered that Arabia really did have rivers and hippos at one time.

- Appearance of a talking beast from the earth.

- Society begins to break down.

- Women of the Daus tribe from Yemen will begin to gyrate their hips and perform tawaf (walking around) around the idol Zul-Khulsah.

- Three great earthquakes (or earth subsidence): one in the East, one in the West and one in Arabia.

- The ruler of Abyssinia (Ethiopia) with weak legs (Zul-Zuwakatain) will destroy the Kaaba.

- Great clouds of smoke.

- The sun rises in the west.

- There is no city which Allah will not destroy before the Day of Resurrection or on which He will not inflict a severe punishment.

- Rise of a breeze that will take the souls of the believers.

- No one will be left on earth who was accustomed to say, "Allah, Allah", or, "There is no god but Allah (La ilaha illallah)".

- A fire will occur in Yemen, driving people to the plain of Masyar, the place of the Last Judgement.

- The angel Israfil, on whom be peace, will blow his trumpet for the first time.

- After that, all will be resurrected.

May Allah protect us from the fitnah of the end times and the fitnah of Dajjal in particular, strengthen us in faith and guide and guard us always!

Ruqyah – Islamic Exorcism
There is hardly a better opportunity to witness the power and blessedness of the Qur'an as with Ruqyah. With the recitation of the Qur'an alone, Satans can be expelled and eliminated. What appears to be a fairy-tale to average "modern" man, is a recognized cure in Islam. This book explains means of protection against jinn and magic, and helps with diagnosis and treatment. A useful reference for all those who want to or have to practice Ruqyah, and valuable information for every Muslim.

No Name Nomad: A quest for guidance
No Name Nomad describes the author's journey from an irreligious materialistic life to one full of meaning and closeness to God. He leaves his home-country and former life, trusting in God and His promise. He tries to get rid of all materialistic things and walks thousands of kilometres without money, passport and baggage, and finally finds his true identity on a little dugout in the middle of the Indian Ocean. The book describes the attempt to follow, without compromise, one's own intuitions and the inner guide. The author compares his intuitions and outer situations with waves. These waves one has to recognize and 'to ride' if they should bring one to new shores because the rational analysis of a situation and its logical conclusion never suffice to adjust oneself to the constant flow of life and God's will. Surfing becomes him a symbol, and the author starts it also on the material plane to better understand its laws. This brings him to an island near Sumatra where he gets an English translation of the Koran and the waves get a name: Hidaya.

Christianity from the perspective of Islam
Viewing things from a distance might make them appear quite different! Likewise Christianity, when seen from the viewpoint of Islam. This book invites to reflection. It offers new perspectives and inspiration for those who are not holding rigid to a dogma, but who give priority to the truth!
